GRAND JURY TO PROBE "TAX FIX"

Allies Claim Reds Tactics Are Blackmail

Prisoners Exchange Delays Peace Pact

MUNSAN, Korea, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators held out for a "price" Thursday on discussing exchange of allied prisoners of war in Korea. An official United Nations command spokesman called it "blackmail."

The Reds said Allied acceptance of a Communist plan for supervising an armistice must come before they would talk about prisoners.

They made this evident after Allied delegates presented an eight-point revised plan for supervision of a truce which offered some concessions to the Reds.

Reds Expected To Answer

The Communists were expected to answer the revised U. N. plan or submit a new one of their own at a fourth subcommittee meeting, scheduled for 11 a. m., today (9 p. m., Thursday, E.S.T.), at Panmunjom.

Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner senior U. N. sub-delegate, put the prisoner issue to the Reds Thursday, proposing to speed consideration by placing a second joint subcommittee at work on it immediately.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Song Cho, Red sub-delegate, heatedly replied:

"When there is no prospect for progress of the meeting, our senior delegate (Lt. Gen. Nam Il) will not give you any answer about the prisoners of war."

One U. N. press spokesman, Lt. Col. Howard S. Levie, who sat in on the session, told correspondents, "I think to all of us present that had somewhat the implications of blackmail."

The chief U. N. press spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, went further and flatly charged the Reds with "negotiatory blackmail."

The modified eight-point Allied plan called for behind-the-lines inspection by joint Red-Allied observation teams, as before. But it accepted the Communist view that the inspection should be confined to ports of entry agreed upon by both sides.

Eight Points Listed

1. All armed forces, ground sea and air, under the control of either side, shall cease all hostilities within 24 hours after the armistice agreement enters into effect.

2. All armed forces shall be withdrawn from the demilitarized zone 72 hours after the armistice becomes effective, except for police work mutually agreed upon by both sides.

3. There shall be a military armistice commission of mixed membership on an equal basis responsible for execution of the armistice terms. Its members shall be picked by the commander in chiefs of the U. N. command and the Chinese-Korean Communist forces.

4. (a) The military armistice commission, and its joint observer teams shall have authority to observe at ground, sea and air ports of entry and communication centers throughout all of Korea as mutually agreed by the two delegations, together with freedom of movement for the above teams over principal lines of communication throughout all of Korea.

Will Withdraw Forces

(b) The military armistice commission shall have the right of joint aerial observation and photo reconnaissance over all of Korea.

(c) The military commission shall have the right to complete joint observation of the demilitarized zone.

5. Neither side shall increase the level of units, personnel, war equipment, military facilities or material existing in Korea, at the time the armistice becomes effective.

6. Within 72 hours of the entering into effect of the armistice agreement, each side shall withdraw the

Six Giant Bombers Return From Round Trip To Africa

FORT WORTH, Dec. 6 (AP) —Six B-36 sky giants, designed to deliver the atom bomb more than 10,000 miles, returned to home base today after a non-stop training flight to Africa.

They came back to Carswell Air Force Base from one of several supercraft American Air Force bases being built around the world for global defense. The trip was about 4,984 miles each way.

It was the first time the big fellows had landed at the new field at Sidi Climane, French Morocco, according to Maj. L. A. Prouix, intelligence officer.

Crewmen called the flight routine. They sported bright red fezzes and brought excess francs they didn't have time to spend. When they arrived in Africa Sunday they changed their Yankee dollars into francs and then found they couldn't change their excess francs back into dollars. So they just invested most of them in perfumes, wallets, fezzes and hassock covers.

The wind-up of the training flight comes Saturday when some 200 maintenance and ground men return aboard three C-124 planes. They left yesterday and will make four stops en route.

The B-36's flew into home base in trail formation, spaced 15 minutes apart. They were in constant radio contact with each other during the 27-hour return flight. It took them 21 hours to fly over.

It was the second flight across the Atlantic for the strategic air command planes. They flew to England last Jan. 12 and returned Jan. 21.

Churchill Says Great Britain Cannot Complete Its Defense Program By 1953 As Planned

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said tonight Britain will be unable to complete her $3 billion defense program on schedule in 1953.

"We shall get on as fast as we can," Churchill told the House of Commons in reply to a question from laborite left-winger Aneurin Bevan. "We shall do our best, But I should be very wrong not to warn the House that there will be a lag, as there has been in all munitions programs I have seen or been connected with."

Program Behind Schedule

Speaking as his own defense minister in debate, the Conservative chieftain referred to Bevan's prediction of last spring that Britain was trying to rearm too fast. Churchill told the House that even this year's $3,500,000,000 defense spending was behind schedule.

Bevan quit the Labor Government cabinet of Clement Attlee April 23 with a protest that Britain was trying to rearm faster than her economy and social services would permit.

Churchill told the House:

Britain has made considerable progress toward building an A-bomb.

There is less danger of World War III now than at any time since the Berlin air lift of 1948 because of "deterrents against aggression" created by the United States, Britain and other nations of the free West.

Some 250,000 armed service personnel in the nation's military establishments and depots have been ordered to be at "combat ready" to repeal any possible invasion by parachute troops.

A short training course for Britain's ex-servicemen will be held again next year along the same lines of the one the past summer.

Shelves Rifle Plan

Britain's plan to produce a new .280 caliber rifle will be shelved in the hope that agreement can be reached on a standard size rifle with the United States and Canada. The United States favors its own .30 caliber Garand.

Churchill still is not convinced the North Atlantic allies should appoint a supreme commander for the Atlantic Ocean. Churchill said the nationality of such a commander was secondary, although before he became prime minister he protested because the job was due to go to an American, Adm. William Fechteler.

President Works On $85 Billion Budget For '53

Confers With Fiscal Aides At Key West

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 6 (INS)—President Truman worked tonight on details of an estimated eighty-five billion dollar budget and a ten billion dollar tax increase for next year.

Mr. Truman conferred at length with two of his top budgetary advisers on fiscal needs to finance the nation's staggering rearmament and foreign aid programs, together with domestic economics requirements.

Budget Director Frederick Lawton arrived at Key West from Washington during the day, bringing with him William B. McCandless, assistant budget director in charge of estimates.

The President immediately went into conference with the two fiscal aides.

Mr. Truman spent the entire afternoon and worked on into the evening wrestling with estimates for the budget for fiscal year 1953, and the tax increase recommendations he will make to Congress in an effort to put the nation's economy on a near "pay-as-we-go" basis.

The White House said the president was making an "item by item review of portions of the budget" for the fiscal message he will send to Congress around the second week in January.

The White House shied away from official disclosure of figures.

Asked if the President had put any ceilings on the budget, Assistant Press Secretary Irving Perlmeter answered in the negative.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—William J. Grede of Milwaukee, Wis., a pioneer in good labor relations, tonight was chosen president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

New Eruptions Peril Island

MANILA, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP) — A cascade of red hot rocks and fiery ash spouted from blazing Hibok Hibok volcano late Thursday to bring new terror and possibly still more casualties to stricken Camiguin Island.

It was the fourth major eruption in 57 hours for the mile-high volcano dominating the trembling little coconut isle in the Sea of Mindanao. There was no indication Hibok Hibok was subsiding.

Official sources reported Thursday night that Philippine naval patrol ships moved in close with searchlights probing the shore to pick up survivors and refugees from the latest eruption.

A Philippine news service report said there were deaths and injuries among those who had stayed in the northern end of the island.

Some 200 Chinese storekeepers, volunteer relief workers and Philippine army troops had remained in the Mambajao area on the north coast when the rest of the town's population of 7,000 was evacuated Tuesday.

The known death toll Thursday was still 209 but may exceed 700, according to advices from Gov. Paciencio Ysalina of Misamis Oriental Province.

Mother Sues For Insurance, Claims U. S. Not At War

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 6 (AP)—A Louisville mother challenged an insurance company today to prove the United States is engaged in a war in Korea.

Mrs. Edna Smothers filed suit against the National Life and Accident Insurance Company to collect double indemnity on the death of her son, Pvt. Patrick H. Ford, Jr., killed in Korea last July 8.

The petition said he was killed "accidentally" by a mortar shell in North Korea. The insurance policy provided for double indemnity in case of accidental death. Among the exceptions, the suit said, was death due to service with the armed forces "at war."

Attorney E. P. Sawyer said he plans to quote President Truman as authority that the Korean fighting is a "United Nations police action," and not a war.

Collins Sees Use Of Atomic Artillery Soon

Will Enhance Power Of Defense He Adds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins said tongiht the United States has developed atomic artillery and he indicated that such weapons may be ready for combat use in the "not too distant" future.

The army's chief of staff said atomic weapons will not revolutionize ground warfare but they will "greatly enhance the power of defense" and be of greater value in defense than in attack.

Collins added the army already is making plans for the day when atomic artillery and guided missile battalions will replace some of the conventional heavy artillery.

Could Hit Any Target

In Memphis, Tenn., Admiral William M. Fechteller said U. S. carrier-based planes could deliver atomic bombs on any target in the world within 600 miles of the sea.

The admiral, who is chief of naval operations, told a navy league meeting the Navy's striking power with atomic bombs increases "as the bomb becomes smaller and lighter." And he suggested that more ships in the Navy's big moth-ball fleet might be converted into guided missile launching ships.

General Collins declined to say when the Army expects to have tactical atomic weapons. "It is not in the too distant future," the general said, "but that is all I am going to say."

He also said:

(1) He still believes there will be an armistice in Korea.

(2) With an armistice, the withdrawal of American troops from Korea will depend largely on any political agreements reached between the Reds and the Allies. He added: "we should not expect the early reduction of any of our forces in Korea."

Bring Greater Pressure

(3) If truce talks fail, it is possible the Allies will bring greater sea and air pressure against Red China.

(4) The United Nations' defense line in Korea is so strong that it will hold "under any foreseeable development that is likely to occur."

(5) Alaskan defenses are strong enough to hold against Soviet attack.

(6) If the United States had not gone into Korea to meet "naked aggression" then the United Nations would be "deader than a dodo."

Discussing atomic artillery, Collins said: "we have developed such a weapon now. The time as to when it would be practicable to put it into use on a large scale, I don't want to go into because — needless to say — any potential enemy would like to have that information."

Then the general went on to say atomic artillery "has been tested as a weapon."

Vote On Council Seat Prolonged

PARIS, Dec. 6 (AP)—The United Nations split about evenly—and indecisively—today on whether American-supported Greece or Soviet White Russia should get a seat on the Security Council.

After eight polls were taken by secret ballot, further voting was put off until next week. White Russia led Greece, 32 to 27, on the eighth ballot, but needed at least 40 of the 60 votes.

Third Car Price Boost Is Granted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The government tonight told automobile manufacturers they can apply for higher price ceilings and said eight of the ten car makers already have indicated they will seek the increases.

The optional boost will be the third since automobile prices were frozen a little more than a year ago.

"The Great A-Bomb Robbery"

The greatest theft of all time!

It stole world peace . . . it stole your security . . . it stole great chunks from the American way of life by mortgaging your present and the American future for generations to come . . .

That is part of the fearful, terrible effect of "The Great A-Bomb Robbery"—the theft by Soviet Russia of one of the most guarded secrets in history.

"The Great A-Bomb Robbery," written by famed Reporter-Writer-Columnist Bob Considine, is packed with new, hitherto unpublished facts about the fantastic spy-plot that reached across oceans, penetrated seemingly impenetrable security guards . . . and wrecked the peace of the world!

Bob Considine's astounding, revealing story of "The Great A-Bomb Robbery" will appear in the Cumberland Sunday Times and the Cumberland News, starting Dec. 9.

Five Are Killed In Huge Riot In Tehran Streets

Anti-Red Demonstrators Wreck Four Newspapers

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6 (AP) — Five thousand Communist-led youths, shouting death threats against Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, fought a wild five-hour battle in the streets today with police, troops and anti-Red civilians who totaled 10,000.

Five persons were reported killed and more than 200 injured.

The Communists started it with a defiant march on government buildings against orders forbidding demonstrations. The Communist Tudeh party itself is outlawed, but has flourished underground.

Five thousand alerted police and troops, with swinging clubs, thrusting bayonets and nationalist civilian backing, beat down the Communists in fighting that lasted from daylight until noon.

Then 5,000 yelling anti-Reds who had fought beside the authorities on a rampage of their own, with clubs and stones for smashing weapons.

Nationalist extremist squads ranged through the capital city, smashing at least 10 newspaper offices and some properties of non-Red political factions opposed to Mossadegh's government.

Hundreds of Communists were arrested. A Red-front peace partisan headquarters, pro-Communist newspapers and a theater were wrecked by the furious nationalists. The nationalists scrapped mounds of Red propaganda publications.

They were believed to be acting in reprisal for the Communist demonstrations and taking advantage of the Reds' absence in destroying the known underground quarters of the long - outlawed Communist Tudeh party.

In a fury after the battle, however, nationalists mobs also wrecked the offices of four newspapers that are non-Communist but opposed to Mossadegh's government.

Didn't Take Wife Out, She Gets Divorce

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6 (AP)—A marriage that lasted nearly 40 years was dissolved in common pleas court today. The wife said her husband had taken her out only once in the last 15 years.

The divorce went to Mrs. Amelia Petrone, 60, on the grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. Her attorney said an alimony settlement had been reached, for $37,500.

The husband, Nicholas A. Petrone, 65, a jewelry manufacturer, withdrew a cross petition and offered no contest.

Newsman Ordered From Iran For Writing "Lies"

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Iranian government today ordered New York Times Correspondent Michael Clark to get out of the country within 48 hours.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi announced the expulsion order, accusing Clark of writing lies and insults to the government of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Clark denied the charges.

United States Ambassador Loy Henderson went immediately to the ailing premier's bedside and, in a 45-minute conference, made what were described as "strong representations" against Clark's expulsion.

Mossadegh, it was learned, firmly refused to reconsider and said Clark must go.

American Actor Dies In London

LONDON, Dec. 6. (AP)—J. Edward Bromberg, American actor famed for his character roles, was found dead today in his apartment here. He would have been 48 years old on Christmas Day.

A leading player on Broadway and in many movies, Bromberg was starring on the stage here in "The Biggest Thief In Town."

Scotland Yard officers said death was due to natural causes.

Bromberg came to England six weeks ago and had been appearing in the play for four weeks.

The actor was born in Temesvar, Hungary, and was educated in New York, a graduate of City College. This was his first stage appearance in England. His last appearance on the New York stage was with Betty Field and Elliot Nugent in Elmer Rice's play, "Not For Children," last season.

Last June, Bromberg refused to answer questions put to him by the U. S. House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee. He had been named by other witnesses before the committee as a member of the Communist Party in Hollywood. At the time of his appearance before the committee in Washington, Bromberg's doctor said he had a rheumatic heart.

Telephone Union Backs President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — A CIO union of telephone workers today urged President Truman to run for another term.

The Communications Workers of America made public a letter from their president, Joseph A. Beirne, to Mr. Truman saying:

"Communications workers in CWA feel there is ample justification for supporting you. We hope you will agree to accept the great burden of the chief executive for another term."

Beirne recalled that the CWA endorsed Mr. Truman in 1948 by convention resolution even before he won the Democratic nomination. This was after a poll of CWA members.

Red Field Guns Destroyed By U. S. Air Force

35 Weapons Reported Put Out Of Action

SEOUL, Korea, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP) —The U. S. Fifth Air Force announced it destroyed 35 Communist field guns—enough to outfit an artillery regiment—in a special frontier attack Thursday, and battled Red jets over North Korea for the eleventh straight day.

One Red MIG-15 was listed as destroyed, one probably destroyed and another damaged in the day's air-to-air battles.

The ground war was quiet for the ninth straight day since armistice negotiators agreed on a provisional cease-fire line. The infantry had little to do except beat off an occasional Communist probe and duck Chinese shells.

It was to stop some of this continual Communist harassing fire that the U. S. Fifth Air Force made 107 ground-support flights Thursday in a special attack.

Preparations for the special assault began several days ago with a thorough photo reconnaissance of the whole western front, where the Red artillery has been particularly active.

At dawn Thursday the fighter-bombers went to work with rockets, napalm jellied gasoline and 500 and 1,000-pound bombs, some of them time-fused.

"There is every indication that our close support should substantially reduce the mortar and artillery fire being received by U. N. forces in this sector," said an Air Force briefing officer.

In its record-breaking 11 consecutive days of air fighting through Thursday, the Fifth Air Force shot down 33 Red planes, plus two probables and 32 damaged. Of the kills, 22 were MIG jets.

On the ground the only action of any size reported from midnight Wednesday to midnight Thursday was a three-hour fight east-southeast of Kumsong on the central front. Two Chinese platoons (possibly 80 men) drove a U. N. force from an advanced position at 4 a. m. The Allies retook the ground at 7 a. m.

Study Rate Hike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today agreed to consider another freight rate increase for the railroads.

McGrath Acts On Charges Of Shakedown

Justice Dept. May Seek Perjury Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Attorney General McGrath today launched a grand jury investigation into Abraham Teitelbaum's charges that two men, claiming friendship with federal officials, tried to shake him down for $500,000 with promises of a "tax fix".

Teitelbaum, a wealthy Chicago lawyer, told his sensational story to house tax probers Tuesday. He swore that Frank Nathan and Bert K. Naster led him to believe that they knew of a Washington clique which was on the lookout for "soft touches" like him, and that for half a million they could "make it easy" for him.

Story Is Denied

The story has been denied vigorously. Last night Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee conducting the inquiry, ordered a transcript of the testimony, including charges and denials, sent to the Justice Department for possible perjury prosecutions.

McGrath announced today:

"I have issued instructions this morning that all the testimony, reports and investigative materials of the King subcommittee relating to the Teitelbaum - Menkin - Nathan-Naster allegations be obtained immediately.

"We have also been in communication with United States Attorney Charles Irelan (of the District of Columbia) and have requested that this matter be presented to a grand jury within the next ten days."

The Menkin mentioned in McGrath's statement is Mrs. Shyrl Menkin, an attractive divorcee of Chicago and Miami, who supported the main parts of Teitelbaum's story. She is a friend of Teitelbaum's. Nathan said he knew her as "Mrs. Teitelbaum".

Nathan, a former Pittsburgh promoter, made a categorial denial of the shakedown story yesterday. He told the King committee it was "a dirty, filthy lie".

Two names mentioned by Teitelbaum as members of the alleged Washington clique were those of Charles Oliphant, chief counsel for the internal revenue bureau, and T. Lamar Caudle, formerly an assistant attorney general in charge of tax fraud prosecutions for the Justice Department. Both men have denied any connection with the alleged plot.

McGrath Defends Lawyers

Oliphant resigned yesterday, telling President Truman he was the target of "attacks, vilification, rumor and inneuendo beyond the point of human endurance".

Caudle was ousted by Mr. Truman Nov. 16 for "outside activities" deemed incompatible with his official duties.

Just before he announced the grand jury probe today, McGrath expressed complete confidence in the integrity of the government's legal staff. Speaking to a meeting of the Federal Bar Association, he defied those interested in special influence to try and tempt federal lawyers from their duty.

Larger Bone Banks Needed To Aid In Graft Operations

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6 (AP)—Bones salvaged quickly from accident victims and from operating rooms could prevent a lot of pain and disfigurement for people who need bone grafts, two Los Angeles doctors reported today.

Extra bone is needed in cases where joints are badly mangled, in instances where a section of bone has to be taken out because of disease or where lengthening has to be done.

They also are useful in fracture cases that heal too slowly and in patients where even normal healing may mean long weeks of pain or disability.

This calls for more bone banks, Dr. G. Mosser Taylor and Dr. Vernon L. Nickel of the College of Medical Evangelists told the American Medical Association.

There are several bone banks in existance but they are too few, Taylor and Nickel said. This means a "niggardly" use of material in many cases where there could have been plenty of it.

Frequently the extra bone is taken from some other part of the patient's own body. This requires a second operation and it often leaves an unsightly scar and more pain during recuperation.

Unlike flesh grafts, bone graft materials does not have to come from the patient himself or some near relative. Flesh grafts taken from other individuals usually will not "take."

However, in the case of bone the graft acts only as a framework and repository for bone-building minerals which will be deposited by the patient's system during the healing process. The graft then will slough off, leaving a clean, new growth, Drs. Taylor and Nickel said.

Bones from the bodies of accident victims and from amputations and other operations must be taken within four hours, put into sterile containers and kept deep frozen.

Weather Forecast

Confers With Fiscal Aides At Key West

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 6 (INS)—President Truman worked tonight on details of an estimated eighty-five billion dollar budget and a ten billion dollar tax increase for next year.

Mr. Truman conferred at length with two of his top budgetary advisers on fiscal needs to finance the nation's staggering rearmament and foreign aid programs, together with domestic economics requirements.

Budget Director Frederick Lawton arrived at Key West from Washington during the day, bringing with him William B. McCandless, assistant budget director in charge of estimates.

The President immediately went into conference with the two fiscal aides.

Mr. Truman spent the entire afternoon and worked on into the evening wrestling with estimates for the budget for fiscal year 1953, and the tax increase recommendations he will make to Congress in an effort to put the nation's economy on a near "pay-as-we-go" basis.

The White House said the president was making an "item by item review of portions of the budget" for the fiscal message he will send to Congress around the second week in January.

The White House shied away from official disclosure of figures.

Asked if the President had put any ceilings on the budget, Assistant Press Secretary Irving Perlmeter answered in the negative.

New Eruptions Peril Island

MANILA, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP) — A cascade of red hot rocks and fiery ash spouted from blazing Hibok Hibok volcano late Thursday to bring new terror and possibly still more casualties to stricken Camiguin Island.

It was the fourth major eruption in 57 hours for the mile-high volcano dominating the trembling little coconut isle in the Sea of Mindanao. There was no indication Hibok Hibok was subsiding.

Official sources reported Thursday night that Philippine naval patrol ships moved in close with searchlights probing the shore to pick up survivors and refugees from the latest eruption.

A Philippine news service report said there were deaths and injuries among those who had stayed in the northern end of the island.

Some 200 Chinese storekeepers, volunteer relief workers and Philippine army troops had remained in the Mambajao area on the north coast when the rest of the town's population of 7,000 was evacuated Tuesday.

The known death toll Thursday was still 209 but may exceed 700, according to advices from Gov. Paciencio Ysalina of Misamis Oriental Province.

Mother Sues For Insurance, Claims U. S. Not At War

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 6 (AP)—A Louisville mother challenged an insurance company today to prove the United States is engaged in a war in Korea.

Mrs. Edna Smothers filed suit against the National Life and Accident Insurance Company to collect double indemnity on the death of her son, Pvt. Patrick H. Ford, Jr., killed in Korea last July 8.

The petition said he was killed "accidentally" by a mortar shell in North Korea. The insurance policy provided for double indemnity in case of accidental death. Among the exceptions, the suit said, was death due to service with the armed forces "at war."

Attorney E. P. Sawyer said he plans to quote President Truman as authority that the Korean fighting is a "United Nations police action," and not a war.

Collins Sees Use Of Atomic Artillery Soon

Will Enhance Power Of Defense He Adds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins said tonight the United States has developed atomic artillery and he indicated that such weapons may be ready for combat use in the "not too distant" future.

The army's chief of staff said atomic weapons will not revolutionize ground warfare but they will "greatly enhance the power of defense" and be of greater value in defense than in attack.

Collins added the army already is making plans for the day when atomic artillery and guided missile battalions will replace some of the conventional heavy artillery.

Could Hit Any Target

In Memphis, Tenn., Admiral William M. Fechteller said U. S. carrier-based planes could deliver atomic bombs on any target in the world within 600 miles of the sea.

The admiral, who is chief of naval operations, told a navy league meeting the Navy's striking power with atomic bombs increases "as the bomb becomes smaller and lighter." And he suggested that more ships in the Navy's big moth-ball fleet might be converted into guided missile launching ships.

General Collins declined to say when the Army expects to have tactical atomic weapons. "It is not in the too distant future," the general said, "but that is all I am going to say."

He also said:

(1) He still believes there will be an armistice in Korea.

(2) With an armistice, the withdrawal of American troops from Korea will depend largely on any political agreements reached between the Reds and the Allies. He added: "we should not expect the early reduction of any of our forces in Korea."

Bring Greater Pressure

(3) If truce talks fail, it is possible the Allies will bring greater sea and air pressure against Red China.

(4) The United Nations' defense line in Korea is so strong that it will hold "under any foreseeable development that is likely to occur."

(5) Alaskan defenses are strong enough to hold against Soviet attack.

(6) If the United States had not gone into Korea to meet "naked aggression" then the United Nations would be "deader than a dodo."

Discussing atomic artillery, Collins said: "we have developed such a weapon now. The time as to when it would be practicable to put it into use on a large scale, I don't want to go into because — needless to say — any potential enemy would like to have that information."

Then the general went on to say atomic artillery "has been tested as a weapon."

Vote On Council Seat Prolonged

PARIS, Dec. 6 (AP)—The United Nations split about evenly—and indecisively—today on whether American-supported Greece or Soviet White Russia should get a seat on the Security Council.

After eight polls were taken by secret ballot, further voting was put off until next week. White Russia led Greece, 32 to 27, on the eighth ballot, but needed at least 40 of the 60 votes.

Five Are Killed In Huge Riot In Tehran Streets

Anti-Red Demonstrators Wreck Four Newspapers

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6 (AP) — Five thousand Communist-led youths, shouting death threats against Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, fought a wild five-hour battle in the streets today with police, troops and anti-Red civilians who totaled 10,000.

Five persons were reported killed and more than 200 injured.

The Communists started it with a defiant march on government buildings against orders forbidding demonstrations. The Communist Tudeh party itself is outlawed, but has flourished underground.

Five thousand alerted police and troops, with swinging clubs, thrusting bayonets and nationalist civilian backing, beat down the Communists in fighting that lasted from daylight until noon.

Then 5,000 yelling anti-Reds who had fought beside the authorities on a rampage of their own, with clubs and stones for smashing weapons.

Nationalist extremist squads ranged through the capital city, smashing at least 10 newspaper offices and some properties of non-Red political factions opposed to Mossadegh's government.

Hundreds of Communists were arrested. A Red-front peace partisan headquarters, pro-Communist newspapers and a theater were wrecked by the furious nationalists. The nationalists scrapped mounds of Red propaganda publications.

They were believed to be acting in reprisal for the Communist demonstrations and taking advantage of the Reds' absence in destroying the known underground quarters of the long - outlawed Communist Tudeh party.

In a fury after the battle, however, nationalists mobs also wrecked the offices of four newspapers that are non-Communist but opposed to Mossadegh's government.

Didn't Take Wife Out, She Gets Divorce

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6 (AP)—A marriage that lasted nearly 40 years was dissolved in common pleas court today. The wife said her husband had taken her out only once in the last 15 years.

The divorce went to Mrs. Amelia Petrone, 60, on the grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. Her attorney said an alimony settlement had been reached, for $37,500.

The husband, Nicholas A. Petrone, 65, a jewelry manufacturer, withdrew a cross petition and offered no contest.

Newsman Ordered From Iran For Writing "Lies"

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Iranian government today ordered New York Times Correspondent Michael Clark to get out of the country within 48 hours.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi announced the expulsion order, accusing Clark of writing lies and insults to the government of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Clark denied the charges.

United States Ambassador Loy Henderson went immediately to the ailing premier's bedside and, in a 45-minute conference, made what were described as "strong representations" against Clark's expulsion.

Mossadegh, it was learned, firmly refused to reconsider and said Clark must go.

American Actor Dies In London

LONDON, Dec. 6. (AP)—J. Edward Bromberg, American actor famed for his character roles, was found dead today in his apartment here. He would have been 48 years old on Christmas Day.

A leading player on Broadway and in many movies, Bromberg was starring on the stage here in "The Biggest Thief In Town."

Scotland Yard officers said death was due to natural causes.

Bromberg came to England six weeks ago and had been appearing in the play for four weeks.

The actor was born in Temesvar, Hungary, and was educated in New York, a graduate of City College. This was his first stage appearance in England. His last appearance on the New York stage was with Betty Field and Elliot Nugent in Elmer Rice's play, "Not For Children," last season.

Last June, Bromberg refused to answer questions put to him by the U. S. House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee. He had been named by other witnesses before the committee as a member of the Communist Party in Hollywood. At the time of his appearance before the committee in Washington, Bromberg's doctor said he had a rheumatic heart.

Telephone Union Backs President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — A CIO union of telephone workers today urged President Truman to run for another term.

The Communications Workers of America made public a letter from their president, Joseph A. Beirne, to Mr. Truman saying:

"Communications workers in CWA feel there is ample justification for supporting you. We hope you will agree to accept the great burden of the chief executive for another term."

Beirne recalled that the CWA endorsed Mr. Truman in 1948 by convention resolution even before he won the Democratic nomination. This was after a poll of CWA members.

"I will put it to the best possible use," she replied, and departed with her purchase saying no more.

35 Weapons Reported Put Out Of Action

SEOUL, Korea, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP) —The U. S. Fifth Air Force announced it destroyed 35 Communist field guns—enough to outfit an artillery regiment—in a special frontier attack Thursday, and battled Red jets over North Korea for the eleventh straight day.

One Red MIG-15 was listed as destroyed, one probably destroyed and another damaged in the day's air-to-air battles.

The ground war was quiet for the ninth straight day since armistice negotiators agreed on a provisional cease-fire line. The infantry had little to do except beat off an occasional Communist probe and duck Chinese shells.

It was to stop some of this continual Communist harassing fire that the U. S. Fifth Air Force made 107 ground-support flights Thursday in a special attack.

Preparations for the special assault began several days ago with a thorough photo reconnaissance of the whole western front, where the Red artillery has been particularly active.

At dawn Thursday the fighter-bombers went to work with rockets, napalm jellied gasoline and 500 and 1,000-pound bombs, some of them time-fused.

"There is every indication that our close support should substantially reduce the mortar and artillery fire being received by U. N. forces in this sector," said an Air Force briefing officer.

In its record-breaking 11 consecutive days of air fighting through Thursday, the Fifth Air Force shot down 33 Red planes, plus two probables and 32 damaged. Of the kills, 22 were MIG jets.

On the ground the only action of any size reported from midnight Wednesday to midnight Thursday was a three-hour fight east-southeast of Kumsong on the central front. Two Chinese platoons (possibly 80 men) drove a U. N. force from an advanced position at 4 a. m. The Allies retook the ground at 7 a. m.

Study Rate Hike

Justice Dept. May Seek Perjury Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Attorney General McGrath today launched a grand jury investigation into Abraham Teitelbaum's charges that two men, claiming friendship with federal officials, tried to shake him down for $500,000 with promises of a "tax fix".

Teitelbaum, a wealthy Chicago lawyer, told his sensational story to house tax probers Tuesday. He swore that Frank Nathan and Bert K. Naster led him to believe that they knew of a Washington clique which was on the lookout for "soft touches" like him, and that for half a million they could "make it easy" for him.

Story Is Denied

The story has been denied vigorously. Last night Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee conducting the inquiry, ordered a transcript of the testimony, including charges and denials, sent to the Justice Department for possible perjury prosecutions.

McGrath announced today:

"I have issued instructions this morning that all the testimony, reports and investigative materials of the King subcommittee relating to the Teitelbaum - Menkin - Nathan-Naster allegations be obtained immediately.

"We have also been in communication with United States Attorney Charles Irelan (of the District of Columbia) and have requested that this matter be presented to a grand jury within the next ten days."

The Menkin mentioned in McGrath's statement is Mrs. Shyrl Menkin, an attractive divorcee of Chicago and Miami, who supported the main parts of Teitelbaum's story. She is a friend of Teitelbaum's. Nathan said he knew her as "Mrs. Teitelbaum".

Nathan, a former Pittsburgh promoter, made a categorial denial of the shakedown story yesterday. He told the King committee it was "a dirty, filthy lie".

Two names mentioned by Teitelbaum as members of the alleged Washington clique were those of Charles Oliphant, chief counsel for the internal revenue bureau, and T. Lamar Caudle, formerly an assistant attorney general in charge of tax fraud prosecutions for the Justice Department. Both men have denied any connection with the alleged plot.

McGrath Defends Lawyers

Oliphant resigned yesterday, telling President Truman he was the target of "attacks, vilification, rumor and inneuendo beyond the point of human endurance".

Caudle was ousted by Mr. Truman Nov. 16 for "outside activities" deemed incompatible with his official duties.

Just before he announced the grand jury probe today, McGrath expressed complete confidence in the integrity of the government's legal staff. Speaking to a meeting of the Federal Bar Association, he defied those interested in special influence to try and tempt federal lawyers from their duty.

Larger Bone Banks Needed To Aid In Graft Operations

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6 (AP)—Bones salvaged quickly from accident victims and from operating rooms could prevent a lot of pain and disfigurement for people who need bone grafts, two Los Angeles doctors reported today.

Extra bone is needed in cases where joints are badly mangled, in instances where a section of bone has to be taken out because of disease or where lengthening has to be done.

They also are useful in fracture cases that heal too slowly and in patients where even normal healing may mean long weeks of pain or disability.

This calls for more bone banks, Dr. G. Mosser Taylor and Dr. Vernon L. Nickel of the College of Medical Evangelists told the American Medical Association.

There are several bone banks in existance but they are too few, Taylor and Nickel said. This means a "niggardly" use of material in many cases where there could have been plenty of it.

Frequently the extra bone is taken from some other part of the patient's own body. This requires a second operation and it often leaves an unsightly scar and more pain during recuperation.

Unlike flesh grafts, bone graft materials does not have to come from the patient himself or some near relative. Flesh grafts taken from other individuals usually will not "take."

However, in the case of bone the graft acts only as a framework and repository for bone-building minerals which will be deposited by the patient's system during the healing process. The graft then will slough off, leaving a clean, new growth, Drs. Taylor and Nickel said.

Bones from the bodies of accident victims and from amputations and other operations must be taken within four hours, put into sterile containers and kept deep frozen.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE "TAX FIX"

Prisoners Exchange Delays Peace Pact

MUNSAN, Korea, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators held out for a "price" Thursday on discussing exchange of allied prisoners of war in Korea. An official United Nations command spokesman called it "blackmail."

The Reds said Allied acceptance of a Communist plan for supervising an armistice must come before they would talk about prisoners.

They made this evident after Allied delegates presented an eight-point revised plan for supervision of a truce which offered some concessions to the Reds.

Reds Expected To Answer

The Communists were expected to answer the revised U. N. plan or submit a new one of their own at a fourth subcommittee meeting, scheduled for 11 a. m., today (9 p. m., Thursday, E.S.T.), at Panmunjom.

Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner senior U. N. sub-delegate, put the prisoner issue to the Reds Thursday, proposing to speed consideration by placing a second joint subcommittee at work on it immediately.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Song Cho, Red sub-delegate, heatedly replied:

"When there is no prospect for progress of the meeting, our senior delegate (Lt. Gen. Nam Il) will not give you any answer about the prisoners of war."

One U. N. press spokesman, Lt. Col. Howard S. Levie, who sat in on the session, told correspondents, "I think to all of us present that had somewhat the implications of blackmail."

The chief U. N. press spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, went further and flatly charged the Reds with "negotiatory blackmail."

The modified eight-point Allied plan called for behind-the-lines inspection by joint Red-Allied observation teams, as before. But it accepted the Communist view that the inspection should be confined to ports of entry agreed upon by both sides.

Eight Points Listed

1. All armed forces, ground sea and air, under the control of either side, shall cease all hostilities within 24 hours after the armistice agreement enters into effect.

2. All armed forces shall be withdrawn from the demilitarized zone 72 hours after the armistice becomes effective, except for police work mutually agreed upon by both sides.

3. There shall be a military armistice commission of mixed membership on an equal basis responsible for execution of the armistice terms. Its members shall be picked by the commander in chiefs of the U. N. command and the Chinese-Korean Communist forces.

4. (a) The military armistice commission, and its joint observer teams shall have authority to observe at ground, sea and air ports of entry and communication centers throughout all of Korea as mutually agreed by the two delegations, together with freedom of movement for the above teams over principal lines of communication throughout all of Korea.

Will Withdraw Forces

(b) The military armistice commission shall have the right of joint aerial observation and photo reconnaissance over all of Korea.

(c) The military commission shall have the right to complete joint observation of the demilitarized zone.

5. Neither side shall increase the level of units, personnel, war equipment, military facilities or material existing in Korea, at the time the armistice becomes effective.

6. Within 72 hours of the entering into effect of the armistice agreement, each side shall withdraw the

Six Giant Bombers Return From Round Trip To Africa

FORT WORTH, Dec. 6 (AP) —Six B-36 sky giants, designed to deliver the atom bomb more than 10,000 miles, returned to home base today after a non-stop training flight to Africa.

They came back to Carswell Air Force Base from one of several supercraft American Air Force bases being built around the world for global defense. The trip was about 4,984 miles each way.

It was the first time the big fellows had landed at the new field at Sidi Climane, French Morocco, according to Maj. L. A. Prouix, intelligence officer.

Crewmen called the flight routine. They sported bright red fezzes and brought excess francs they didn't have time to spend. When they arrived in Africa Sunday they changed their Yankee dollars into francs and then found they couldn't change their excess francs back into dollars. So they just invested most of them in perfumes, wallets, fezzes and hassock covers.

The wind-up of the training flight comes Saturday when some 200 maintenance and ground men return aboard three C-124 planes. They left yesterday and will make four stops en route.

The B-36's flew into home base in trail formation, spaced 15 minutes apart. They were in constant radio contact with each other during the 27-hour return flight. It took them 21 hours to fly over.

It was the second flight across the Atlantic for the strategic air command planes. They flew to England last Jan. 12 and returned Jan. 21.

Churchill Says Great Britain Cannot Complete Its Defense Program By 1953 As Planned

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said tonight Britain will be unable to complete her $3 billion defense program on schedule in 1953.

"We shall get on as fast as we can," Churchill told the House of Commons in reply to a question from laborite left-winger Aneurin Bevan.

"We shall do our best, But I should be very wrong not to warn the House that there will be a lag, as there has been in all munitions programs I have seen or been connected with."

Program Behind Schedule

Speaking as his own defense minister in debate, the Conservative chieftain referred to Bevan's prediction of last spring that Britain was trying to rearm too fast. Churchill told the House that even this year's $3,500,000,000 defense spending was behind schedule.

Bevan quit the Labor Government cabinet of Clement Attlee April 23 with a protest that Britain was trying to rearm faster than her economy and social services would permit.

Churchill told the House:

Britain has made considerable progress toward building an A-bomb.

There is less danger of World War III now than at any time since the Berlin air lift of 1948 because of "deterrents against aggression" created by the United States, Britain and other nations of the free West.

Some 250,000 armed service personnel in the nation's military establishments and depots have been ordered to be at "combat ready" to repeal any possible invasion by parachute troops.

A short training course for Britain's ex-servicemen will be held again next year along the same lines of the one the past summer.

Shelves Rifle Plan

Britain's plan to produce a new .280 caliber rifle will be shelved in the hope that agreement can be reached on a standard size rifle with the United States and Canada. The United States favors its own .30 caliber Garand.

Churchill still is not convinced the North Atlantic allies should appoint a supreme commander for the Atlantic Ocean. Churchill said the nationality of such a commander was secondary, although before he became prime minister he protested because the job was due to go to an American, Adm. William Fechteler.

ACTOR DIES — J. Edward Bromberg, 47 (above), was found dead yesterday in his London apartment. Bromberg came to England six weeks ago to star in a stage production. (See story below).

President Works On $85 Billion Budget For '53

Five persons were reported killed and more than 200 injured.

The Communists started it with a defiant march on government buildings against orders forbidding demonstrations. The Communist Tudeh party itself is outlawed, but has flourished underground.

Five thousand alerted police and troops, with swinging clubs, thrusting bayonets and nationalist civilian backing, beat down the Communists in fighting that lasted from daylight until noon.

Then 5,000 yelling anti-Reds who had fought beside the authorities on a rampage of their own, with clubs and stones for smashing weapons.

Nationalist extremist squads ranged through the capital city, smashing at least 10 newspaper offices and some properties of non-Red political factions opposed to Mossadegh's government.

Hundreds of Communists were arrested. A Red-front peace partisan headquarters, pro-Communist newspapers and a theater were wrecked by the furious nationalists. The nationalists scrapped mounds of Red propaganda publications.

They were believed to be acting in reprisal for the Communist demonstrations and taking advantage of the Reds' absence in destroying the known underground quarters of the long - outlawed Communist Tudeh party.

In a fury after the battle, however, nationalists mobs also wrecked the offices of four newspapers that are non-Communist but opposed to Mossadegh's government.

Didn't Take Wife Out, She Gets Divorce

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6 (AP)—A marriage that lasted nearly 40 years was dissolved in common pleas court today. The wife said her husband had taken her out only once in the last 15 years.

The divorce went to Mrs. Amelia Petrone, 60, on the grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. Her attorney said an alimony settlement had been reached, for $37,500.

The husband, Nicholas A. Petrone, 65, a jewelry manufacturer, withdrew a cross petition and offered no contest.

Buys Two Sirens

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 6 (AP)—Two sirens ordered recently by the Martinsburg fire department will serve a dual purpose: They will be used for both fire and civil defense alerts.

Newsman Ordered From Iran For Writing "Lies"

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Iranian government today ordered New York Times Correspondent Michael Clark to get out of the country within 48 hours.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi announced the expulsion order, accusing Clark of writing lies and insults to the government of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Clark denied the charges.

United States Ambassador Loy Henderson went immediately to the ailing premier's bedside and, in a 45-minute conference, made what were described as "strong representations" against Clark's expulsion.

Mossadegh, it was learned, firmly refused to reconsider and said Clark must go.

American Actor Dies In London

LONDON, Dec. 6. (AP)—J. Edward Bromberg, American actor famed for his character roles, was found dead today in his apartment here. He would have been 48 years old on Christmas Day.

A leading player on Broadway and in many movies, Bromberg was starring on the stage here in "The Biggest Thief In Town."

Scotland Yard officers said death was due to natural causes.

Bromberg came to England six weeks ago and had been appearing in the play for four weeks.

The actor was born in Temesvar, Hungary, and was educated in New York, a graduate of City College. This was his first stage appearance in England. His last appearance on the New York stage was with Betty Field and Elliot Nugent in Elmer Rice's play, "Not For Children," last season.

Last June, Bromberg refused to answer questions put to him by the U. S. House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee. He had been named by other witnesses before the committee as a member of the Communist Party in Hollywood. At the time of his appearance before the committee in Washington, Bromberg's doctor said he had a rheumatic heart.

Telephone Union Backs President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — A CIO union of telephone workers today urged President Truman to run for another term.

The Communications Workers of America made public a letter from their president, Joseph A. Beirne, to Mr. Truman saying:

"Communications workers in CWA feel there is ample justification for supporting you. We hope you will agree to accept the great burden of the chief executive for another term."

Beirne recalled that the CWA endorsed Mr. Truman in 1948 by convention resolution even before he won the Democratic nomination. This was after a poll of CWA members.

Good For Something

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—What is the best possible use for a rhinoceros hide?

A middle-aged woman, who declined to give her name, bought one for $3 today at a U. S. customs service auction of unclaimed and seized articles.

Curious reporters inquired what she intended to do with it.

Justice Dept. May Seek Perjury Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Attorney General McGrath today launched a grand jury investigation into Abraham Teitelbaum's charges that two men, claiming friendship with federal officials, tried to shake him down for $500,000 with promises of a "tax fix".

Teitelbaum, a wealthy Chicago lawyer, told his sensational story to house tax probers Tuesday. He swore that Frank Nathan and Bert K. Naster led him to believe that they knew of a Washington clique which was on the lookout for "soft touches" like him, and that for half a million they could "make it easy" for him.

Story Is Denied

The story has been denied vigorously. Last night Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee conducting the inquiry, ordered a transcript of the testimony, including charges and denials, sent to the Justice Department for possible perjury prosecutions.

McGrath announced today:

"I have issued instructions this morning that all the testimony, reports and investigative materials of the King subcommittee relating to the Teitelbaum - Menkin - Nathan-Naster allegations be obtained immediately.

"We have also been in communication with United States Attorney Charles Irelan (of the District of Columbia) and have requested that this matter be presented to a grand jury within the next ten days."

The Menkin mentioned in McGrath's statement is Mrs. Shyrl Menkin, an attractive divorcee of Chicago and Miami, who supported the main parts of Teitelbaum's story. She is a friend of Teitelbaum's. Nathan said he knew her as "Mrs. Teitelbaum".

Nathan, a former Pittsburgh promoter, made a categorial denial of the shakedown story yesterday. He told the King committee it was "a dirty, filthy lie".

Two names mentioned by Teitelbaum as members of the alleged Washington clique were those of Charles Oliphant, chief counsel for the internal revenue bureau, and T. Lamar Caudle, formerly an assistant attorney general in charge of tax fraud prosecutions for the Justice Department. Both men have denied any connection with the alleged plot.

McGrath Defends Lawyers

Oliphant resigned yesterday, telling President Truman he was the target of "attacks, vilification, rumor and inneuendo beyond the point of human endurance".

Caudle was ousted by Mr. Truman Nov. 16 for "outside activities" deemed incompatible with his official duties.

Just before he announced the grand jury probe today, McGrath expressed complete confidence in the integrity of the government's legal staff. Speaking to a meeting of the Federal Bar Association, he defied those interested in special influence to try and tempt federal lawyers from their duty.

Red Field Guns Destroyed By U. S. Air Force

35 Weapons Reported Put Out Of Action

SEOUL, Korea, Friday, Dec. 7 (AP)—The U. S. Fifth Air Force announced it destroyed 35 Communist field guns—enough to outfit an artillery regiment—in a special frontier attack Thursday, and battled Red jets over North Korea for the eleventh straight day.

One Red MIG-15 was listed as destroyed, one probably destroyed and another damaged in the day's air-to-air battles.

The ground war was quiet for the ninth straight day since armistice negotiators agreed on a provisional cease-fire line. The infantry had little to do except beat off an occasional Communist probe and duck Chinese shells.

It was to stop some of this continual Communist harassing fire that the U. S. Fifth Air Force made 107 ground-support flights Thursday in a special attack.

Preparations for the special assault began several days ago with a thorough photo reconnaissance of the whole western front, where the Red artillery has been particularly active.

At dawn Thursday the fighter-bombers went to work with rockets, napalm jellied gasoline and 500 and 1,000-pound bombs, some of them time-fused.

"There is every indication that our close support should substantially reduce the mortar and artillery fire being received by U. N. forces in this sector," said an Air Force briefing officer.

In its record-breaking 11 consecutive days of air fighting through Thursday, the Fifth Air Force shot down 33 Red planes, plus two probables and 32 damaged. Of the kills, 22 were MIG jets.

On the ground the only action of any size reported from midnight Wednesday to midnight Thursday was a three-hour fight east-southeast of Kumsong on the central front. Two Chinese platoons (possibly 80 men) drove a U. N. force from an advanced position at 4 a. m. The Allies retook the ground at 7 a. m.

Study Rate Hike

Grieved For Son, Dies

ELKHART, Ind., Dec. 6 (AP)—A grieving father fell dead today a short while before the funeral of a son killed in action in Korea.

Stefano Pugliese, 64, suffered a heart attack in his restaurant as he prepared to go to a church for the funeral services of his son, Pfc. Vito R. Pugliese.

Larger Bone Banks Needed To Aid In Graft Operations

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6 (AP)—Bones salvaged quickly from accident victims and from operating rooms could prevent a lot of pain and disfigurement for people who need bone grafts, two Los Angeles doctors reported today.

Extra bone is needed in cases where joints are badly mangled, in instances where a section of bone has to be taken out because of disease or where lengthening has to be done.

They also are useful in fracture cases that heal too slowly and in patients where even normal healing may mean long weeks of pain or disability.

This calls for more bone banks, Dr. G. Mosser Taylor and Dr. Vernon L. Nickel of the College of Medical Evangelists told the American Medical Association.

There are several bone banks in existance but they are too few, Taylor and Nickel said. This means a "niggardly" use of material in many cases where there could have been plenty of it.

Frequently the extra bone is taken from some other part of the patient's own body. This requires a second operation and it often leaves an unsightly scar and more pain during recuperation.

Unlike flesh grafts, bone graft materials does not have to come from the patient himself or some near relative. Flesh grafts taken from other individuals usually will not "take."

However, in the case of bone the graft acts only as a framework and repository for bone-building minerals which will be deposited by the patient's system during the healing process. The graft then will slough off, leaving a clean, new growth, Drs. Taylor and Nickel said.

Bones from the bodies of accident victims and from amputations and other operations must be taken within four hours, put into sterile containers and kept deep frozen.

Pet Owners Sue To Preserve Dog, Cat Cemetery

DES MOINES—(AP)—A suit involving the final resting place of "Patsy," "Sonny Boy" and other dogs and cats buried with headmarkers in a pet cemetery here was filed in District Court.

K. D. Buchwald, Des Moines, owner of a toy poodle, Patsy, buried in "Pets Rest" in 1944 has filed an action to prevent two Des Moines property owners from "molesting desecrating or destroying" the pet cemetery.

Named defendants are O. W. Spainhower who wishes to sell the property on which the cemetery is located, and Chester H. Burke, who wishes to buy it.

Buchwald said pet owners buried their animals at "Pets Rest" believing the place was permanent.

Burke said he planned to remove the markers from the cemetery if the sale is completed, but had no idea of digging up the several hundred dogs, cats and other pets buried there.

"Patsy was like a member of the family," Buchwald declared, "and when she died it was out of respect for the pleasure she had given us more than anything else that we had her buried at Pets Rest. We purchased a stone marker for her grave.

One marker is for "Dipto, My Pet Goat."

Another pet owner, Mrs. Julia Briel, said that she was "very much upset" over the possible fate of the grave of her dog "Sonny Boy who died 11 years ago."

She said the granite tombstone she bought for the dog's grave was the "biggest and first granite tombstone" in the cemetery. It is inscribed, she said, with "Sonny Boy, Julia Briel's Little Pal."

"The Authority on Authorities"

TAKE IT OUT OR NOT?

WHETHER to leave in your partner's business double, or to take it out, is a problem that confronts all of us once in a while. It is impossible to lay down any inflexible rule, but the factors to be considered are clearcut. First, if you fear the opponent may make his doubled contract, lean toward the takeout. Second, if you feel your side can make the contract into which you would take it out, for probably more points than the double could produce, then take it out. Lacking these, leave it in. One guide is the answer to the question of whether your partner's double was made after you had pretty clearly shown him what kind of hand you hold.

East's double of the spades caused North to lead the second suit called by his partner, clubs. His 2 drew the Q and A, and South returned the heart 8, since North had made the first business double of the deal in that suit. The Q won the 10, the A was scored and the 7 was led back, for dummy to ruff with the 8 and South with the J to beat the contract one trick. West took the rest, but was not duly penitent, saying "that doggone over-ruff by South is the only thing that beat me."

It was East's turn to chime in and say North's double of hearts virtually marked South as able to ruff or over-ruff the suit. East furthermore showed that the 3-Spades which he doubled could have been beaten, no matter how South played the hand. A spade lead to the K, followed by the A and a small one would have made it impossible for South to ruff any diamonds in dummy. As the cards lay, he would have lost two tricks in diamonds though he discarded one on the heart A after finessing the Q, plus one in clubs and two in spades.

East's most telling point was that he had doubled after West made clear the kind of hand he held, and that West therefore should have left it in.

TAKE IT OUT OR NOT?

WHETHER to leave in your partner's business double, or to take it out, is a problem that confronts all of us once in a while. It is impossible to lay down any inflexible rule, but the factors to be considered are clearcut. First, if you fear the opponent may make his doubled contract, lean toward the takeout. Second, if you feel your side can make the contract into which you would take it out, for probably more points than the double could produce, then take it out. Lacking these, leave it in. One guide is the answer to the question of whether your partner's double was made after you had pretty clearly shown him what kind of hand you hold.

East's double of the spades caused North to lead the second suit called by his partner, clubs. His 2 drew the Q and A, and South returned the heart 8, since North had made the first business double of the deal in that suit. The Q won the 10, the A was scored and the 7 was led back, for dummy to ruff with the 8 and South with the J to beat the contract one trick. West took the rest, but was not duly penitent, saying "that doggone over-ruff by South is the only thing that beat me."

It was East's turn to chime in and say North's double of hearts virtually marked South as able to ruff or over-ruff the suit. East furthermore showed that the 3-Spades which he doubled could have been beaten, no matter how South played the hand. A spade lead to the K, followed by the A and a small one would have made it impossible for South to ruff any diamonds in dummy. As the cards lay, he would have lost two tricks in diamonds though he discarded one on the heart A after finessing the Q, plus one in clubs and two in spades.

East's most telling point was that he had doubled after West made clear the kind of hand he held, and that West therefore should have left it in.

The Crown Of St. Stefan

Negotiations for the release of four United States airmen forced down in Hungary are bound to be complicated by Hungarian demands for the return of the historic crown of St. Stefan. Possession of the crown, recovered by U. S. forces in Germany in World War II, is perhaps the greatest bone of contention between this country and the Communist government of Hungary.

Hungary had asked for the ezent korona (Holy Crown) as part of the ransom for Robert A. Vogeler, Jr., American business man imprisoned on espionage charges in November, 1949. Vogeler and a British associate were convicted by a Hungarian People's Court in February, 1950.

When Vogeler was finally released in April of this year, the State Department said that negotiations for his freedom had been on the verge of success in June of the preceding year. "Premature publicity" and "entirely untrue reports" that return of the crown of St. Stefan would be a condition for Vogeler's release caused the 1950 negotiations to break down. Up until that time, "the subject of the crown had never arisen in connection with the Vogeler negotiations."

Thereafter Hungary raised its price for Vogeler's freedom to include return of the crown and termination of Voice of America broadcasts to Hungary. When the deal by which Vogeler was released was consummated, the State Department said a demand for the crown had been rejected.

The conditions to which the U. S. agreed were: reopening of Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland, lifting of a ban on travel in Hungary by U. S. citizens, return of Hungarian property—not including the crown—looted by the Nazis in World War II. The U. S. agreed also to end relays of Voice of America broadcasts through Munich to Hungary. Future broadcasts would use a channel that did not interfere with transmissions by the Hungarian radio.

Officially no more was heard of the crown until November 24, 1951, five days after the U. S. plane had been forced down, when Hungary charged the U. S. with reneging on terms of the Vogeler agreement. Only an "insignificant part" of Nazi-seized possessions had been returned by the U. S., the Hungarian government said. The communication included a long list of other complaints as well as a new demand for the historic crown as "property" of the Hungarian nation.

Hungarians attach much importance to the crown of St. Stefan as a symbol of Hungary's sovereignty. The upper part of the crown, made of gold plates supporting a tilted cross, was given by Pope Sylvester II to King Stefan I, Hungary's first Christian monarch, nearly 1,000 years ago. The lower part—a cold cap circled by precious stones and religious and royal images—was given to King Geza I of Hungary by the Byzantine ruler, Michael Ducas, and his son nearly 900 years ago.

When Lajos Kossuth, Hungarian nationalist, fled the country temporarily in 1848, he took the crown with him to prevent the Habsburgs from being crowned as Hungary's legal kings. When in Hungarian possession, the crown was guarded night and day in a special building near the Royal Palace. Fifty Hungarian kings have been enthroned under this cap of sovereignty.

So much national pride is invested in the crown that Hungarians, it is said, would forgive many of the hardships imposed by any regime which succeeded in arranging for its return. The Vatican, however, views the crown as a symbol of hundreds of years of cooperation between Popes and Hungarian kings and would bitterly oppose giving it into the hands of a Communist government.

Fuzzy Thinking

A Mexican named Agapita Gallegos split the United States Supreme Court into fragments the other day. Six of the eight justices who took part in the case said his manslaughter conviction by a Nebraska court should stand. Two said it shouldn't—and implied heatedly that this was an American version of the Vogeler trial. Two of the majority wrote a separate opinion attacking the minority view.

It's not especially remarkable when the present Supreme Court divides on a case before it. But the court had only to decide whether Gallegos had been convicted largely on a confession obtained from him during "illegal" detention. It is the sort of technicality lawyers quibble about when they have no case and see their clients headed toward justice.

Gallegos was arrested in El Paso, Tex., on request of immigration authorities. He gave police a statement which led to the finding of the body of his common law wife on a farm near Minitare, Neb. Taken to Scotts Bluff County, he was tried and convicted. He appealed—not on the ground that he was innocent, but that he was not arraigned promptly on arrest and that 27 days went by before the court named an attorney to defend him.

Justice Reed's majority decision said a study of the whole case showed that Nebraska had not violated standards of decency or justice." But Justice Black, with Justice Douglas joining him, pointed out that Gallegos could neither speak nor understand English and declared that the Constitution had been violated.

Apparently, if the court had followed the reasoning of Justices Black and Douglas, a precedent would have been established that a murderer who cannot speak or read the English language deserves clemency.

Operation Dirt

Merely to read a list of the charges laid against the 31 (last count) Internal Revenue employes who have been discharged or asked to resign is to get a terrifying picture of the low estate to which government service has fallen under Harry S. Truman.

Filing false returns, improper solicitation of taxpayers, misappropriation of property, improper acceptance of fees—these are but a few of the offenses which at long last have stirred the bureau to action.

As the public studies this latest slimy chapter in a sordid story, there is growing amazement that it took the Bureau of Internal Revenue all this time to weed out some of the malefactors, and then only after it had been prodded by outsiders.

Senator Williams of Delaware, who started the current probe after he had been billed for income taxes which he had paid, says there is still a great deal more housecleaning to be done. In his efforts to get all the dirt out of the tax collection system he will have the full support of all citizens who do not subscribe to the theory that government is, and should be, a racket.

As usual in all these exposes, the trail is leading ever closer to the White House. T. Lamar Caudle, whose didoes as chief prosecutor of tax frauds in the Department of Justice are currently being aired, was a top assistant to Attorney General McGrath. McGrath, of course, is in Truman's cabinet.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

Hormone Tablets In Arthritis

Cortisone and corticotrophin (ACTH) have now been used in the treatment of arthritis for more than two years. The original claim of the discoverers still stands: the hormones suppress but do not cure the disease. Symptoms are held in abeyance so long as the medication is taken.

The response is best in rheumatoid arthritis and worst in osteoarthritis. The latter is the type that attacks older men and women as a result of wear and tear. The weight bearing joints, such as hips, knees, and back, are involved chiefly. Discomfort comes and goes with the weather; the majority of victims feel better when the sun is shining and the humidity low. The heating pad is their friend and when pain is severe an aspirin or two will help them over the hump.

However, rheumatoid arthritis favors the young and middle-aged. It spares no joints although those in the hands, wrists, elbows, knees, ankles, and feet are preferred. The affected areas become red, swollen, and inflamed and—prior to the advent of the hormonal treatment—the condition was considered of streptococcal origin. This still may be true but the dramatic influence of the new medications has opened up the possibility of many other causes.

Because the disease has a tendency to become chronic, cortisone and corticotrophin, to be effective, must be given continuously. In this way, rheumatoid arthritis is unlike scarlet fever, for example, which runs its course and subsides spontaneously. It is this sustained administration that concerns the medical profession because we do not know what effect prolonged therapy will have on the arthritic. Many of these sufferers have reported for checkups at periodic intervals over the last three years and have run the gamut of all the blood tests now available. The results have been normal. The reactions that occurred were evaluated and when deemed serious the drug was stopped temporarily. In this respect the hormones are obliging; after they are discontinued the adverse effects disappear without leaving everlasting changes.

These drugs remain expensive. Some relief came when cortisone tablets were placed on the market; this eliminated the necessity of having a nurse or physician administer the hormone hypodermically once, twice, or three times daily. Cortisone is just as valuable when used orally and, of the last 100 cases of rheumatoid arthritis given cortisone tablets at the Mayo clinic, all but one obtained a satisfactory response.

The side effects were similar to those that follow hypodermic use; they appeared in 54 of the 100 patients. The majority showed evidence of mental stimulation, with excessive alertness and elation. In others, roundness of the face was noted because of the temporary accumulation of fat in the cheeks and chin. An equal number had puffiness of the ankles as well as signs of a potassium deficiency (weakness and fatigability). Increased sweating, hot flushes, a ravenous appetite, and menstrual disorders also occurred. Unwanted hair grew on the face and chest of some of the women. With each passing month we learn more and more about these hormones.

TOMORROW. The prognosis evaluates health and longevity.

DRY FEET

D. F. writes: Since my feet stopped sweating two years ago I don't feel like myself. Is there any way I can make them sweat again?

REPLY

I do not doubt your word but have you had your sweat glands tested to make certain that they are not working? After all, this would be a rare disturbance except after a sympathectomy or the development of a disturbance of the autonomic nervous system.

NO FUN

Mrs. T. writes: I'm 70 years old and my doctor has cut out coffee and smoking as part of the dietary management of diverticulitis. I miss my java and butts and wonder whether I can ever go back to them.

REPLY

I'm in no mood today to get into an argument with your physician. Consult him again and, when the infection subsides, he may remove these restrictions.

HEMORRHOIDS

N. T. writes: Am a 46 year old woman who has had hemorrhoids for 12 years. I know they should be taken care of. Would you suggest surgery of diathermy?

REPLY

Both are recognized methods of treatment. This type of diathermy is more than heat treatment; it is used as an alternate to cutting.

RELAX AFTER EATING

J. Y. writes: Is it better for an older person to lie down and relax after a meal, or keep moving?

REPLY

Never pass up the opportunity to relax. Lying down is good provided you have the time and it does not interfere with sleeping at night.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Another Mink Coat Has Been In The Justice Department; Alien Property Custodian Under Scrutiny; Friends Get Rewarded Through Alien Property

WASHINGTON — Another mink coat has been dancing around the Justice Department — or, rather, the ghost of a mink coat. It's one of these will-o'-the-wisp, now-you-see-it-now-you-don't-see-it garments that was seen on the wife of a Justice Department official about a year ago, but which is seen no more.

The coat, beautiful as it was supposed to be, is probably not as important as some of the political maneuvering around the Alien Property Custodian. The general public may not realize it, but the Alien Property Custodian handles millions of dollars worth of property seized from the Germans, Japanese and Italians during the war.

However, a mink coat worn by the wife of a government official these days is getting to be like arson, sabotage or treason, so I went down to the Justice Department to investigate.

The husband of the lady, Harold Baynton, the Alien Property Custodian, I had never met before. He seemed like a nice guy and willing to open up every detail of his life; so I felt sort of like Mr. District Attorney, prying into his wife's wardrobe, especially since he was at that time under investigation by GOP Senator Wiley of Wisconsin.

Senator Wiley, I had learned earlier, had taken an investigatory interest in the Alien Property Custodian after his brother-in-law, R. D. Jenkins, had been turned down on a case involving the International Silk Guild, of which Jenkins is an official. The Silk Guild wanted to collect several hundred thousand dollars from the U. S. Government, which the Alien Property Custodian seized during the war as Japanese funds. The Silk Guild claimed they were not Japanese funds, but their own funds. However, the Alien Property Custodian finally ruled they were funds which the Japanese had set aside for advertising, and therefore belonged to Uncle Sam as alien property, not to the Silk Guild and to Senator Wiley's brother-in-law.

Pay To Old Roommate

However, this occurred some time ago, and today I think Senator Wiley is right in a general investigation of the Alien Property Custodian. Meanwhile, I proceeded with the investigation of Mrs. Baynton's mink coat.

The mink coat, I had heard, was given to Mrs. Baynton by Harold Horowitz, who draws $27,600 as president of E. Leitz Co., the former German firm which makes Leica cameras. Since this alien company is now operated by the Alien Property Custodian, Horowitz keeps his job partly at the pleasure of Mr. Baynton.

Originally Horowitz got his job through Herbert Bergson, a former assistant attorney general, who turned out to have been Horowitz's roommate at Harvard Law School. Running the Leitz Co. is only a half-time job, so $27,600 is pretty good pay, though in fairness to Horowitz it should be noted that when he took the firm over, it was on the verge of bankruptcy. Now it's making real dough.

Horowitz also gets an expense account of about $15,000 a year, and Baynton's predecessor, David Bazelon, now a federal judge, questioned some of his expense items, including a reported $2,000 for a trip to California. In fact, Bazelon, on one occasion, picked up the phone and instructed Horowitz not to spend a cent more without his okay.

Incidentally, the profits from alien property go to U. S. veterans who were imprisoned by the Japs and Germans, so every dollar paid out on expenses means that much less for them.

Baynton told me, however, that he examined Horowitz's expenses and found them to be okay.

Another interesting angle is that Horowitz, having got his job as president of the Leica camera concern through his old roommate, Herbert Bergson, is now paying aforesaid Bergson $1,000 a month as a legal retainer, Bergson now being in private law practice.

Baynton explained that the Leitz Co. was careful to observe the Fair Trade Act, and Bergson, former assistant attorney general in charge of the Antitrust Division, is an expert on this.

Mrs. Baynton's Mink

After going into all these things, I came round to the less agreeable subject of the mink coat. I pointed out that Mrs. Baynton had been seen in a mink coat last winter and it was reported that the coat had been given her by Horowitz in return for government favors given him by Mr. Baynton.

Mr. Baynton admitted that his wife did have a mink coat last Christmas, but had only borrowed it.

"She felt she deserved a mink coat," he explained. "We were in the full flush of just being appointed assistant attorney general, and I guess it went to our heads.

"I owe quite a bit to my wife," Baynton continued. "When we moved here from the West to finish my law degree, I got a job at $1,200 a year and we lived on my wife's money. In fact, she used up most of her money before I finished studying law. However, we still had some bonds saved up, and we could have bought her a mink coat, in fact we even figured on buying one wholesale. But then last Christmas she borrowed one."

I asked if she had got it from Horowitz, and Baynton admitted that she borrowed it from Mrs. Horowitz.

"When did she send it back?"

Pearson's Mean Streak

"Wasn't that about the time Merle Young was getting all that publicity on his wife's $8,000 mink?" I asked, yielding to what my wife calls "that mean streak" in me.

Mr. Baynton denied this. He said his wife had sent it back before the furor over the Merle Young mink. He had been embarrassed, he said, because his wife told various people she had found the coat under the Christmas tree.

"It was a beautiful coat," he sighed, "and you know how women are — especially when their husbands have an important new job for the first time."

I said I did know. I didn't tell him, but I remembered one occasion when my wife got quite, quite irritated — so much so that I finally went out and bought her a fur coat.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Truman has been urged by political advisers and has for several days been giving consideration to the idea of deputizing J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to make a thorough inquiry into any and all charges of wrongdoing leveled at government officials. It would amount to an order "to clean up" the federal government so as to assure the people that everything that can be done has been done without possibility of a political cover-up.

In addition, the President has had in mind the appointment of two special prosecutors—one a prominent Republican and the other a prominent Democrat—who would follow through and prosecute any or all persons turned up in the investigation by Mr. Hover.

Presumably the full facilities of the FBI will be made available for the purpose.

When the suggestion was first made, it is understood that there was a question raised as to whether this wouldn't look as if Attorney General Howard McGrath was being by-passed, because the head of the Department of Justice is responsible for all law-enforcement matters of a criminal nature.

May Recommend It

It has been rumored, too, that the attorney general didn't like the plan and felt that he would rather resign than accept it, but the rumor arose at a time when the plan was not fully formulated.

It now has been reported that Mr. McGrath himself might recommend the action because there would be two special prosecutors who would hold the title of special assistant attorney general and they would receive the FBI reports and transmit requests for action to any grand juries which become part of the clean-up procedure.

As it stands today, there would be no reflection on the attorney general if two special prosecutors were appointed. It is necesary, if they are to have a free hand, virtually to divorce them from supervision by the attorney general. Technically they would become part of his office but would report to the President.

It will be recalled that the late Harlan F. Stone, who was attorney general in the cabinet of President Coolidge, Republican, didn't object to the appointment of special prosecutors—Owen J. Roberts, Republican, and former Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat—when a clean-up of the Teapot Dome scandals arising under the Republican Harding administration was ordered by Mr. Coolidge early in 1924.

Roberts Is Respected

The name of Mr. Roberts has bobbed up again as a prospective appointee to the two-man team of prosecutors to be chosen by President Truman. Mr. Roberts resigned from the Supreme Court of the United States, declining to accept the status of "retirement" because it might bring him back to service on the bench and prevent him from becoming interested in public movements. He, therfore, is eligible for the special duty, as he is not receiving any compensation from the judicial branch of the government. Whether or not he would accept appointment as a special prosecutor is not known at this writing. But he is familiar enough with the problem from his 1924 experience and is one of the best known and respected names in the American Bar.

Other names have been suggested from the Democratic side, though it is conceded that the object is not to get men who have been active politically but merely to give assurance to everybody that the inquiry is bipartisan. The President has been told that the prestige of J. Edgar Hoover in the country is so high that the mere fact of his appointment to make a comprehensive inquiry is enough to give assurance to the American people that Mr. Truman is doing everything within his power to get at the bottom of the charges of corruption and the circumstances surrounding the forced resignation of officials in the Treasury Department and the Department of Justice.

It is a political axiom that if the administration in power acts with sufficient vigor and prosecutes the guilty, the people will tend to applaud the action and hence the political effects of the scandals themselves may be mitigated. Whether this will or will not happen in this instance remains to be seen, but that's the purpose behind the effort to set up a nonpolitical and objective prosecution with the full backing of the President to let the chips fall where they may.

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSK

The Processing Country

L. P. Beria, probably Stalin's successor or, at any rate, important enough to be so regarded, in his report on Soviet Russia's progress, gives this data concerning the steel output of that country:

"Compared with last year, the country will produce 2,700,000 tons more pig iron, approximately 4,000,000 tons more steel and 3,000,000 tons more rolled steel. The Soviet Union's present steel output is about equal to the aggregate output of Britain, France, Belgium and Sweden."

This means that Soviet Russia will produce something like nearly 35,000,000 tons of steel, if the figures are correct. Even if this total requires considerable modification, Soviet Russia is now the second largest producer of steel in the world. These figures do not include production in satellite countries. (If we discount the figures given and call it between 30 and 35 million tons, the conclusions will be the same.)

As we live in an historic period, during which the importance of nations depends upon their accesses to steel, these figures are to be considered in relationship to the balance of power between the United States and Soviet Russia. During the years of World War II, the United States used about 72,500,000 tons of steel from December, 1941, to September, 1945, for direct war purposes. In 1951, the United States produced for all purposes approximately 105,000,000 tons.

An interesting phase of this situation is the fact that the "processing nation" can no longer exist. From the 18th Century until World War I, Great Britain was the dominant economic power because it was the principal processing nation of the world.

True, Great Britain lacked raw materials except coal and lime, but it was able to import metals, fibers and other raw materials from North and South America, Asia, Australia, Africa and by skilled and advanced manufacturing processes, to produce finished products which it sold to the continent of Europe and even to some of the countries from which it obtained the raw materials.

The "processing" not only gave work to the British people in manufactures but it developed banking, exchange, insurance and shipping to tremendous proportions. It required the British to maintain an enormous navy, to develop a colonial empire in many parts of the world, and to adhere strictly to a policy of a balance of power.

It was inevitable that other countries would seek to free themselves from economic and political colonialism. The United States, early in its history, became a manufacturing country with the advantage of possessing raw materials within its boundaries and with the advantage of space and an ever-increasing population reinforced by immigration.

Germany, after 1870, rushed in manufacturing, developing a t mendous chemical and elec industry, but actually lacking r materials. The struggle betwe Germany and Great Britain f raw materials and markets led World War I. Into this compe tive situation entered Japan du ing and after World War I and, time, Japan was competing n only with Great Britain but wi the United States and Germany.

Economic nationalism is now characteristic of nearly all cou tries. One of the largest steel plan in the world is in India; the larg oil processing plant in the world in Iran. And Soviet Russia h emerged as the largest steel p cessor in Europe.

This shift in production is o of the explanations, and not t least important one, for the red tion in status of some of the lea ing countries of the 19th Centu For instance, Great Britain's d pendence upon the United Sta is not due entirely to the effe of war; that dependence has be developing since World War I wh economic nationalism began to i fluence British economy detrimen ally. The deterioration of Gr Britain's position as a "processi nation" has had a tremendous e fect upon Great Britain's politi power.

The Marshall Plan did no arrest this deterioration. EC was employed to achieve tha end but ECA could not arres an historical process that move swiftly in one direction—economic nationalism.

The problem really comes do to this: Will the United Sta year by year, sustain Great Brit by making good the deficits in Gr Britain's balance of trade? Th deficits can be made good by i ports from Great Britain into United States or by subsidies. T British would prefer to do it their traditional method of act as the middleman in East-W trade. But that is a tempor palliative because the East, t prefers economic nationalism.

The Burning Madhouse

TEHRAN, Iran

This place is rather like a madhouse in which a fire has been started. The occupants, in their moments of lucidity, are perfectly aware that the madhouse is burning, and that all will shortly be consumed in the flames. But all are paralyzed—by irrational fears and hates, delusions of grandeur, or simple inertia and stupidity — so that no one is capable of putting the fire out, while there is still time.

There is not a great deal of time. The best current guess is that the fire in the Iranian insane asylum is likely to get out of control before the winter ends, probably some time in February. For at about this time, according to present projections, the Iranian government should run completely out of money. The Iranian government will thus lack the means to govern.

For the last several months the government of Dr. Mohammed Mossedegh, the chief incendiary in the Iranian madhouse, has kept itself going by a curious economci process, rather like a cow drinking its own milk in order not to starve. The government has been living off about fourteen million pounds sterling, which previously formed part of the backing of the Iranian currency.

This reserve has been used as a substitute for the lost oil revenues. It has been used to pay Iran's vast hordes of incredibly incompetent officials, as well as the army, the internal security forces, and the 70,000 idle oil workers. But now the cow is, inevitably, going dry. In a matter of a few weeks, the last pound in the sterling reserve will be spent.

For some weeks more, the Iranian government will undoubtedly be able to keep going somehow. Loans and forced taxation are planned—but it is incredibly difficult to separate a rich Iranian from his money, and most Iranians with any loose cash are already sending everything they can scrape together abroad. The government can dip into the gold reserve and the crown jewels which also form part of the backing for the currency. But of course this process will quite soon reduce the Iranian currency to utter worthlessness and the Iranian economy to complete chaos.

Government Will Be Broke

Thus, bar a miracle—which only take the form of Ameri financial intervention—the day certainly coming when the Iran government will be absolutely broke. No one, of course, can precisely what is likely to hap then. But it is not too difficult guess what might happen.

There will certainly be mass employment and mass misery the cities, where the hordes government officials will be tur loose, and in the oil areas wh the 70,000 oil workers will sudde find themselves without any me of livelihood at all. This circu stance will in itself give an er mous impetus to the Tudeh, outlawed Communist party, the really organized and discipli political force in Iran.

This will happen at a time, mo over, when the internal secu forces, including the army, will tending to disintegrate, simply lack of pay. There are those who believe that in these circu stances a sudden coup d'etat the Tudeh, more or less on pattern of Czechoslovakia, will the most likely outcome.

Others consider more probabl somewhat gradual and orderly sh ing of this strategically country into the Soviet orbit. Pa because Mossadegh is sure of tory anyway, and partly becaus an odd streak of idealism in peculiar character, the forthcom elections are expected to be, if exactly free, at least less neatly ranged in advance than Irar elections habitually are. It is considered entirely likely tha number of adherents of the Tu party, doubtless wearing tra parent false whiskers, will be ele to the Iranian Majlis.

Top Soviet Objective

This will give the Tudeh the toehold which it has so far lac In the period of economic which lies ahead, the Tudeh m thus gain power gradually, by or less peaceful means. Assum —and it is a reasonable assump —a Soviet policy of all aid to Tudeh short of open, armed in vention, the Communist take- here might be both relatively violent and very rapid.

It is not possible, of cours predict either the timing or precise form of a Soviet victory this vital country. But it is certain as such things can be Iran is doomed to economic lapse and chaos. And it is absolu certain that the capture of I has been a top priority Soviet jective ever since V. M. Mol demanded "the Persian Gulf a from the unspeakable Joachim Ribbentrop, as the Soviet Uni share of the loot during the of the Nazi-Soviet pact. The da to Iran is at least as real as the danger to Greece in the spr of 1947.

The Crown Of St. Stefan

Negotiations for the release of four United States airmen forced down in Hungary are bound to be complicated by Hungarian demands for the return of the historic crown of St. Stefan. Possession of the crown, recovered by U. S. forces in Germany in World War II, is perhaps the greatest bone of contention between this country and the Communist government of Hungary.

Hungary had asked for the ezent korona (Holy Crown) as part of the ransom for Robert A. Vogeler, Jr., American business man imprisoned on espionage charges in November, 1949. Vogeler and a British associate were convicted by a Hungarian People's Court in February, 1950.

When Vogeler was finally released in April of this year, the State Department said that negotiations for his freedom had been on the verge of success in June of the preceding year. "Premature publicity" and "entirely untrue reports" that return of the crown of St. Stefan would be a condition for Vogeler's release caused the 1950 negotiations to break down. Up until that time, "the subject of the crown had never arisen in connection with the Vogeler negotiations."

Thereafter Hungary raised its price for Vogeler's freedom to include return of the crown and termination of Voice of America broadcasts to Hungary. When the deal by which Vogeler was released was consummated, the State Department said a demand for the crown had been rejected.

The conditions to which the U. S. agreed were: reopening of Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland, lifting of a ban on travel in Hungary by U. S. citizens, return of Hungarian property—not including the crown—looted by the Nazis in World War II. The U. S. agreed also to end relays of Voice of America broadcasts through Munich to Hungary. Future broadcasts would use a channel that did not interfere with transmissions by the Hungarian radio.

Officially no more was heard of the crown until November 24, 1951, five days after the U. S. plane had been forced down, when Hungary charged the U. S. with reneging on terms of the Vogeler agreement. Only an "insignificant part" of Nazi-seized possessions had been returned by the U. S., the Hungarian government said. The communication included a long list of other complaints as well as a new demand for the historic crown as "property" of the Hungarian nation.

Hungarians attach much importance to the crown of St. Stefan as a symbol of Hungary's sovereignty. The upper part of the crown, made of gold plates supporting a tilted cross, was given by Pope Sylvester II to King Stefan I, Hungary's first Christian monarch, nearly 1,000 years ago. The lower part—a cold cap circled by precious stones and religious and royal images—was given to King Geza I of Hungary by the Byzantine ruler, Michael Ducas, and his son nearly 900 years ago.

When Lajos Kossuth, Hungarian nationalist, fled the country temporarily in 1848, he took the crown with him to prevent the Habsburgs from being crowned as Hungary's legal kings. When in Hungarian possession, the crown was guarded night and day in a special building near the Royal Palace. Fifty Hungarian kings have been enthroned under this cap of sovereignty.

So much national pride is invested in the crown that Hungarians, it is said, would forgive many of the hardships imposed by any regime which succeeded in arranging for its return. The Vatican, however, views the crown as a symbol of hundreds of years of cooperation between Popes and Hungarian kings and would bitterly oppose giving it into the hands of a Communist government.

Fuzzy Thinking

A Mexican named Agapita Gallegos split the United States Supreme Court into fragments the other day. Six of the eight justices who took part in the case said his manslaughter conviction by a Nebraska court should stand. Two said it shouldn't—and implied heatedly that this was an American version of the Vogeler trial. Two of the majority wrote a separate opinion attacking the minority view.

It's not especially remarkable when the present Supreme Court divides on a case before it. But the court had only to decide whether Gallegos had been convicted largely on a confession obtained from him during "illegal" detention. It is the sort of technicality lawyers quibble about when they have no case and see their clients headed toward justice.

Gallegos was arrested in El Paso, Tex., on request of immigration authorities. He gave police a statement which led to the finding of the body of his common law wife on a farm near Minitare, Neb. Taken to Scotts Bluff County, he was tried and convicted. He appealed—not on the ground that he was innocent, but that he was not arraigned promptly on arrest and that 27 days went by before the court named an attorney to defend him.

Justice Reed's majority decision said a study of the whole case showed that Nebraska had not violated standards of decency or justice." But Justice Black, with Justice Douglas joining him, pointed out that Gallegos could neither speak nor understand English and declared that the Constitution had been violated.

Apparently, if the court had followed the reasoning of Justices Black and Douglas, a precedent would have been established that a murderer who cannot speak or read the English language deserves clemency.

Operation Dirt

Merely to read a list of the charges laid against the 31 (last count) Internal Revenue employes who have been discharged or asked to resign is to get a terrifying picture of the low estate to which government service has fallen under Harry S. Truman.

Filing false returns, improper solicitation of taxpayers, misappropriation of property, improper acceptance of fees—these are but a few of the offenses which at long last have stirred the bureau to action.

As the public studies this latest slimy chapter in a sordid story, there is growing amazement that it took the Bureau of Internal Revenue all this time to weed out some of the malefactors, and then only after it had been prodded by outsiders.

Senator Williams of Delaware, who started the current probe after he had been billed for income taxes which he had paid, says there is still a great deal more housecleaning to be done. In his efforts to get all the dirt out of the tax collection system he will have the full support of all citizens who do not subscribe to the theory that government is, and should be, a racket.

As usual in all these exposes, the trail is leading ever closer to the White House. T. Lamar Caudle, whose didoes as chief prosecutor of tax frauds in the Department of Justice are currently being aired, was a top assistant to Attorney General McGrath. McGrath, of course, is in Truman's cabinet.

Hormone Tablets In Arthritis

Cortisone and corticotrophin (ACTH) have now been used in the treatment of arthritis for more than two years. The original claim of the discoverers still stands: the hormones suppress but do not cure the disease. Symptoms are held in abeyance so long as the medication is taken.

The response is best in rheumatoid arthritis and worst in osteoarthritis. The latter is the type that attacks older men and women as a result of wear and tear. The weight bearing joints, such as hips, knees, and back, are involved chiefly. Discomfort comes and goes with the weather; the majority of victims feel better when the sun is shining and the humidity low. The heating pad is their friend and when pain is severe an aspirin or two will help them over the hump.

However, rheumatoid arthritis favors the young and middle-aged. It spares no joints although those in the hands, wrists, elbows, knees, ankles, and feet are preferred. The affected areas become red, swollen, and inflamed and—prior to the advent of the hormonal treatment—the condition was considered of streptococcal origin. This still may be true but the dramatic influence of the new medications has opened up the possibility of many other causes.

Because the disease has a tendency to become chronic, cortisone and corticotrophin, to be effective, must be given continuously. In this way, rheumatoid arthritis is unlike scarlet fever, for example, which runs its course and subsides spontaneously. It is this sustained administration that concerns the medical profession because we do not know what effect prolonged therapy will have on the arthritic. Many of these sufferers have reported for checkups at periodic intervals over the last three years and have run the gamut of all the blood tests now available. The results have been normal. The reactions that occurred were evaluated and when deemed serious the drug was stopped temporarily. In this respect the hormones are obliging; after they are discontinued the adverse effects disappear without leaving everlasting changes.

These drugs remain expensive. Some relief came when cortisone tablets were placed on the market; this eliminated the necessity of having a nurse or physician administer the hormone hypodermically once, twice, or three times daily. Cortisone is just as valuable when used orally and, of the last 100 cases of rheumatoid arthritis given cortisone tablets at the Mayo clinic, all but one obtained a satisfactory response.

The side effects were similar to those that follow hypodermic use; they appeared in 54 of the 100 patients. The majority showed evidence of mental stimulation, with excessive alertness and elation. In others, roundness of the face was noted because of the temporary accumulation of fat in the cheeks and chin. An equal number had puffiness of the ankles as well as signs of a potassium deficiency (weakness and fatigability). Increased sweating, hot flushes, a ravenous appetite, and menstrual disorders also occurred. Unwanted hair grew on the face and chest of some of the women. With each passing month we learn more and more about these hormones.

TOMORROW. The prognosis evaluates health and longevity.

DRY FEET

D. F. writes: Since my feet stopped sweating two years ago I don't feel like myself. Is there any way I can make them sweat again?

REPLY

I do not doubt your word but have you had your sweat glands tested to make certain that they are not working? After all, this would be a rare disturbance except after a sympathectomy or the development of a disturbance of the autonomic nervous system.

NO FUN

Mrs. T. writes: I'm 70 years old and my doctor has cut out coffee and smoking as part of the dietary management of diverticulitis. I miss my java and butts and wonder whether I can ever go back to them.

REPLY

I'm in no mood today to get into an argument with your physician. Consult him again and, when the infection subsides, he may remove these restrictions.

HEMORRHOIDS

N. T. writes: Am a 46 year old woman who has had hemorrhoids for 12 years. I know they should be taken care of. Would you suggest surgery of diathermy?

REPLY

Both are recognized methods of treatment. This type of diathermy is more than heat treatment; it is used as an alternate to cutting.

RELAX AFTER EATING

J. Y. writes: Is it better for an older person to lie down and relax after a meal, or keep moving?

REPLY

Never pass up the opportunity to relax. Lying down is good provided you have the time and it does not interfere with sleeping at night.

Another Mink Coat Has Been In The Justice Department; Alien Property Custodian Under Scrutiny; Friends Get Rewarded Through Alien Property

WASHINGTON — Another mink coat has been dancing around the Justice Department — or, rather, the ghost of a mink coat. It's one of these will-o'-the-wisp, now-you-see-it-now-you-don't-see-it garments that was seen on the wife of a Justice Department official about a year ago, but which is seen no more.

The coat, beautiful as it was supposed to be, is probably not as important as some of the political maneuvering around the Alien Property Custodian. The general public may not realize it, but the Alien Property Custodian handles millions of dollars worth of property seized from the Germans, Japanese and Italians during the war.

However, a mink coat worn by the wife of a government official these days is getting to be like arson, sabotage or treason, so I went down to the Justice Department to investigate.

The husband of the lady, Harold Baynton, the Alien Property Custodian, I had never met before. He seemed like a nice guy and willing to open up every detail of his life; so I felt sort of like Mr. District Attorney, prying into his wife's wardrobe, especially since he was at that time under investigation by GOP Senator Wiley of Wisconsin.

Senator Wiley, I had learned earlier, had taken an investigatory interest in the Alien Property Custodian after his brother-in-law, R. D. Jenkins, had been turned down on a case involving the International Silk Guild, of which Jenkins is an official. The Silk Guild wanted to collect several hundred thousand dollars from the U. S. Government, which the Alien Property Custodian seized during the war as Japanese funds. The Silk Guild claimed they were not Japanese funds, but their own funds. However, the Alien Property Custodian finally ruled they were funds which the Japanese had set aside for advertising, and therefore belonged to Uncle Sam as alien property, not to the Silk Guild and to Senator Wiley's brother-in-law.

Pay To Old Roommate

However, this occurred some time ago, and today I think Senator Wiley is right in a general investigation of the Alien Property Custodian. Meanwhile, I proceeded with the investigation of Mrs. Baynton's mink coat.

The mink coat, I had heard, was given to Mrs. Baynton by Harold Horowitz, who draws $27,600 as president of E. Leitz Co., the former German firm which makes Leica cameras. Since this alien company is now operated by the Alien Property Custodian, Horowitz keeps his job partly at the pleasure of Mr. Baynton.

Originally Horowitz got his job through Herbert Bergson, a former assistant attorney general, who turned out to have been Horowitz's roommate at Harvard Law School. Running the Leitz Co. is only a half-time job, so $27,600 is pretty good pay, though in fairness to Horowitz it should be noted that when he took the firm over, it was on the verge of bankruptcy. Now it's making real dough.

Horowitz also gets an expense account of about $15,000 a year, and Baynton's predecessor, David Bazelon, now a federal judge, questioned some of his expense items, including a reported $2,000 for a trip to California. In fact, Bazelon, on one occasion, picked up the phone and instructed Horowitz not to spend a cent more without his okay.

Incidentally, the profits from alien property go to U. S. veterans who were imprisoned by the Japs and Germans, so every dollar paid out on expenses means that much less for them.

Baynton told me, however, that he examined Horowitz's expenses and found them to be okay.

Another interesting angle is that Horowitz, having got his job as president of the Leica camera concern through his old roommate, Herbert Bergson, is now paying aforesaid Bergson $1,000 a month as a legal retainer, Bergson now being in private law practice.

Baynton explained that the Leitz Co. was careful to observe the Fair Trade Act, and Bergson, former assistant attorney general in charge of the Antitrust Division, is an expert on this.

Mrs. Baynton's Mink

After going into all these things, I came round to the less agreeable subject of the mink coat. I pointed out that Mrs. Baynton had been seen in a mink coat last winter and it was reported that the coat had been given her by Horowitz in return for government favors given him by Mr. Baynton.

Mr. Baynton admitted that his wife did have a mink coat last Christmas, but had only borrowed it.

"She felt she deserved a mink coat," he explained. "We were in the full flush of just being appointed assistant attorney general, and I guess it went to our heads.

"I owe quite a bit to my wife," Baynton continued. "When we moved here from the West to finish my law degree, I got a job at $1,200 a year and we lived on my wife's money. In fact, she used up most of her money before I finished studying law. However, we still had some bonds saved up, and we could have bought her a mink coat, in fact we even figured on buying one wholesale. But then last Christmas she borrowed one."

I asked if she had got it from Horowitz, and Baynton admitted that she borrowed it from Mrs. Horowitz.

"When did she send it back?"

Pearson's Mean Streak

"Wasn't that about the time Merle Young was getting all that publicity on his wife's $8,000 mink?" I asked, yielding to what my wife calls "that mean streak" in me.

Mr. Baynton denied this. He said his wife had sent it back before the furor over the Merle Young mink.

He had been embarrassed, he said, because his wife told various people she had found the coat under the Christmas tree.

"It was a beautiful coat," he sighed, "and you know how women are — especially when their husbands have an important new job for the first time."

I said I did know. I didn't tell him, but I remembered one occasion when my wife got quite, quite irritated — so much so that I finally went out and bought her a fur coat.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Truman has been urged by political advisers and has for several days been giving consideration to the idea of deputizing J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to make a thorough inquiry into any and all charges of wrongdoing leveled at government officials. It would amount to an order "to clean up" the federal government so as to assure the people that everything that can be done has been done without possibility of a political cover-up.

In addition, the President has had in mind the appointment of two special prosecutors—one a prominent Republican and the other a prominent Democrat—who would follow through and prosecute any or all persons turned up in the investigation by Mr. Hover.

Presumably the full facilities of the FBI will be made available for the purpose.

When the suggestion was first made, it is understood that there was a question raised as to whether this wouldn't look as if Attorney General Howard McGrath was being by-passed, because the head of the Department of Justice is responsible for all law-enforcement matters of a criminal nature.

May Recommend It

It has been rumored, too, that the attorney general didn't like the plan and felt that he would rather resign than accept it, but the rumor arose at a time when the plan was not fully formulated.

It now has been reported that Mr. McGrath himself might recommend the action because there would be two special prosecutors who would hold the title of special assistant attorney general and they would receive the FBI reports and transmit requests for action to any grand juries which become part of the clean-up procedure.

As it stands today, there would be no reflection on the attorney general if two special prosecutors were appointed. It is necesary, if they are to have a free hand, virtually to divorce them from supervision by the attorney general. Technically they would become part of his office but would report to the President.

It will be recalled that the late Harlan F. Stone, who was attorney general in the cabinet of President Coolidge, Republican, didn't object to the appointment of special prosecutors—Owen J. Roberts, Republican, and former Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat—when a clean-up of the Teapot Dome scandals arising under the Republican Harding administration was ordered by Mr. Coolidge early in 1924.

Roberts Is Respected

The name of Mr. Roberts has bobbed up again as a prospective appointee to the two-man team of prosecutors to be chosen by President Truman. Mr. Roberts resigned from the Supreme Court of the United States, declining to accept the status of "retirement" because it might bring him back to service on the bench and prevent him from becoming interested in public movements. He, therfore, is eligible for the special duty, as he is not receiving any compensation from the judicial branch of the government. Whether or not he would accept appointment as a special prosecutor is not known at this writing. But he is familiar enough with the problem from his 1924 experience and is one of the best known and respected names in the American Bar.

Other names have been suggested from the Democratic side, though it is conceded that the object is not to get men who have been active politically but merely to give assurance to everybody that the inquiry is bipartisan. The President has been told that the prestige of J. Edgar Hoover in the country is so high that the mere fact of his appointment to make a comprehensive inquiry is enough to give assurance to the American people that Mr. Truman is doing everything within his power to get at the bottom of the charges of corruption and the circumstances surrounding the forced resignation of officials in the Treasury Department and the Department of Justice.

It is a political axiom that if the administration in power acts with sufficient vigor and prosecutes the guilty, the people will tend to applaud the action and hence the political effects of the scandals themselves may be mitigated. Whether this will or will not happen in this instance remains to be seen, but that's the purpose behind the effort to set up a nonpolitical and objective prosecution with the full backing of the President to let the chips fall where they may.

The Processing Country

L. P. Beria, probably Stalin's successor or, at any rate, important enough to be so regarded, in his report on Soviet Russia's progress, gives this data concerning the steel output of that country:

"Compared with last year, the country will produce 2,700,000 tons more pig iron, approximately 4,000,000 tons more steel and 3,000,000 tons more rolled steel. The Soviet Union's present steel output is about equal to the aggregate output of Britain, France, Belgium and Sweden."

This means that Soviet Russia will produce something like nearly 35,000,000 tons of steel, if the figures are correct. Even if this total requires considerable modification, Soviet Russia is now the second largest producer of steel in the world. These figures do not include production in satellite countries. (If we discount the figures given and call it between 30 and 35 million tons, the conclusions will be the same.)

As we live in an historic period, during which the importance of nations depends upon their accesses to steel, these figures are to be considered in relationship to the balance of power between the United States and Soviet Russia. During the years of World War II, the United States used about 72,500,000 tons of steel from December, 1941, to September, 1945, for direct war purposes. In 1951, the United States produced for all purposes approximately 105,000,000 tons.

An interesting phase of this situation is the fact that the "processing nation" can no longer exist. From the 18th Century until World War I, Great Britain was the dominant economic power because it was the principal processing nation of the world.

True, Great Britain lacked raw materials except coal and lime, but it was able to import metals, fibers and other raw materials from North and South America, Asia, Australia, Africa and by skilled and advanced manufacturing processes, to produce finished products which it sold to the continent of Europe and even to some of the countries from which it obtained the raw materials.

The "processing" not only gave work to the British people in manufactures but it developed banking, exchange, insurance and shipping to tremendous proportions. It required the British to maintain an enormous navy, to develop a colonial empire in many parts of the world, and to adhere strictly to a policy of a balance of power.

It was inevitable that other countries would seek to free themselves from economic and political colonialism. The United States, early in its history, became a manufacturing country with the advantage of possessing raw materials within its boundaries and with the advantage of space and an ever-increasing population reinforced by immigration.

Germany, after 1870, rushed in manufacturing, developing a tr mendous chemical and elec industry, but actually lacking r materials. The struggle betwe Germany and Great Britain f raw materials and markets led World War I. Into this compe tive situation entered Japan du ing and after World War I and, time, Japan was competing n only with Great Britain but wi the United States and Germany.

Economic nationalism is now characteristic of nearly all cou tries. One of the largest steel plar in the world is in India; the larg oil processing plant in the world in Iran. And Soviet Russia h emerged as the largest steel pr cessor in Europe.

This shift in production is o of the explanations, and not t least important one, for the red tion in status of some of the lea ing countries of the 19th Centu For instance, Great Britain's c pendence upon the United Sta is not due entirely to the effe of war; that dependence has be developing since World War I wh economic nationalism began to i fluence British economy detrimer ally. The deterioration of Gr Britain's position as a "processi nation" has had a tremendous fect upon Great Britain's politi power.

The Marshall Plan did no arrest this deterioration. ECA was employed to achieve tha end but ECA could not arres an historical process that move swiftly in one direction—eco nomic nationalism.

The problem really comes do to this: Will the United Sta year by year, sustain Great Brit by making good the deficits in Gr Britain's balance of trade? Th deficits can be made good by i ports from Great Britain into United States or by subsidies. T British would prefer to do it their traditional method of act as the middleman in East-W trade. But that is a tempor palliative because the East, prefers economic nationalism.

The center of political gra shifts as nations produce their o steel.

The Burning Madhouse

TEHRAN, Iran

This place is rather like a madhouse in which a fire has been started. The occupants, in their moments of lucidity, are perfectly aware that the madhouse is burning, and that all will shortly be consumed in the flames. But all are paralyzed—by irrational fears and hates, delusions of grandeur, or simple inertia and stupidity — so that no one is capable of putting the fire out, while there is still time.

There is not a great deal of time. The best current guess is that the fire in the Iranian insane asylum is likely to get out of control before the winter ends, probably some time in February. For at about this time, according to present projections, the Iranian government should run completely out of money. The Iranian government will thus lack the means to govern.

For the last several months the government of Dr. Mohammed Mossedegh, the chief incendiary in the Iranian madhouse, has kept itself going by a curious economci process, rather like a cow drinking its own milk in order not to starve. The government has been living off about fourteen million pounds sterling, which previously formed part of the backing of the Iranian currency.

This reserve has been used as a substitute for the lost oil revenues. It has been used to pay Iran's vast hordes of incredibly incompetent officials, as well as the army, the internal security forces, and the 70,000 idle oil workers. But now the cow is, inevitably, going dry. In a matter of a few weeks, the last pound in the sterling reserve will be spent.

For some weeks more, the Iranian government will undoubtedly be able to keep going somehow. Loans and forced taxation are planned—but it is incredibly difficult to separate a rich Iranian from his money, and most Iranians with any loose cash are already sending everything they can scrape together abroad. The government can dip into the gold reserve and the crown jewels which also form part of the backing for the currency. But of course this process will quite soon reduce the Iranian currency to utter worthlessness and the Iranian economy to complete chaos.

Government Will Be Broke

Thus, bar a miracle—which only take the form of Ameri financial intervention—the day certainly coming when the Iran government will be absolutely broke. No one, of course, can precisely what is likely to hap then. But it is not too difficult guess what might happen.

There will certainly be mass employment and mass misery the cities, where the hordes government officials will be tur loose, and in the oil areas wh the 70,000 oil workers will sudd find themselves without any me of livelihood at all. This circ stance will in itself give an er mous impetus to the Tudeh, outlawed Communist party, the really organized and discipli political force in Iran.

This will happen at a time, m over, when the internal secu forces, including the army, will tending to disintegrate, simply lack of pay. There are those who believe that in these circ stances a sudden coup d'etat the Tudeh, more or less on pattern of Czechoslovakia, will the most likely outcome.

Others consider more probabl somewhat gradual and orderly sh ing of this strategically country into the Soviet orbit. Pa because Mossadegh is sure of tory anyway, and partly becaus an odd streak of idealism in peculiar character, the forthcom elections are expected to be, if exactly free, at least less neatly ranged in advance than Irar elections habitually are. It is considered entirely likely tha number of adherents of the Tu party, doubtless wearing tra parent false whiskers, will be ele to the Iranian Majlis.

Top Soviet Objective

This will give the Tudeh the l toehold which it has so far lac In the period of economic c which lies ahead, the Tudeh m thus gain power gradually, by n or less peaceful means. Assum —and it is a reasonable assump —a Soviet policy of all aid to Tudeh short of open, armed in vention, the Communist take- here might be both relatively n violent and very rapid.

It is not possible, of cour predict either the timing or precise form of a Soviet victory this vital country. But it is certain as such things can be Iran is doomed to economic lapse and chaos. And it is absolu certain that the capture of I has been a top priority Soviet jective ever since V. M. Mol demanded "the Persian Gulf a from the unspeakable Joachim Ribbentrop, as the Soviet Uni share of the loot during the of the Nazi-Soviet pact. The da to Iran is at least as real as the danger to Greece in the sp of 1947.

The Crown Of St. Stefan

Negotiations for the release of four United States airmen forced down in Hungary are bound to be complicated by Hungarian demands for the return of the historic crown of St. Stefan. Possession of the crown, recovered by U. S. forces in Germany in World War II, is perhaps the greatest bone of contention between this country and the Communist government of Hungary.

Hungary had asked for the ezent korona (Holy Crown) as part of the ransom for Robert A. Vogeler, Jr., American business man imprisoned on espionage charges in November, 1949. Vogeler and a British associate were convicted by a Hungarian People's Court in February, 1950.

When Vogeler was finally released in April of this year, the State Department said that negotiations for his freedom had been on the verge of success in June of the preceding year. "Premature publicity" and "entirely untrue reports" that return of the crown of St. Stefan would be a condition for Vogeler's release caused the 1950 negotiations to break down. Up until that time, "the subject of the crown had never arisen in connection with the Vogeler negotiations."

Thereafter Hungary raised its price for Vogeler's freedom to include return of the crown and termination of Voice of America broadcasts to Hungary. When the deal by which Vogeler was released was consummated, the State Department said a demand for the crown had been rejected.

The conditions to which the U. S. agreed were: reopening of Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland, lifting of a ban on travel in Hungary by U. S. citizens, return of Hungarian property—not including the crown—looted by the Nazis in World War II. The U. S. agreed also to end relays of Voice of America broadcasts through Munich to Hungary. Future broadcasts would use a channel that did not interfere with transmissions by the Hungarian radio.

Officially no more was heard of the crown until November 24, 1951, five days after the U. S. plane had been forced down, when Hungary charged the U. S. with reneging on terms of the Vogeler agreement. Only an "insignificant part" of Nazi-seized possessions had been returned by the U. S., the Hungarian government said. The communication included a long list of other complaints as well as a new demand for the historic crown as "property" of the Hungarian nation.

Hungarians attach much importance to the crown of St. Stefan as a symbol of Hungary's sovereignty. The upper part of the crown, made of gold plates supporting a tilted cross, was given by Pope Sylvester II to King Stefan I, Hungary's first Christian monarch, nearly 1,000 years ago. The lower part—a cold cap circled by precious stones and religious and royal images—was given to King Geza I of Hungary by the Byzantine ruler, Michael Ducas, and his son nearly 900 years ago.

When Lajos Kossuth, Hungarian nationalist, fled the country temporarily in 1848, he took the crown with him to prevent the Habsburgs from being crowned as Hungary's legal kings. When in Hungarian possession, the crown was guarded night and day in a special building near the Royal Palace. Fifty Hungarian kings have been enthroned under this cap of sovereignty.

So much national pride is invested in the crown that Hungarians, it is said, would forgive many of the hardships imposed by any regime which succeeded in arranging for its return. The Vatican, however, views the crown as a symbol of hundreds of years of cooperation between Popes and Hungarian kings and would bitterly oppose giving it into the hands of a Communist government.

Fuzzy Thinking

A Mexican named Agapita Gallegos split the United States Supreme Court into fragments the other day. Six of the eight justices who took part in the case said his manslaughter conviction by a Nebraska court should stand. Two said it shouldn't—and implied heatedly that this was an American version of the Vogeler trial. Two of the majority wrote a separate opinion attacking the minority view.

It's not especially remarkable when the present Supreme Court divides on a case before it. But the court had only to decide whether Gallegos had been convicted largely on a confession obtained from him during "illegal" detention. It is the sort of technicality lawyers quibble about when they have no case and see their clients headed toward justice.

Gallegos was arrested in El Paso, Tex., on request of immigration authorities. He gave police a statement which led to the finding of the body of his common law wife on a farm near Minitare, Neb. Taken to Scotts Bluff County, he was tried and convicted. He appealed—not on the ground that he was innocent, but that he was not arraigned promptly on arrest and that 27 days went by before the court named an attorney to defend him.

Justice Reed's majority decision said a study of the whole case showed that Nebraska had not violated standards of decency or justice." But Justice Black, with Justice Douglas joining him, pointed out that Gallegos could neither speak nor understand English and declared that the Constitution had been violated.

Apparently, if the court had followed the reasoning of Justices Black and Douglas, a precedent would have been established that a murderer who cannot speak or read the English language deserves clemency.

Operation Dirt

Merely to read a list of the charges laid against the 31 (last count) Internal Revenue employes who have been discharged or asked to resign is to get a terrifying picture of the low estate to which government service has fallen under Harry S. Truman.

Filing false returns, improper solicitation of taxpayers, misappropriation of property, improper acceptance of fees—these are but a few of the offenses which at long last have stirred the bureau to action.

As the public studies this latest slimy chapter in a sordid story, there is growing amazement that it took the Bureau of Internal Revenue all this time to weed out some of the malefactors, and then only after it had been prodded by outsiders.

Senator Williams of Delaware, who started the current probe after he had been billed for income taxes which he had paid, says there is still a great deal more housecleaning to be done. In his efforts to get all the dirt out of the tax collection system he will have the full support of all citizens who do not subscribe to the theory that government is, and should be, a racket.

As usual in all these exposes, the trail is leading ever closer to the White House. T. Lamar Caudle, whose didoes as chief prosecutor of tax frauds in the Department of Justice are currently being aired, was a top assistant to Attorney General McGrath. McGrath, of course, is in Truman's cabinet.

How To Keep Well

Hormone Tablets In Arthritis

Cortisone and corticotrophin (ACTH) have now been used in the treatment of arthritis for more than two years. The original claim of the discoverers still stands: the hormones suppress but do not cure the disease. Symptoms are held in abeyance so long as the medication is taken.

The response is best in rheumatoid arthritis and worst in osteoarthritis. The latter is the type that attacks older men and women as a result of wear and tear. The weight bearing joints, such as hips, knees, and back, are involved chiefly. Discomfort comes and goes with the weather; the majority of victims feel better when the sun is shining and the humidity low. The heating pad is their friend and when pain is severe an aspirin or two will help them over the hump.

However, rheumatoid arthritis favors the young and middle-aged. It spares no joints although those in the hands, wrists, elbows, knees, ankles, and feet are preferred. The affected areas become red, swollen, and inflamed and—prior to the advent of the hormonal treatment—the condition was considered of streptococcal origin. This still may be true but the dramatic influence of the new medications has opened up the possibility of many other causes.

Because the disease has a tendency to become chronic, cortisone and corticotrophin, to be effective, must be given continuously. In this way, rheumatoid arthritis is unlike scarlet fever, for example, which runs its course and subsides spontaneously. It is this sustained administration that concerns the medical profession because we do not know what effect prolonged therapy will have on the arthritic. Many of these sufferers have reported for checkups at periodic intervals over the last three years and have run the gamut of all the blood tests now available. The results have been normal. The reactions that occurred were evaluated and when deemed serious the drug was stopped temporarily. In this respect the hormones are obliging; after they are discontinued the adverse effects disappear without leaving everlasting changes.

These drugs remain expensive. Some relief came when cortisone tablets were placed on the market; this eliminated the necessity of having a nurse or physician administer the hormone hypodermically once, twice, or three times daily. Cortisone is just as valuable when used orally and, of the last 100 cases of rheumatoid arthritis given cortisone tablets at the Mayo clinic, all but one obtained a satisfactory response.

The side effects were similar to those that follow hypodermic use; they appeared in 54 of the 100 patients. The majority showed evidence of mental stimulation, with excessive alertness and elation. In others, roundness of the face was noted because of the temporary accumulation of fat in the cheeks and chin. An equal number had puffiness of the ankles as well as signs of a potassium deficiency (weakness and fatigability). Increased sweating, hot flushes, a ravenous appetite, and menstrual disorders also occurred. Unwanted hair grew on the face and chest of some of the women. With each passing month we learn more and more about these hormones.

TOMORROW. The prognosis evaluates health and longevity.

DRY FEET

D. F. writes: Since my feet stopped sweating two years ago I don't feel like myself. Is there any way I can make them sweat again?

REPLY

I do not doubt your word but have you had your sweat glands tested to make certain that they are not working? After all, this would be a rare disturbance except after a sympathectomy or the development of a disturbance of the autonomic nervous system.

NO FUN

Mrs. T. writes: I'm 70 years old and my doctor has cut out coffee and smoking as part of the dietary management of diverticulitis. I miss my java and butts and wonder whether I can ever go back to them.

REPLY

I'm in no mood today to get into an argument with your physician. Consult him again and, when the infection subsides, he may remove these restrictions.

HEMORRHOIDS

N. T. writes: Am a 46 year old woman who has had hemorrhoids for 12 years. I know they should be taken care of. Would you suggest surgery of diathermy?

REPLY

Both are recognized methods of treatment. This type of diathermy is more than heat treatment; it is used as an alternate to cutting.

RELAX AFTER EATING

J. Y. writes: Is it better for an older person to lie down and relax after a meal, or keep moving?

REPLY

Never pass up the opportunity to relax. Lying down is good provided you have the time and it does not interfere with sleeping at night.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Another Mink Coat Has Been In The Justice Department; Alien Property Custodian Under Scrutiny; Friends Get Rewarded Through Alien Property

WASHINGTON — Another mink coat has been dancing around the Justice Department — or, rather, the ghost of a mink coat. It's one of these will-o'-the-wisp, now-you-see-it-now-you-don't-see-it garments that was seen on the wife of a Justice Department official about a year ago, but which is seen no more.

The coat, beautiful as it was supposed to be, is probably not as important as some of the political maneuvering around the Alien Property Custodian. The general public may not realize it, but the Alien Property Custodian handles millions of dollars worth of property seized from the Germans, Japanese and Italians during the war.

However, a mink coat worn by the wife of a government official these days is getting to be like arson, sabotage or treason, so I went down to the Justice Department to investigate.

The husband of the lady, Harold Baynton, the Alien Property Custodian, I had never met before. He seemed like a nice guy and willing to open up every detail of his life; so I felt sort of like Mr. District Attorney, prying into his wife's wardrobe, especially since he was at that time under investigation by GOP Senator Wiley of Wisconsin.

Senator Wiley, I had learned earlier, had taken an investigatory interest in the Alien Property Custodian after his brother-in-law, R. D. Jenkins, had been turned down on a case involving the International Silk Guild, of which Jenkins is an official. The Silk Guild wanted to collect several hundred thousand dollars from the U. S. Government, which the Alien Property Custodian seized during the war as Japanese funds. The Silk Guild claimed they were not Japanese funds, but their own funds. However, the Alien Property Custodian finally ruled they were funds which the Japanese had set aside for advertising, and therefore belonged to Uncle Sam as alien property, not to the Silk Guild and to Senator Wiley's brother-in-law.

Pay To Old Roommate

However, this occurred some time ago, and today I think Senator Wiley is right in a general investigation of the Alien Property Custodian. Meanwhile, I proceeded with the investigation of Mrs. Baynton's mink coat.

The mink coat, I had heard, was given to Mrs. Baynton by Harold Horowitz, who draws $27,600 as president of E. Leitz Co., the former German firm which makes Leica cameras. Since this alien company is now operated by the Alien Property Custodian, Horowitz keeps his job partly at the pleasure of Mr. Baynton.

Originally Horowitz got his job through Herbert Bergson, a former assistant attorney general, who turned out to have been Horowitz's roommate at Harvard Law School. Running the Leitz Co. is only a half-time job, so $27,600 is pretty good pay, though in fairness to Horowitz it should be noted that when he took the firm over, it was on the verge of bankruptcy. Now it's making real dough.

Horowitz also gets an expense account of about $15,000 a year, and Baynton's predecessor, David Bazelon, now a federal judge, questioned some of his expense items, including a reported $2,000 for a trip to California. In fact, Bazelon, on one occasion, picked up the phone and instructed Horowitz not to spend a cent more without his okay.

Incidentally, the profits from alien property go to U. S. veterans who were imprisoned by the Japs and Germans, so every dollar paid out on expenses means that much less for them.

Baynton told me, however, that he examined Horowitz's expenses and found them to be okay.

Another interesting angle is that Horowitz, having got his job as president of the Leica camera concern through his old roommate, Herbert Bergson, is now paying aforesaid Bergson $1,000 a month as a legal retainer, Bergson now being in private law practice.

Baynton explained that the Leitz Co. was careful to observe the Fair Trade Act, and Bergson, former assistant attorney general in charge of the Antitrust Division, is an expert on this.

Mrs. Baynton's Mink

After going into all these things, I came round to the less agreeable subject of the mink coat. I pointed out that Mrs. Baynton had been seen in a mink coat last winter and it was reported that the coat had been given her by Horowitz in return for government favors given him by Mr. Baynton.

Mr. Baynton admitted that his wife did have a mink coat last Christmas, but had only borrowed it.

"She felt she deserved a mink coat," he explained. "We were in the full flush of just being appointed assistant attorney general, and I guess it went to our heads.

"I owe quite a bit to my wife," Baynton continued. "When we moved here from the West to finish my law degree, I got a job at $1,200 a year and we lived on my wife's money. In fact, she used up most of her money before I finished studying law. However, we still had some bonds saved up, and we could have bought her a mink coat, in fact we even figured on buying one wholesale. But then last Christmas she borrowed one."

I asked if she had got it from Horowitz, and Baynton admitted that she borrowed it from Mrs. Horowitz.

"When did she send it back?"

Pearson's Mean Streak

"Wasn't that about the time Merle Young was getting all that publicity on his wife's $8,000 mink?" I asked, yielding to what my wife calls "that mean streak" in me.

Mr. Baynton denied this. He said his wife had sent it back before the furor over the Merle Young mink. He had been embarrassed, he said, because his wife told various people she had found the coat under the Christmas tree.

"It was a beautiful coat," he sighed, "and you know how women are — especially when their husbands have an important new job for the first time."

I said I did know. I didn't tell him, but I remembered one occasion when my wife got quite, quite irritated — so much so that I finally went out and bought her a fur coat.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Truman has been urged by political advisers and has for several days been giving consideration to the idea of deputizing J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to make a thorough inquiry into any and all charges of wrongdoing leveled at government officials. It would amount to an order "to clean up" the federal government so as to assure the people that everything that can be done has been done without possibility of a political cover-up.

In addition, the President has had in mind the appointment of two special prosecutors—one a prominent Republican and the other a prominent Democrat—who would follow through and prosecute any or all persons turned up in the investigation by Mr. Hover.

Presumably the full facilities of the FBI will be made available for the purpose.

When the suggestion was first made, it is understood that there was a question raised as to whether this wouldn't look as if Attorney General Howard McGrath was being by-passed, because the head of the Department of Justice is responsible for all law-enforcement matters of a criminal nature.

May Recommend It

It has been rumored, too, that the attorney general didn't like the plan and felt that he would rather resign than accept it, but the rumor arose at a time when the plan was not fully formulated.

It now has been reported that Mr. McGrath himself might recommend the action because there would be two special prosecutors who would hold the title of special assistant attorney general and they would receive the FBI reports and transmit requests for action to any grand juries which become part of the clean-up procedure.

As it stands today, there would be no reflection on the attorney general if two special prosecutors were appointed. It is necesary, if they are to have a free hand, virtually to divorce them from supervision by the attorney general. Technically they would become part of his office but would report to the President.

It will be recalled that the late Harlan F. Stone, who was attorney general in the cabinet of President Coolidge, Republican, didn't object to the appointment of special prosecutors—Owen J. Roberts, Republican, and former Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat—when a clean-up of the Teapot Dome scandals arising under the Republican Harding administration was ordered by Mr. Coolidge early in 1924.

Roberts Is Respected

The name of Mr. Roberts has bobbed up again as a prospective appointee to the two-man team of prosecutors to be chosen by President Truman. Mr. Roberts resigned from the Supreme Court of the United States, declining to accept the status of "retirement" because it might bring him back to service on the bench and prevent him from becoming interested in public movements. He, therfore, is eligible for the special duty, as he is not receiving any compensation from the judicial branch of the government. Whether or not he would accept appointment as a special prosecutor is not known at this writing. But he is familiar enough with the problem from his 1924 experience and is one of the best known and respected names in the American Bar.

Other names have been suggested from the Democratic side, though it is conceded that the object is not to get men who have been active politically but merely to give assurance to everybody that the inquiry is bipartisan. The President has been told that the prestige of J. Edgar Hoover in the country is so high that the mere fact of his appointment to make a comprehensive inquiry is enough to give assurance to the American people that Mr. Truman is doing everything within his power to get at the bottom of the charges of corruption and the circumstances surrounding the forced resignation of officials in the Treasury Department and the Department of Justice.

It is a political axiom that if the administration in power acts with sufficient vigor and prosecutes the guilty, the people will tend to applaud the action and hence the political effects of the scandals themselves may be mitigated. Whether this will or will not happen in this instance remains to be seen, but that's the purpose behind the effort to set up a nonpolitical and objective prosecution with the full backing of the President to let the chips fall where they may.

The Processing Country

L. P. Beria, probably Stalin's successor or, at any rate, important enough to be so regarded, in his report on Soviet Russia's progress, gives this data concerning the steel output of that country:

"Compared with last year, the country will produce 2,700,000 tons more pig iron, approximately 4,000,000 tons more steel and 3,000,000 tons more rolled steel. The Soviet Union's present steel output is about equal to the aggregate output of Britain, France, Belgium and Sweden."

This means that Soviet Russia will produce something like nearly 35,000,000 tons of steel, if the figures are correct. Even if this total requires considerable modification, Soviet Russia is now the second largest producer of steel in the world. These figures do not include production in satellite countries. (If we discount the figures given and call it between 30 and 35 million tons, the conclusions will be the same.)

As we live in an historic period, during which the importance of nations depends upon their accesses to steel, these figures are to be considered in relationship to the balance of power between the United States and Soviet Russia. During the years of World War II, the United States used about 72,500,000 tons of steel from December, 1941, to September, 1945, for direct war purposes. In 1951, the United States produced for all purposes approximately 105,000,000 tons.

An interesting phase of this situation is the fact that the "processing nation" can no longer exist. From the 18th Century until World War I, Great Britain was the dominant economic power because it was the principal processing nation of the world.

True, Great Britain lacked raw materials except coal and lime, but it was able to import metals, fibers and other raw materials from North and South America, Asia, Australia, Africa and by skilled and advanced manufacturing processes, to produce finished products which it sold to the continent of Europe and even to some of the countries from which it obtained the raw materials.

The "processing" not only gave work to the British people in manufactures but it developed banking, exchange, insurance and shipping to tremendous proportions. It required the British to maintain an enormous navy, to develop a colonial empire in many parts of the world, and to adhere strictly to a policy of a balance of power.

It was inevitable that other countries would seek to free themselves from economic and political colonialism. The United States, early in its history, became a manufacturing country with the advantage of possessing raw materials within its boundaries and with the advantage of space and an ever-increasing population reinforced by immigration.

Germany, after 1870, rushed i manufacturing, developing a t mendous chemical and elec industry, but actually lacking r materials. The struggle betw Germany and Great Britain raw materials and markets led World War I. Into this compe tive situation entered Japan d ing and after World War I and, time, Japan was competing only with Great Britain but w the United States and Germany

Economic nationalism is now characteristic of nearly all cou tries. One of the largest steel pla in the world is in India; the larg oil processing plant in the world in Iran. And Soviet Russia h emerged as the largest steel pr cessor in Europe.

This shift in production is o of the explanations, and not t least important one, for the red tion in status of some of the lea ing countries of the 19th Centu For instance, Great Britain's d pendence upon the United Sta is not due entirely to the effe of war; that dependence has be developing since World War I wh economic nationalism began to i fluence British economy detrimen ally. The deterioration of Gr Britain's position as a "processi nation" has had a tremendous e fect upon Great Britain's politi power.

The Marshall Plan did no arrest this deterioration. ECA was employed to achieve tha end but ECA could not arres an historical process that move swiftly in one direction—eco nomic nationalism.

The problem really comes do to this: Will the United Sta year by year, sustain Great Brit by making good the deficits in Gr Britain's balance of trade? Th deficits can be made good by i ports from Great Britain into t United States or by subsidies. T British would prefer to do it their traditional method of act as the middleman in East-W trade. But that is a tempor palliative because the East, t prefers economic nationalism.

The Burning Madhouse

TEHRAN, Iran

This place is rather like a madhouse in which a fire has been started. The occupants, in their moments of lucidity, are perfectly aware that the madhouse is burning, and that all will shortly be consumed in the flames. But all are paralyzed—by irrational fears and hates, delusions of grandeur, or simple inertia and stupidity — so that no one is capable of putting the fire out, while there is still time.

There is not a great deal of time. The best current guess is that the fire in the Iranian insane asylum is likely to get out of control before the winter ends, probably some time in February. For at about this time, according to present projections, the Iranian government should run completely out of money. The Iranian government will thus lack the means to govern.

For the last several months the government of Dr. Mohammed Mossedegh, the chief incendiary in the Iranian madhouse, has kept itself going by a curious economci process, rather like a cow drinking its own milk in order not to starve. The government has been living off about fourteen million pounds sterling, which previously formed part of the backing of the Iranian currency.

This reserve has been used as a substitute for the lost oil revenues. It has been used to pay Iran's vast hordes of incredibly incompetent officials, as well as the army, the internal security forces, and the 70,000 idle oil workers. But now the cow is, inevitably, going dry. In a matter of a few weeks, the last pound in the sterling reserve will be spent.

For some weeks more, the Iranian government will undoubtedly be able to keep going somehow. Loans and forced taxation are planned—but it is incredibly difficult to separate a rich Iranian from his money, and most Iranians with any loose cash are already sending everything they can scrape together abroad. The government can dip into the gold reserve and the crown jewels which also form part of the backing for the currency. But of course this process will quite soon reduce the Iranian currency to utter worthlessness and the Iranian economy to complete chaos.

Government Will Be Broke

Thus, bar a miracle—which only take the form of Ameri financial intervention—the day certainly coming when the Iran government will be absolutely broke. No one, of course, can precisely what is likely to hap then. But it is not too difficult guess what might happen.

There will certainly be mass employment and mass misery the cities, where the hordes government officials will be tur loose, and in the oil areas wh the 70,000 oil workers will sudde find themselves without any me of livelihood at all. This circu stance will in itself give an e mous impetus to the Tudeh, outlawed Communist party, the c really organized and discipli political force in Iran.

This will happen at a time, m over, when the internal secu forces, including the army, will tending to disintegrate, simply lack of pay. There are those who believe that in these circu stances a sudden coup d'etat the Tudeh, more or less on pattern of Czechoslovakia, will the most likely outcome.

Others consider more probabl somewhat gradual and orderly sh ing of this strategically country into the Soviet orbit. Pa because Mossadegh is sure of tory anyway, and partly becaus an odd streak of idealism in peculiar character, the forthcom elections are expected to be, if exactly free, at least less neatly ranged in advance than Iran elections habitually are. It is considered entirely likely tha number of adherents of the Tu party, doubtless wearing tra parent false whiskers, will be ele to the Iranian Majlis.

Top Soviet Objective

This will give the Tudeh the l toehold which it has so far lac In the period of economic c which lies ahead, the Tudeh mi thus gain power gradually, by m or less peaceful means. Assum —and it is a reasonable assump —a Soviet policy of all aid to Tudeh short of open, armed in vention, the Communist take-o here might be both relatively n violent and very rapid.

It is not possible, of cours predict either the timing or precise form of a Soviet victory this vital country. But it is certain as such things can be t Iran is doomed to economic lapse and chaos. And it is absolu certain that the capture of I has been a top priority Soviet jective ever since V. M. Molo demanded "the Persian Gulf ar from the unspeakable Joachim Ribbentrop, as the Soviet Uni share of the loot during the t of the Nazi-Soviet pact. The dan to Iran is at least as real as the danger to Greece in the spr of 1947.

Overpopulated Italy Has Eye On Defense Industry

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME — (AP) — Italy has not yet found an answer to the problem posed by 2,000,000 unemployed, a population increasing by 400,000 every year and emigration now averaging less than 200,000 yearly.

There are two major proposals:

1. — Increase emigration, which actually means raising the low fixed rate on Italian immigration into the United States;

2 — Try to absorb the surplus population by putting it to work in expanded industrial production for the mutual benefit of the Atlantic pact nations.

The emphasis is on the second point because, although bills proposing greater Italian immigration into the U. S. are before Congress, leaders here doubt the increase would be enough to make much real difference.

Italy repeatedly has emphasized to her Atlantic pact allies she can offer to the alliance the tremendous labor potential needed for greatly expanded defense production.

She figures that on her 46,000,000 population, more than 21,000,000 are presently available for active labor — and millions more could be diverted.

Esteri, semi-official publication of the Foreign Ministry, said:

1. — Half of Italy's present labor is engaged in agriculture and a large part of these could be freed for industrial work by further mechanization of farming;

2 — There are at least two million who work less than 100 days a year who could be partly employed in other activities.

Italy denies that her 400,000 a year increase in population comes from an unusually high birth rate, as is often supposed. The government has issued statistics to show that Italy's birth rate is below that in France, the Low Countries, and many other parts of Europe.

The rapid increase is attributed, instead, to a considerably decreased death rate and to sharply curtailed emigration which previously carried away much of the surplus.

Emigration from Italy skyrocketed from 1900 to a peak averaging 800,000 a year just before the First World War. After the Second World War emigration was down to 40,000 a year.

It still is considerably less than 200,000. And there is no real prospect, under present circumstances, of that rate being greatly increased.

Wedding To Be In Montreal Dec. 10

Miss Kathleen Keenan, former resident here, will be married to Clifford H. Hargreaves, vice president of the Canadian Celanese, Drummondsville, December 10, in Montreal.

Miss Keenan, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, was employed by the Celanese Corporation of America, at Amcelle, as a chemist for a number of years, before being transferred to the Laboratories at Summit, N. J., approximately five years ago. While here Miss Keenan was a member of the Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club, and the Chemical Society. Her hobby was photography, and when she attended the biennial conventions of the National and State Business and Professional Women, she always took pictures, which were used in the state and club books.

Mr. Hargreaves is a graduate of Manchester University, England. He was employed by the British Celanese before going with the Canadian Celanese in 1926 as superintendent of weaving. He was at the Amcelle plant for several months to study weaving and become acclemated to American practices before going to Canada.

Sometime in February Mr. Hargreaves and his bride will leave on a Carribean Cruise.

East Side PTA Cancels Meetings

Two meetings were cancelled and plans formulated for a social and birthday party at the executive board meeting of the East Side Parent-Teacher Association, held after the visitations earlier in the week.

Due to the weather conditions it was decided to cancel the January and February meetings. The first business session of the new year will be March 11. Committees for the birthday party and social to be held at that time were appointed. They are Bake Sale, Mrs. Vincent Delagrange; Program, Mrs. William George and Mrs. John Topper; Tables, Mrs. Walter Ensminger; Refreshments, Mrs. Harold McClellan and Publicity, Mrs. A. H. Northcraft.

Reports and discussions of past events and those scheduled later featured the meeting. It was announced that the Safety Patrol trip to Washington is under the direction of George Klinkhommer, principal.

A. H. Northcraft, Playground committee chairman, asked for volunteer workers to complete the playground building now under construction. Those willing to help are to call 4103-W.

Brief reports of the County Council meeting were given by Mrs. Margaret Weber and Mrs. William George. More complete reports will be given at the March meeting. Announcement also was made of a matinee December 19 of the Christmas play to be given by the students at 7:30 December 20.

LG Hears Book Revue

The Literature Group of the Woman's Civic Club met at the public library yesterday with Mrs. Robert M. Bruce presiding.

Dr. Nancy Miller, Potomac State School, reviewed "The Covenant," by Zofia Kossack, which gives the impression of the beginning of the first volume of a long project. It is the story of Abraham, which runs true to the Biblical text from Genesis, 11 to 25.

The speaker pointed out that the book is most important because it deals with the birth of Monotheism, that is the belief in one True God. The wickedness of the times is stressed and prompted Abraham to say, "What atonement can there be for the sins of men."

Dr. Miller impressed her audience with the fact that the book is well worth reading for it contains hope and promise as well as pathos and romance.

"M" Night To Be At Grace Church Mon.

The Western District Baptist Training Union Association is sponsoring "M" night December 10. The mobilization program is being held in Grace Baptist Church, at 7:30 p. m., with Miss Violet Pope director of the Training Union.

Rev. Harry Leichty, superintendent of Baltimore city missions, will be the main speaker for the meeting. The topic of his talk will be "When Christ Speaks."

Devotionals on the topic, "Choose Ye This Day," will be led by Rev. Donald Vosseler, pastor of the English Baptist Church, Frostburg.

A preview of plans for 1952 will be given by Miss Pope and a special musical program is to be presented.

"Rally Night" is to be observed in all Baptist churches Sunday evening, in preparation of "M Night." The meeting is not restricted to BTU members, everyone is invited to attend.

LaVale Club Has Yule Observance

The LaVale Homemakers Club held the annual Christmas party earlier in the week at the fire hall. It was preceded by a covered dish luncheon. The traditional holiday decorations were used with green wreaths, red candles and red favors. Each table was centered with an arrangement of pine boughs and cones.

Mrs. John Beckman presided and opened the meeting with the Homemakers' Creed. Mrs. Edith Comp gave the song of the month, "O Worship the King, All Glorious Above." Mrs. Charles Long led the group singing. The bird of the month, the Cardinal, was discussed by Mrs. Cromwell Zembower.

The annual baskets for three needy families were packed and Mrs. Beckman, retiring president, thanked the club for it's cooperation and introduced Mrs. George Brown, new president. Miss Maude A. Bean spoke briefly.

A program was presented before the jingle party. A group in choir robes sang, "O Come All Ye Faithful," "O Holy Night," "O Little Town of Bethlehem;" the club sang "Silent Night" and "Joy to the World;" A poem, "J'est for Christmas," was given by Dorothy Tucker; Mrs. Douglas Smith gave a monologue, "Christmas Shopper."

Santa, portrayed by Mrs. Bertha Simpson, visited the club and gifts were exchanged.

Gold Star Mothers Have Program

The Tri State Chapter, American Gold Star Mothers Inc., had a variety program at the social recently. Leo Leasure showed colored pictures of some of his trips; the Smith triplets played accordion selections; and Edith Happe, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Happe, second vice president played selections on piano.

After refreshments were served a parcel post and bake sale was held. Proceeds will be donated to the Baker Veterans Center, Martinsburg, W. Va.

Approximately 12 members of Fort Cumberland Unit, No. 13, American Legion Auxiliary were guests.

Election of officers will be December 12 and all members are requested to be present.

AAUW Entertains With Annual Christmas Party

The AAUW Christmas party was held Wednesday evening at Dox Hill, Frostburg, the home of Dr. Hilda Jane Walters. It was in the form of a jingle party and each guest wrote a rhyme attached to her gift. Mrs. Aden Everstine portrayed Santa, and had each guest read the rhyme as she opened her gift.

Miss Thelma J. Allin played several Christmas numbers on her accordion. Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, vice president and Program chairman, presided. A telegran from the president, Mrs. James H. Kruson, Rush Hill, Mo., was read, expressing falicitations and regret. Miss Mabel E. Meyers was chairman of arrangements and played the accompanyment for singing of carols by the group.

Two large lighted trees outside Dr. Walter's home made a welcome mat. In the living room the hearth and mantel piece depicted the Christmas story. A great log burned in the fireplace and lighted trees stood on either side. On the mantel was a Christmas village with figurenes, houses, churches and trees, softly lighted. In the same way the festive decorations were carried out through the house. There was the best attendance for the Christmas party the AAUW has had in the seven years of its activities.

Oldtown YFC Plans Party

The Oldtown Methodist Youth Fellowship Club made plans at the meeting Monday, for a Christmas party. It is to be held in the church social room, December 17.

Committees named are decorations, Erma Rawlings and Janet Nethers; entertainment, Artie Robertson and Leroy Robertson; refreshments, Roxanna Hall and Beverly Ginevan.

ABL Rec Club To Hold Yule Dinner-Dance Tomorrow

The annual Christmas dinner and dance of the Allegany Ballistic Rec Club is being held tomorrow evening. It will be at the Cumberland Country Club.

A semi-formal affair the dinner is to begin at 7:30. Dr. Loren Morey president of the club, will preside. Christmas decorations of pines and poinsettias are being used on the tables.

Marty Flynn and his orchestra are playing for the dancing.

The officers of the club are in charge of arrangements. They are Dr. Morey, John Carroll, vice president; Cletus Hartsock, treasurer; and Miss Mary J. Schellhaus, secretary.

Labrador was called Hlluland, which means land of naked rocks, by Eric the Red, according to Scandinavian sagas.

Nurses Give $50 To Vets

The Western Maryland-Memorial Hospital Alumnae gave it's annual $50 to the American Legion for Christmas, at a brief business session, Wednesday evening, preceding the annual Christmas party. Miss Mae Matlick presided.

Christmas carols featured the entertainment and the evening was spent as an informal get-to-gether. Jingle gifts were exchanged.

The Christmas theme was carried out in the table appointments and red candles across the table. Tiny candles of choir boys, Christmas trees, snow men and other traditional figures were the favors.

Thirty members attended.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK — The memo pad is on the desk back in the empty office, but you can remember the items now. Cocktail party at the Sherry-Netherland today for Mamie Vere de Vere. . . .

The little bay is deserted now, as the Tabjo II swings slowly and easily around and heads for the open Sound. In the summer the bay is crowded with all kinds of strange craft and strange citizens—fishermen rowing out in round-bottoms, power boats fouling the air with their fuel smell and their noise, slim racers picking up the faintest breath of wind, skiers emerging suddenly from the water as the inboards open their throttles wide and the tow lines tighten — but summer is gone.

The Tab goes through the channel under her auxiliary power; then the crew begins to break out the sails and untie the lines (Untie the lines? After the swab has loosened the sheets, take him out and shoot him!). The bleak sunlight of late autumn glistens on the brasswork and you look around at the assorted costumes of the crew.

Shapeless coats, wet rubber boots, pea jackets, bizarre hats — these were meant for a comic opera, but instead of laughing at them you reflect a little sadly, for you remember the July days when all these were stowed away in a locker below and the crew all wore the absolute legal minimum of clothes.

Then the mainsail billows out and catches the brisk morning wind; the auxiliary is shut off and the wide, graceful craft picks up speed quietly and smoothly, with only the slap of water against the bow and the cawing of a gull here and there.

• — • — •

HUNDRED - DOLLAR - A - PLATE DINNER at the Biltmore Friday night. Black tie. Drinks with the Marshalls and the Paperts first. . . .

The sky is clouding up rapidly and the wind changing to the southeast. The skipper starts to head north past Great Captain's, then changes his mind and makes a wide circle out halfway to Long Island and then drives for Playland Bay.

You perch innocently on the stern, behind the room rest, and wonder why the rest of the crew has crowded silently into the space behind the cabin, shielded, apparently, from some hidden danger.

Then, suddenly, you know why—the wind roars into your teeth and the mainsail goes tight and full, and the Tab heels over, with the water hissing and bubbling through the scuppers, washing over the portholes, and the bow knifing its way through the waves that are rolling up ominously from the south.

Your bones go suddenly cold and your hands are numb, but, of course, you just grin and shake your head when the crew invites you down from your silly roost in the stern to their vantage point.

• — • — •

INTERVIEW WITH FRANK FLORSHEIM, movie actor, Twenty-One, 3 p. m. Monday. Meet him at bar. . . .

Well—you're living now . . . the Tab rides with the waves, her boom held fast by the skipper holding the sheet, and the salt water breaks violently over the bow and washes your face like a biting after-shave lotion.

"We'll make it on the one tack," the skipper says, and you wonder if he means you'll survive, or, ridiculous thought, that you will hit Playland Bay safely.

He sits there at the helm meditatively, eyes an eight-foot wave rolling toward the Tab, and, in a burst of whimsy, turns her so she catches a little of its force and the boat stops and shudders a bit as the water washes over the deck and the crew is drenched. "Didn't see that one," he says apologetically, lying in his teeth.

LOOK UP THAT NEW "CARD SCHOOL" in 58th Street. Might be worth a story. Junket to Ohio? Rainbow Room open again?

You make it. Somehow you make it, and the Tab rides for a while at anchor in the bay, the beach white and deserted in the forenoon. Somebody drops a line overboard but the tide is runing wrong and nothing bites. Then you up anchor, finally, and the skipper puts the helm in your hands and you begin the tricky, blowy tack up to the north again.

The job seems enormously complicated and you are tempted to just jump up and leave the tiller swinging, the way you once did with the oars of a rowboat near Port Jefferson one day when a Coast Guard cutter bore down on you.

However, you don't. You stay with it, until finally the little bay comes in sight again. You give the tiller over to more skillful hands, and the Tab comes at last to anchor again. The season is over and you sigh and think again of the memo pad on the desk.

Having a Christmas photograph made? Make it your loveliest with these tips from the Powers Models!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A portrait photograph is a sort of marker in a woman's life. It inevitably becomes a cherished possession of her family and intimate friends — something they remember her by for years. If you are having one made for Christmas giving this year, how well it reflects you is of great importance.

After all, posing is not something you do every day. But the Powers Girls do and you can rely on these tips from them to result in a photograph you'll be proud of the rest of your life.

Photogenic Make-up

Begin by determining the kind of portrait you want. For enduring qualities, avoid either a stark or souped-up image. The best one will subtly flatter your most natural and beautiful self.

Days before you sit for the birdie, select and practice using the cosmetics you will wear. Choose a foundation that suits your skin — dry, normal or oily. If posing in a dark costume, your foundation color should match your skin; in a light costume, it should be two shades lighter than your complexion. Apply two coats. Do not use powder if you want your skin to look "alive" as it should in any good photograph.

Do not apply rouge unless you are an expert who knows how to employ it as a camouflage for unwanted contours. Otherwise, rouge casts shadows that destroy structure and character. Wear a light shade of perfectly applied lipstick, the slightest flick of mascara and well-brushed eyebrows, pencilled conservatively if necessary.

Don't make the mistake of showing the camera stiff, unnatural curls! To avoid this sad fate, have your hair done at least two days before your sitting. When you go to the photographer's, take a brush for final grooming, lacquer for stray wisps, and pomade for highlights.

As important as your make-up and hair-do is your attitude toward the camera. Simply sit down in front of it, relax, and trust the photographer. He's at home with his work and camera; you should try to feel the same way. Avoid "striking" a pose or worse, "freezing up." Chat or think of happy things. Above all, do not let a friend witness the shooting or you will really tense up and feel like a fish out of water — which the finish will reveal.

Take these tips and the results will be the image of your very best self — and what is there that could make a better Christmas gift for those you love?

P. S. from J. R. P.
YOUR BEAUTY DIET

No matter what your weight problem — whether you want to gain, lose or remain the same — YOUR BEAUTY DIET will provide you with a safe and sane pattern of laboratory-tested menus that can be followed by the entire family according to each individual's needs. YOUR BEAUTY DIET is a way of eating, not starving, and the tasteful, appetizing meals it comtains require no extra planning or preparation! For the booklet, write to me in care of this newspaper and enclose 10c in coin to help cover cost, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Stepinac Still An Archbishop

KRASIC, Yugoslavia, Dec. 6 (AP) — The Most Rev. Alojzijc Stepinac slipped easily today into life as a priest of his native village, but asserted he remains archbishop of Zagreb despite conditions imposed in his release from a Yugoslav prison.

"I am a legitimate archbishop and I am not a former archbishop," the Roman Catholic prelate said in an interview — disputing a phrase used by Premier Marshal Tito's official news agency, Tanjug, in announcing his release yesterday.

"If the Pope wants it, I am ready to quit my archbishopric, but I will never give it up to government pressure."

(His views were reflected at the Holy See. Vatican sources said he remains archbishop of Zagreb and Catholic primate of Yugoslavia so long as Pope Pius XII does not decide otherwise and Yugoslavia's 7,000,000 Catholics must obey him in spiritual matters that are under his episcopal jurisdiction.)

However, he is forbidden to perform the functions of archbishop. He must not leave this village of 400, where he was born 53 years ago, without permission of the Croatian interior ministry. He will be unable to issue pastoral letters or public statements.

Pitt, Miami Play Tonight

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP) — The University of Pittsburg Panthers arrived by plane today to play the Gator-bowl bound University of Miami Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl tomorrow night.

The game is expected to attract between 38,000 and 40,000 fans and concludes regular season activities for both teams.

The Hurricanes are ranked one touchdown favorites, according to local betting odds based on Pittsburgh's record of only two victories this season. Miami has won seven and lost two.

Ex-Auctioneer's Tax Probe Testimony 'Loud And Clear'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — A leather-lunged ex-auctioneer emerged from the background of the house's tax scandal investigation today, and it's doubtful if the eardrums of the investigators will ever be the same.

This witness, one Larry Knohl, tried to keep his voice down. He leaned far back from the microphones. He almost whispered. And still his rich, resonant tones filled the big, cream-walled hearing room of the ways and means committee.

Then he got mad, leaned forward, raised his voice, and—brother!

A crashing volume of sound rattled the gilt chandelier. There was no containing it. It boomed out through the open doors, the echoes tumbling over each other down the corridors. You could have sat on the front steps of the House office building and heard every word.

Knohl, a firm-chinned man with an air of great self-assurance, left the auctioneering field some years ago in favor of oil promotion, restaurant management, tax investigation and other profitable pursuits.

The tax subcommittee headed by Rep. King (D-Calif) wanted to know all about his relations with T. Lamar Caudle, the assistant U. S. attorney general fired recently for "outside activities," but Knohl's wrath exploded before the Caudle question even arose.

"All right," he said grimly, and with growing volume, "I was once convicted of a crime. I was accused of taking the money from one account and putting it in another. It was nothing put a piece of political obstruction—I didn't take $1.

"That was 15 years ago—and now you bring this up before my wife and children."

Knohl took a deep breath and then really let loose:

"The first man that didn't sin, let him come here and cast the first stone!"

Committee counsel Bruno Schachner, calm, low-voiced, had been looking over Knohl's income tax returns and found some interesting sources of revenue—$10,000 here, $25,000 there from betting.

"Are you in the gambling business, Mr. Knohl?" he inquired.

The witness, who lives in Long Beach, N. Y., acted as if he couldn't believe his ears.

"I have never in my life been in the gambling business," he shouted, "and that's a lie!"

He might "derive profit and losses" now and then fro mbetting on the horses or playing dice in Florida. But as for being in the business—never.

Police Probe Woman's Death

CULVER CITY, Calif., Dec. 6 (AP) —Police disclosed today that on the same day an attractive young private operative died mysteriously they were looking into her alleged role as a "lure" for a husband in a domestic case.

Cause of the death last Monday of Mrs. Shirley Kivlin, 24, auburn-haired divorcee who worked part-time for a detective agency, has not been determined. She fell into a coma at nearby Long Beach while in the company of two private detectives, and died later that night.

Her boss, Private Investigator Clyde Duber, said they had several drinks of vodka and orange juice but an autopsy ruled out alcohol as the cause of death. A chemical analysis of her vital organs is now in progress.

Police Detective W. N. Hildebrand said on the day she died, and before he knew she was dead, he was checking a motel raid made Nov. 21 in which she was reported to have acted as the lure.

Hildebrand said the case involved Dr. William L. Barkin, Los Angeles optometrist, presently engaged in a legal contest with his ex-wife, now Mrs. George Fuller of Brentwood, for custody of their children.

Big Four Talks Reach An Impasse

PARIS, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Big Four's secret disarmament talks reached an impasse today.

The delegates in effect gave up trying for agreement on the conflicting East-West plans and prepared to throw the problem back in the lap of the U. N. assemby's political committee.

The end came after eight closed door meetings among Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, U. S. Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd, and French Delegate Jules Moch. They have met as a sub-committee under the chairmanship of Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico.

Committee Commends Defense Mobilization

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP) — A joint Senate-House committee today accused a Senate subcommittee of "crying wolf" in reporting a dangerous lag in the nation's defense mobilization program.

The joint committee commended top government officials for performing "an outstanding job of defense mobilization."

Sharply challenging the subcommittee's note of alarm — but agreeing there have been "lags in certain lines" of defense production — the point committee said in a report:

"Your committee can not reasonably conclude that the nation has failed to maintain its minimum military strength in an effort to place butter before guns."

Parents Call Strike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—A strike called by parents emptied classrooms at two Negro schools today.

The parents — some of whom marched in picket lines outside the buildings—acted in protest against a decision to use another school building several blocks away to relieve overcrowding.

Islam's Leaders Order Boycott War On Britain

By EDWARD POLLACK

CAIRO — (AP) — Britain's dispute with Egypt over the Suez Canal may bring increased difficulties for the English throughout the vast Moslem world.

Islam claims 325,000,000 followers in a great belt stretching from Tangiers in Northwest Africa to the Philippines.

Leaders of these Islamic peoples now are appealing to all Moslems to refuse to cooperate with the British. The appeal is backed up by a threat equivalent to excommunication.

Islam is not threatening a "jihad" or holy war. Its leaders say a declaration of war against the British is up to Moslem governments.

The last jihad was called a few years ago when Arab armies attempted without success to force the Jews out of Palestine.

Most Moslems today realize a jihad cannot succeed against a foe with powerful and modern weapons, but they can still wage a war of non-cooperation and boycott such as Gandhi led in India.

The non-cooperation order comes from Al Azhar, Islam's highest institution, founded over 1,000 years ago in Cairo, heart of the Moslem world.

It comprises: 1. A religious university attended by Moslems from all over the world; 2. A mosque which to many Moslems is the equivalent of St. Peter's Basilica in Rome, and, 3. A council of ulemas or sheikhs.

The council is Al Azhar's supreme authority. Its rulings, called "fatwas" are accepted as gospel by all Moslems.

Al Azhar has warned its millions of followers they would be "expelled" from the religion of the Prophet Mohamed if they collaborate with the British.

Sheikh Mahomud Shaltut, member of the council of ulemas, said in an interview this is the highest punishment that can be inflicted upon a Moslem.

This Al Azhar ruling, issued at the request of a group of Sudanese, applies not only to Moslems in Egypt and the Sudan—bones of contention in the present Anglo-Egyptian crisis—but throughout the world, Shaltut said.

The latest fatwa followed an earlier appeal from Al Azhar, Nov. 11, for "all Arab and Moslem nations" to organize a boycott of Britain.

Another major Moslem leader denounced Britain as the enemy of all Moslems. Abu Bakr Ahmed Halim, president of the World Islamic Congress and head of the University of Karachi (Pakistan), said in Cairo recently the British occupation of the canal zone is "a threat to the whole Islamic world."

He said he had come to Egypt to discuss "what the Moslem world can do for Egypt in her struggle for freedom."

The Hunt Ball And Later

John Wheeler

To close the season for chasing foxes, more or less, there is a big day, topped off by the hunt ball. Unintentionally, I got mixed up in the affair, since I was out taking a quiet jaunt to exercise myself and the horse and ran smack into the group, composed of about 40 riders of both sexes in pink coats, 50 hounds, a headman with a horn, etc. I was threading my way through the crowd which was at rest, when the huntsman shouted,

"Which way did he go?"

"The Russell girl said she saw a fox down the road, if that's what you're looking for," I volunteered. No one, except me, seemed to think the remark very funny.

A retired M. F. H. very nicely asked me to dine with him and attend the ball. The best I could do was to put on ordinary tails and white tie, so when I arrived and found most of the men dressed in "evening scarlet," I felt like a private in the rear rank. In case you don't know, this is a red dress coat with white facings, very dashing. Of course, the costume seems to me to be a bad investment, because the owner wears it only once or at the most twice a year. If he should be sick in bed with the flu and a fever on the big night, it turns out to be a total loss, although he probably feels better the next day than the rest who went.

As I watched the stylish gathering, it reminded me of an experience I had in 1933, when I was in Berlin the day before the Reichstag was to meet and Hitler was officially to become the chancellor. One of the Nazi big shots then was Putzi Hanfstaengl, who was a kind of publicity man, musician, and court clown. Late in the afternoon, I went to see him in his office, having a letter of introduction. He was a little flighty and very friendly in between playing phonograph records.

"Are you going to be here tomorrow for the big parade and the convening of the Reichstag?" he asked. "I will give you a ticket for the reviewing stand."

"No, I am sorry," I replied. "I am taking the midnight train for Paris."

"To bad. Why?"

"Well," I foolishly remarked, "all you guys have uniforms, and I would feel like a heel around in ordinary clothes."

"We're about the same size. I will lend you one of mine," he said. I declined with thanks fortunately as things turned out. No one offered me his red coat for the ball.

We arrived at the country club where the dance was held at 12:15 in the morning when all gents of age should be home and in bed. Even in my younger days, no one ever mistook me for Vernon Castle. I stepped out on the floor twice, once with the hostess and then with another lady in the party. The joint was hot and crowded, and the orchestra played interminably, so I hinted to partner No. 2 my feet hurt, and we sat down. It was a colorful scene, although I was surprised some of the males even wore black ties which must have made the M. F. H. blush. It was like letting in steerage passengers. I left at one.

Two gents and a lady were on their way home late when the lights on their car went out. They stopped an approaching automobile and were surprised to find it contained a sea captain and a monkey, the latter decked out in a stiff shirt and a bow tie. Naturally the young men were puzzled and a little startled until the captain told them of his trade and that he was bringing his passenger back from a voyage. Remarked one of the fox hunters,

"That's certainly a relief, and he's as well dressed as we are."

The captain guided them home with his headlights.

It reminds me of the old story about the fellow with a hangover who woke up one sunny morning to see an organ grinder's monkey which had climbed in through an open window sitting on the post at the foot of his bed. He reached for his shoe and took careful aim with this warning.

"If you're a monkey, you're in a hell of a fix. If you're not a monkey, then I'm in a hell of a fix."

Islam's Leaders Order Boycott War On Britain

By EDWARD POLLACK

CAIRO — (AP) — Britain's dispute with Egypt over the Suez Canal may bring increased difficulties for the English throughout the vast Moslem world.

Islam claims 325,000,000 followers in a great belt stretching from Tangiers in Northwest Africa to the Philippines.

Leaders of these Islamic peoples now are appealing to all Moslems to refuse to cooperate with the British. The appeal is backed up by a threat equivalent to excommunication.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS) — Bill Coffman, the San Franciscan who directs the East-West Shrine Bowl football game each year, was taken to lunch at the Dutch Treat Club the other day. His host forgot to tell him the name of the speaker.

Coffman's eyes popped as he walked past the speaker's table. For he beheld Count Felix Von Luckner, now 79 and back in this country from his native Germany for the first time in nearly 25 years. Two four-masters on which Bill had served a long time ago as able seaman and second mate had been sent to the bottom by Von Luckner during the German's World War I raids in the Pacific.

In 1927 Coffman and Von Luckner met in San Francisco with Jim Rolph, who was later governor of California. Coffman at that time showed Von Luckner pictures of the two ships and, with a shout of recognition, the German autographed them. "I sank this ship," he wrote on each. Rolph was part of that coincidence, too, for one of the ships—the A. D. Johnson—had been owned by the Hind-Rolph Shipping Co.

At the Dutch Treat luncheon Coffman sat next to Ed Murrow. Ed sent a note up to Acting Toastmaster Lowell Thomas, subbing for the brilliant Roy Vir Den, who introduced Coffman as a sort of victim of Von Luckner. The vigorous old count, who looks like Ezio Pinza playing a German seafaring man, came down to Coffman's table to embrace him tearfully.

Von Luckner's subsequent speech was off the record, as are all Dutch Treat Club talks—including a remarkably two-fiisted one about Egypt and the oil-soaked Middle East by War Correspondent Ray Brock the week before.

But later at his hotel the old raider told some of the things that happened to him during World War II. He, who had become an honorary citizen of what he called "San Francisco, New York, Cleveland and North Dakota," was hailed by Hitler when the latter came into power as an example of German might. He had remembered Adolph as an unkempt crasher at one of his lectures in Germany in 1922, and couldn't forget it.

Just before the war Hitler asked him to renounce his honorary U.S. citizenship. Von Luckner refused. Thereafter he was under what amounted to house arrest. His books were burned, his fortune confiscated. As the war neared its end he was in Halle, a town in Southeast Germany near Leipzig, and still under guard.

It was at Halle, he explained, that the Nazi leaders planned to make their last great stand. Topography provided natural fortifications around the city of 200,000 souls. But Von Luckner, who during the other war had removed all members of the crew from ships he was about to sink and deposited them at the nearest port, decided it was criminal for Germany to hold out longer.

He got through the lines, met up with his old friend Gen. Terry Allen, delivered to him a chart showing the areas around the city that had been mined, and returned to Halle to tell the people they would not be bombed if they listened to him instead of the Nazis. Hitler ordered his death, for treason, but he got back to Gen. Allen's HQ and entered the city with Allen's forces.

The women of Halle, he said, stormed Gestapo headquarters and the Nazis fled. Women, he added, helped dismantle the fortifications of the town, after he told them—and the men—that if they resisted his friend Allen would call for a thousand bombers to level the city.

As Von Luckner rode into town with Allen they passed his 91-year-old mother's house. She had hoisted the Stars and Stripes and had tea and black bread for the victors.

Von Luckner is amazingly well preserved, and he owes it all to good whisky and bull hormones. To demonstrate that he was still able to make a speech he tore the monstrous Manhattan phone book in half with his hands at the start. And with a rather wonderful sense of the theatric, he tore it the hard way—binding first.

In 1927 Coffman and Von Luckner met in San Francisco with Jim Rolph, who was later governor of California. Coffman at that time showed Von Luckner pictures of the two ships and, with a shout of recognition, the German autographed them. "I sank this ship," he wrote on each. Rolph was part of that coincidence, too, for one of the ships—the A. D. Johnson—had been owned by the Hind-Rolph Shipping Co.

At the Dutch Treat luncheon Coffman sat next to Ed Murrow. Ed sent a note up to Acting Toastmaster Lowell Thomas, subbing for the brilliant Roy Vir Den, who introduced Coffman as a sort of victim of Von Luckner. The vigorous old count, who looks like Ezio Pinza playing a German seafaring man, came down to Coffman's table to embrace him tearfully.

Von Luckner's subsequent speech was off the record, as are all Dutch Treat Club talks—including a remarkably two-fiisted one about Egypt and the oil-soaked Middle East by War Correspondent Ray Brock the week before.

But later at his hotel the old raider told some of the things that happened to him during World War II. He, who had become an honorary citizen of what he called "San Francisco, New York, Cleveland and North Dakota," was hailed by Hitler when the latter came into power as an example of German might. He had remembered Adolph as an unkempt crasher at one of his lectures in Germany in 1922, and couldn't forget it.

Just before the war Hitler asked him to renounce his honorary U.S. citizenship. Von Luckner refused. Thereafter he was under what amounted to house arrest. His books were burned, his fortune confiscated. As the war neared its end he was in Halle, a town in Southeast Germany near Leipzig, and still under guard.

It was at Halle, he explained, that the Nazi leaders planned to make their last great stand. Topography provided natural fortifications around the city of 200,000 souls. But Von Luckner, who during the other war had removed all members of the crew from ships he was about to sink and deposited them at the nearest port, decided it was criminal for Germany to hold out longer.

He got through the lines, met up with his old friend Gen. Terry Allen, delivered to him a chart showing the areas around the city that had been mined, and returned to Halle to tell the people they would not be bombed if they listened to him instead of the Nazis. Hitler ordered his death, for treason, but he got back to Gen. Allen's HQ and entered the city with Allen's forces.

The women of Halle, he said, stormed Gestapo headquarters and the Nazis fled. Women, he added, helped dismantle the fortifications of the town, after he told them—and the men—that if they resisted his friend Allen would call for a thousand bombers to level the city.

As Von Luckner rode into town with Allen they passed his 91-year-old mother's house. She had hoisted the Stars and Stripes and had tea and black bread for the victors.

Von Luckner is amazingly well preserved, and he owes it all to good whisky and bull hormones. To demonstrate that he was still able to make a speech he tore the monstrous Manhattan phone book in half with his hands at the start. And with a rather wonderful sense of the theatric, he tore it the hard way—binding first.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS) — Bill Coffman, the San Franciscan who directs the East-West Shrine Bowl football game each year, was taken to lunch at the Dutch Treat Club the other day. His host forgot to tell him the name of the speaker.

Coffman's eyes popped as he walked past the speaker's table. For he beheld Count Felix Von Luckner, now 79 and back in this country from his native Germany for the first time in nearly 25 years. Two four-masters on which Bill had served a long time ago as able seaman and second mate had been sent to the bottom by Von Luckner during the German's World War I raids in the Pacific.

In 1927 Coffman and Von Luckner met in San Francisco with Jim Rolph, who was later governor of California. He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Edna McNeill; two children, John Inskeep and Miss Mary Elder Inskeep; one sister, Mrs. Karl McNeill, and a brother, Phillip W. Inskeep, both of Moorefield.

PMA Committee Considers Practices

A preliminary discussion of the proposed 1952 practices of the agriculture conservation program of the Production and Marketing Administration featured the meeting of the County PMA Committee yesterday at 37 Washington Street.

Full recommendations on the practices will be devised at a meeting of the Agricultural Resources Committee of the county at the PMA Office at 9:30 a. m. Friday, December 14.

Merry-Go-Round

After that she resumed speaking to me again.

I pointed out to Mr. Baynton that he had told my assistant and the press chief of the Justice Department conflicting stories about his wife's "borrowed" mink; and asked him which was right. He replied that my assistant had not pressed him hard enough, and insisted that he was telling me the truth.

Personally I wasn't quite sure how to take Mr. Baynton's story, so I've decided to let the reader judge for himself.

But one thing I'm sure of is that while mink coats are important, some of the other scandals going on in this town — from the graft in the China lobby, to the B. and O. Railroad RFC loan, to Guy Gabrielson's Carthage Hydrocol loan — are a lot worse than Mrs. Baynton's mink coat.

NOTE — The Leitz Company is the same firm on which Attorney General McGrath has appointed two of his close associates as directors — G. Merlyn O'Keefe, who runs McGrath's Chrysler-Plymouth agency, and Harold G. Paull, who is vice president of McGrath's Federal Savings and Loan Association in Providence.

DEATHS and FUNERALS

SISTER LORETTA

Sister Loretta Cassidy, 55, assistant business manager of Allegany Hospital since 1948, died Wednesday night at the hospital.

Born Loretta Catherine Cassidy on January 12, 1896, she was a daughter of the late Francis P. and Catherine (Graef) Cassidy.

Sister Cassidy was assistant business manager at St. Mary's Hospital, Detroit, and at Sisters' Hospital and emergency Hospital, Buffalo, N. Y., before coming to Cumberland.

Survivors include two brothers, Francis J. Cassidy, Upper Darby, Pa., and Carl Cassidy, West Philadelphia, and a cousin, Sister M. Edmonda Barley of Visitation Convent, Wilmington, Del.

A requiem mass will be held today at 9 a. m. in the hospital chapel. Interment will be in St. Patrick's Cemetery.

ANDREW WHITE

FROSTBURG — Andrew White, native of Frostburg and a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert White, died Thursday morning in Germantown (Pa.) Hopsital, near Philadelphia.

A retired plumber, Mr. White is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Furman Foy, Hatboro, Pa., and Mrs. Bertha Rickert, Willow Grove, Pa.; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Rephann and Mrs. Sarah G. Franklin, Frostburg, and a brother, Samuel J. White, Salisbury, Md.

The body will arrive in Frostburg tomorrow.

MRS. EFFIE THOMAS

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Effie (Baker) Thomas, 84, died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. Kear Hosken, 128 East Main Street.

Besides Mrs. Hosken, survivors include a sister, Mrs. Edward L. Betz, Kansas City, Mo., and three grandchildren, Raymond Thomas, serving with the Navy; William B. Thomas, Naval Academy, and Miss Marjorie Hosken, at home.

Mrs. Thomas, a retired school teacher, held membership in First English Baptist Church.

A funeral service will be conducted at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the home by Rev. Donald Voseller, pastor of First English Baptist Church. Burial will be in Frostburg Memorial Park.

MRS. DENNISON RITES

FROSTBURG — A funeral service will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Hafer Funeral Home here for Mrs. Virgie Fichtner Dennison, 83, of 28 Frost Avenue, who died Wednesday in Miners Hospital. Rev. John Bayley Jones, pastor of First Methodist Church, will officiate and interment will be in Palo Alto Cemetery.

MISS MARGARET SWANGER

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Miss Margaret Swanger, 81, formerly of here, died at Gaithersburg Methodist Church Home Wednesday. She was born in New Creek, W. Va., and was a daughter of the late Samuel and Ella Swanger.

Miss Swanger was reared in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Dye, East Hampshire Street, and resided there for 59 years until she entered the Church Home in 1938.

She is survived by a niece and three nephews. Services will be held at the Gaithersburg Methodist Church Home Saturday afternoon.

MRS. ANNIE HELTZEL

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—A service for Mrs. Annie (Barney) Heltzel, 87, widow of A. R. Heltzel, who died last Thursday, was held Sunday afternoon in Wardensville Methodist Church with Rev. F. P. Look officiating. Burial was in Wardensville Cemetery.

A native of Wardensville, Hardy County, Mrs. Heltzel had resided there until 16 years ago when she moved to Baltimore.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Carl Cathers, Morgantown, and Miss Alma Heltzel, Baltimore; three sons, Dr. Virgil B. Heltzel, Evanston, Ill.; Raymond and Herman Heltzel, Baltimore; a brother, John D. Barney, Wardensville; three grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

MRS. RUPPENKAMP RITES

A requiem mass was celebrated yesterday at St. Mary's Catholic Church for Mrs. Regina Pearl Ruppenkamp, 50, of Oldtown Road, who died Monday in Allegany Hospital. Rev. Laurence P. Landrigan, pastor, was celebrant and burial was in the church cemetery.

Pallbearers were Robert, James and William Ruppenkamp, Joseph Nikirk, Harold Parker and James Deninger.

Mr. Inskeep was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Inskeep of Moorefield. He operated a farm near here for many years until moving to Maryland several years ago.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Edna McNeill; two children, John Inskeep and Miss Mary Elder Inskeep; one sister, Mrs. Karl McNeill, and a brother, Phillip W. Inskeep, both of Moorefield.

PMA Committee Considers Practices

A preliminary discussion of the proposed 1952 practices of the agriculture conservation program of the Production and Marketing Administration featured the meeting of the County PMA Committee yesterday at 37 Washington Street.

Full recommendations on the practices will be devised at a meeting of the Agricultural Resources Committee of the county at the PMA Office at 9:30 a. m. Friday, December 14.

Merry-Go-Round

After that she resumed speaking to me again.

I pointed out to Mr. Baynton that he had told my assistant and the press chief of the Justice Department conflicting stories about his wife's "borrowed" mink; and asked him which was right. He replied that my assistant had not pressed him hard enough, and insisted that he was telling me the truth.

Personally I wasn't quite sure how to take Mr. Baynton's story, so I've decided to let the reader judge for himself.

But one thing I'm sure of is that while mink coats are important, some of the other scandals going on in this town — from the graft in the China lobby, to the B. and O. Railroad RFC loan, to Guy Gabrielson's Carthage Hydrocol loan — are a lot worse than Mrs. Baynton's mink coat.

NOTE — The Leitz Company is the same firm on which Attorney General McGrath has appointed two of his close associates as directors — G. Merlyn O'Keefe, who runs McGrath's Chrysler-Plymouth agency, and Harold G. Paull, who is vice president of McGrath's Federal Savings and Loan Association in Providence.

Scientist Says Low Power Atom Plant Developed

There's more to atomic energy than the shocking, awesome spectacle of the mushrooming, deadly radioactive cloud of an atom bomb blast. Despite the atom weapons race, the Atomic Energy Commission also goes right on working toward the peaceful application of latent atomic power. Development of reactors in various parts of the country has been one of the most significant facets of the huge atomic energy program. In the following exclusive article a noted scientist tells of the development of the safest, low-cost research atomic power plant yet, which may open the way for untold discoveries in medicine, industry and other fields.

By DR. HARRY PEARLMAN
Chief Atomic Energy Research Department, North American Aviation Inc.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—The dramatic order came down from the Atomic Energy Commission:

Develop a low power atomic energy plant. And find a foolproof way to release its energy slowly so there can be no runaway chain reaction toward a terrific explosion.

The order was received at North American Aviation's atomic energy research department, and under the technical direction of Dr. Chauncey Starr, that is exactly what has been done.

We have developed a low power "reactor" — or atomic furnace — which can release its energy slowly over a period of many years for literally thousands of peaceful pursuits.

There are many significant aspects of this atomic development, but perhaps the most important feature is that we can now produce isotopes, or by another name, the famed "tagged atoms" for research on a local or regional basis.

Tagged atoms have been used effectively in cancer research by the Bureau of Reclamation in water conservation study, in dentistry, in motor transportation, and in the study of water pollution and smog.

Heretofore, the main source of isotopes has been the Oak Ridge reactor in Tennessee, but the California development makes possible more effective research throughout the western United States by swift availability of short-lived isotopes.

These "tagged atoms" have been used successfully, for instance, in tracing a cancer-producing chemical with radioactive carbon. More than 100 chemicals have been found in this manner to be damaging cancers in animals, and studies are underway to determine which are effective for human use.

I call our production of isotopes the work of the "friendly atom." There are so many peaceful applications to which it can be put.

Along this line one of the major features of the atomic power plant is its safety. It can be used anywhere with no danger, and nowhere is there a reactor of equivalent power with the foolproof safety features. It can be used safely, for example, right on a university campus or in the center of any metropolitan area.

Further it can be built at low cost.

The importance to the nationwide atomic energy program in the development of the atomic furnace in Los Angeles is emphasized by the fact that the 2,000-to-3,000-mile plane trip from existing isotope centers at Oak Ridge and at Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York rules out effective use of some of the short-lived isotopes.

There are some 40 types of short-lived isotopes which are practical in important, and in some cases secret, research on the west coast, but the time required to package the shipment after removal from other reactors and move them across the country curtails their usefulness.

Uranium is used in the North American Aviation reactor, so arranged so that a single charge will permit operation eight hours a day, five days a week for at least ten years with a nuclear energy-release equivalent to 160 kilowats.

The nuclear reaction is controlled by a reactor operator who can hold the atomic power within design by changing the setting of the neutron-absorbing control rods.

It is foolproof and sabotage proof. If the operator should "be asleep at the switch," or try deliberately to sabotage the reactor, a built-in safety feature cuts down on neutron production and makes it impossible for a chain reaction to develop.

U. S. Troops Stationed On Hokkaido Stare Down Throats Of Russians

By DON HUTH

SOMEWHERE ON HOKKAIDO—(AP)—Several hundred Americans are starting down the throats of the Russians on this mountainous, snow-covered island.

They are Air Force personnel who operate the radar network spread across this closest point to Russia proper. They are part of the island defense the United States is pledged to maintain.

Hokkaido's 34,267 square miles lie in the most critical area of possible Communist attack in event of a third world war.

Its southeastern tip is only three miles from the nearest island in the Soviet-dominated Kuriles chain.

For the Americans on the island, it is like sitting at the base of a smouldering volocano with little place to run if a fullscale eruption comes.

"Our only problem is getting them off their assigned sites and back to headquarters," said Air Force Lt. Col. George H. Sutherlin of Alexandria, La., group radar commander. "They don't want to leave."

The men, some of whom have their families with them, are quartered in well insulated and well heated buildings.

The winters are cold and desolate. Screaming winds whip across the bleak landscape.

Motion pictures and books are provided regularly. But entertainment is what the radar station teams themselves can provide. They have won fast friends in the nearby Japanese fishing villages.

Sutherlin said logistics is the main problem. Supplies must be sent by rail. Two supply and inspection trips are made to the sites each month.

Sutherlin said during the sub-zero weather it had been decided to rotate the men back to the nearest point of civilization.

"We actually had to order the men out in some cases," he said.

"The men at the air bases really admire my men. They realize that their lives sometimes are in the hands of these radar operators when it comes to getting back to base safely."

Sutherlin said he had never seen or heard anything to indicate subversive activities on the part of the Japanese against his men.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Scientist Says Low Power Atom Plant Developed

There's more to atomic energy than the shocking, awesome spectacle of the mushrooming, deadly radioactive cloud of an atom bomb blast. Despite the atom weapons race, the Atomic Energy Commission also goes right on working toward the peaceful application of latent atomic power. Development of reactors in various parts of the country has been one of the most significant facets of the huge atomic energy program. In the following exclusive article a noted scientist tells of the development of the safest, low-cost research atomic power plant yet, which may open the way for untold discoveries in medicine, industry and other fields.

By DR. HARRY PEARLMAN
Chief Atomic Energy Research Department, North American Aviation Inc.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—The dramatic order came down from the Atomic Energy Commission:

Develop a low power atomic energy plant. And find a foolproof way to release its energy slowly so there can be no runaway chain reaction toward a terrific explosion.

The order was received at North American Aviation's atomic energy research department, and under the technical direction of Dr. Chauncey Starr, that is exactly what has been done.

We have developed a low power "reactor" — or atomic furnace — which can release its energy slowly over a period of many years for literally thousands of peaceful pursuits.

There are many significant aspects of this atomic development, but perhaps the most important feature is that we can now produce isotopes, or by another name, the famed "tagged atoms" for research on a local or regional basis.

Tagged atoms have been used effectively in cancer research by the Bureau of Reclamation in water conservation study, in dentistry, in motor transportation, and in the study of water pollution and smog.

Heretofore, the main source of isotopes has been the Oak Ridge reactor in Tennessee, but the California development makes possible more effective research throughout the western United States by swift availability of short-lived isotopes.

These "tagged atoms" have been used successfully, for instance, in tracing a cancer-producing chemical with radioactive carbon. More than 100 chemicals have been found in this manner to be damaging cancers in animals, and studies are underway to determine which are effective for human use.

I call our production of isotopes the work of the "friendly atom." There are so many peaceful applications to which it can be put.

Along this line one of the major features of the atomic power plant is its safety. It can be used anywhere with no danger, and nowhere is there a reactor of equivalent power with the foolproof safety features. It can be used safely, for example, right on a university campus or in the center of any metropolitan area.

Further it can be built at low cost.

The importance to the nationwide atomic energy program in the development of the atomic furnace in Los Angeles is emphasized by the fact that the 2,000-to-3,000-mile plane trip from existing isotope centers at Oak Ridge and at Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York rules out effective use of some of the short-lived isotopes.

There are some 40 types of short-lived isotopes which are practical in important, and in some cases secret, research on the west coast, but the time required to package the shipment after removal from other reactors and move them across the country curtails their usefulness.

Uranium is used in the North American Aviation reactor, so arranged so that a single charge will permit operation eight hours a day, five days a week for at least ten years with a nuclear energy-release equivalent to 160 kilowats.

The nuclear reaction is controlled by a reactor operator who can hold the atomic power within design by changing the setting of the neutron-absorbing control rods.

It is foolproof and sabotage proof. If the operator should "be asleep at the switch," or try deliberately to sabotage the reactor, a built-in safety feature cuts down on neutron production and makes it impossible for a chain reaction to develop.

CUMBERLAND FAMILIES GET $100 CASH NOW FOR SHOPPING NEEDS

A "Holiday Shopping Money" Plan now being offered here by Aetna Finance Co. enables any worthy family or individual to get $100 cash at once for shopping needs.

The money is available on name only to any worthy person or individual.

The Aetna Company also offers larger amounts up to $300, to pay bills, or for other purposes. To obtain the cash promptly, stop in at the convenient Aetna office, 7 North Liberty Street, opposite Ft. Cumberland Hotel, in Cumberland.

U. S. Troops Stationed On Hokkaido Stare Down Throats Of Russians

By DON HUTH

SOMEWHERE ON HOKKAIDO—(AP)—Several hundred Americans are starting down the throats of the Russians on this mountainous, snow-covered island.

They are Air Force personnel who operate the radar network spread across this closest point to Russia proper. They are part of the island defense the United States is pledged to maintain.

Hokkaido's 34,267 square miles lie in the most critical area of possible Communist attack in event of a third world war.

Its southeastern tip is only three miles from the nearest island in the Soviet-dominated Kuriles chain.

Their ships pass through the narrow straits between Sakhalin and Hokkaido.

Red searchlights play across the skies at night.

For the Americans on the island, it is like sitting at the base of a smouldering volocano with little place to run if a fullscale eruption comes.

"Our only problem is getting them off their assigned sites and back to headquarters," said Air Force Lt. Col. George H. Sutherlin of Alexandria, La., group radar commmander. "They don't want to leave."

The stations are scattered along the Rocky coastline, well concealed and operating 24 hours a day.

The men, some of whom have their families with them, are quartered in well insulated and well heated buildings.

The winters are cold and desolate. Screaming winds whip across the bleak landscape.

Motion pictures and books are provided regularly. But entertainment is what the radar station teams themselves can provide. They have won fast friends in the nearby Japanese fishing villages.

Sutherlin said logistics is the main problem. Supplies must be sent by rail. Two supply and inspection trips are made to the sites each month.

Sutherlin said during the sub-zero weather it had been decided to rotate the men back to the nearest point of civilization.

"We actually had to order the men out in some cases," he said.

"The men at the air bases really admire my men. They realize that their lives sometimes are in the hands of these radar operators when it comes to getting back to base safely."

Sutherlin said he had never seen or heard anything to indicate subversive activities on the part of the Japanese against his men.

Cresaptown Fireman Elect Officers

Members of the Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Company this week elected Oral Nicholas president.

Other officers named were Samuel Brown, vice president; D. A. Faulkner, financial secretary; Michael Reagan, treasurer; Dale Broadwater, recording secretary; Joseph Wenrich, chief; Fred Boland, drill sergeant.

Trustees named were Vincent Dutton, Paul Moreland, Francis Nichols, Edmond Shaffer, Lewis Winters.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Serve Tea Drink For Holiday Feast

The holiday season, from Thanksgiving right up to New Year's Day is the time for friendly get-togethers. Neighbors, the family and old friends drop in unexpectedly. You can add a touch of real festivity to such occasions without straining the already overburdened food budget — just get out the punch bowl, set a pretty buffet and serve these hearty, economical tea drinks, brewed in the holiday spirit and steeped in gay friendliness.

Honey Spiced Tea

8 cups freshly boiled hot water; 4 level tablespoons tea; 2 level tablespoons whole cloves; 1 cup strained orange juice; ½ cup lemon juice; 2-3 to ¾ cup honey as desired.

Pour 5 cups of the boiling water over the tea and cloves; let steep for five minutes, strain; add orange and leman juices, honey and remaining 3 cups hot water. Stir until honey is thoroughly dissolved.

Tea Nog

1 box cinnamon sticks; (1½ ounces); 1 box whole cloves (1½ ounces); ¾ cup honey; Juice of 3 oranges—grated rind of one; Juice of 6 lemons—grated rind of one; ⅓ cup loose black tea.

Cook spices, honey and grated rind with 2 cups water for 10 minutes. Let stand one hour. Strain. Steep tea in boiling water 3 minutes. Then add fruit juice and spice mixture. Serve hot: Yield: 45 cups.

Holiday Tea Punch

½ cup sugar; ½ cup water; one 2" stick cinnamon; 1 teaspoon lemon rind; 1½ teaspoons orange rind; ¼ cup orange juice; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; ¼ cup pineapple juice; 3 cups boiling water; 3 tablespoons tea.

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon, lemon rind and orange rind in saucepan. Boil 5 minutes; then remove the cinnamon sticks. Add oranges, lemon and pineapple juice; keep hot. Pour boiling water over the tea; steep 3 minutes or more. Combine tea and fruit mixtures. Serve hot in tea or punch cups. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

For Impromptu Tea

For the really impromptu affair here are some festivity-minded tea variations guaranteed to put any guest in the holiday mood. Based on plain hot and hearty tea, they are so simple to make that even the man in your life can make and serve them with the greatest aplomb.

For all recipes make tea as follows: Use your teapot and one teaspoon of tea or one teabag for each cup plus one for the pot. It's best to scald the pot first, so that the right temperature is maintained during brewing time. Pour bubbly boiling water over the tea. Let stand three to five minutes.

* * *

Husband Special — in each small glass (use punch cups if you have them) place 1½ teaspoons sugar, 1 thick slice lemon stuck with 12 or 14 cloves. Pour over this hot, hefty tea. Add a jigger of light rum. Servew ith a cinnamon stick muddler. Warm and cheering, this is the tea recipe the amateur gourmet will take to his heart.

Another Festive-Minded Punch—is made by adding 1 cup White Port wine and 2 tablespoons lemon juice to 1 cup strong hot tea made by using two teabags or two teaspoons of tea to a cup of bubbly boiling water. Chill, garnish with orange slices and pour into your fanciest glasses. This recipe is for two celebration-minded people. Double it as many times as you wish for a prize party punch.

* * *

Sentimental Specialties were Grandma's forte. She watched the budget with a close eye, too, and let imagination make up for money. A few cinnamon hearts added to a cup of steaming hot tea was a favorite trick of Grandma's when she wanted to dress up economical tea for a special occasion. Try this in your sentimental scheme.

Menu Magic

APPLE KUCHEN

Apples can serve as the basis for any number of delicious desserts. This new recipe for a spicy dish called apple kuchen is worthy of adding to your collection. Give your family fair warning to save room for dessert when you serve apple kuchen, because it is unusually rich and satisfying.

Apple Kuchen

1 cup milk, scalded
⅓ cup sugar
⅓ cup margarine
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup lukewarm water
2 packages or cakes yeast
2 eggs
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 apples, sliced
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 egg yolk
3 tablespoons cream or top milk

Mix the sugar, margarine, and salt in the hot milk. Cool to a luke warm temperature. Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water. (Follow directions on package for dry yeast.) Combine the milk and yeast mixture and stir in the well-beaten eggs. Add and stir in the flour using enough to make a stiff batter. This recipe will make two 8-inch square pans. Pour into greased pans. Cover with a clean towel. Place in a warm place and let rise until doubled in bulk. Arrange the peeled sliced apples over the top. Mix the sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over the apples. Mix the egg yolk and cream together and drizzle around the apples. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Chiffon Pie Acquires Smooth Airy Texture With Gelatine

TINSEL light, colorful as a holly wreath comes an egg nog chiffon pie to the party feast. Commercially-made egg nog as an ingredient in the filling means that a custard base is all ready to acquire its chiffon texture with unflavored gelatine. See recipe elsewhere on this page.

Chiffon pies complete holiday meals with a light, airy note. By using commercially-made egg nog, you incorporate a seasonal beverage in a novel dessert. Unflavored gelatine combined with egg nog and whipped cream is the magic ingredient to maintain the airy texture and height of the pie's filling. The addition of nuts and maraschino cherries varies this basic filling for a nesselrode pie. The gay wreath of whipped cream with citron and shaved chocolate trim is a colorful invitation for all to join in the eating enjoyment.

Egg Nog Chiffon Pie

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine; 4 cups bottled egg nog; ¼ cup sugar; 1 cup heavy cream, whipped; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, optional; 4 teaspoons rum flavoring, optional; 1 10-inch baked pie shell.

Soften gelatine in 1 cup of the cold egg nog in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water. Add sugar and stir until —gelatine and sugar is dissolved. Add remaining egg nog. If additional flavoring is desired, add nutmeg and flavoring. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Whip gelatine mixture until light and fluffy; fold into whipped cream. Turn into pie shell; chill until firm. Garnish with additional cream, shaved chocolate, chopped maraschino cherries, orange peel and citron. YIELD: 1 10-inch pie.

VARIATION: To make Nesselrode Pie, fold in ½ cup chopped maraschino cherries and ½ cup chopped nuts just before turning into pieshell.

Finely shredded cooked carrots, snap beans, turnips and beets make a delightful addition to consomme. Add one to two tablespoons of the vegetables for each serving of the soup.

Serve Tea Drink For Holiday Feast

The holiday season, from Thanksgiving right up to New Year's Day is the time for friendly get-togethers. Neighbors, the family and old friends drop in unexpectedly. You can add a touch of real festivity to such occasions without straining the already overburdened food budget — just get out the punch bowl, set a pretty buffet and serve these hearty, economical tea drinks, brewed in the holiday spirit and steeped in gay friendliness.

Honey Spiced Tea

8 cups freshly boiled hot water; 4 level tablespoons tea; 2 level tablespoons whole cloves; 1 cup strained orange juice; ½ cup lemon juice; 2-3 to ¾ cup honey as desired.

Pour 5 cups of the boiling water over the tea and cloves; let steep for five minutes, strain; add orange and leman juices, honey and remaining 3 cups hot water. Stir until honey is thoroughly dissolved.

Tea Nog

1 box cinnamon sticks; (1½ ounces); 1 box whole cloves (1½ ounces); ¾ cup honey; Juice of 3 oranges—grated rind of one; Juice of 6 lemons—grated rind of one; ⅓ cup loose black tea.

Cook spices, honey and grated rind with 2 cups water for 10 minutes. Let stand one hour. Strain. Steep tea in boiling water 3 minutes. Then add fruit juice and spice mixture. Serve hot: Yield: 45 cups.

Holiday Tea Punch

⅓ cup sugar; ½ cup water; one 2" stick cinnamon; 1 teaspoon lemon rind; 1½ teaspoons orange rind; ¼ cup orange juice; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; ¼ cup pineapple juice; 3 cups boiling water; 3 tablespoons tea.

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon, lemon rind and orange rind in saucepan. Boil 5 minutes; then remove the cinnamon sticks. Add oranges, lemon and pineapple juice; keep hot. Pour boiling water over the tea; steep 3 minutes or more. Combine tea and fruit mixtures. Serve hot in tea or punch cups. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

For Impromptu Tea

For the really impromptu affair here are some festivity-minded tea variations guaranteed to put any guest in the holiday mood. Based on plain hot and hearty tea, they are so simple to make that even the man in your life can make and serve them with the greatest aplomb.

For all recipes make tea as follows: Use your teapot and one teaspoon of tea or one teabag for each cup plus one for the pot. It's best to scald the pot first, so that the right temperature is maintained during brewing time. Pour bubbly boiling water over the tea. Let stand three to five minutes.

• • •

Husband Special — in each small glass (use punch cups if you have them) place 1½ teaspoons sugar, 1 thick slice lemon stuck with 12 or 14 cloves. Pour over this hot, hefty tea. Add a jigger of light rum. Servew ith a cinnamon stick muddler. Warm and cheering, this is the tea recipe the amateur gourmet will take to his heart.

Another Festive-Minded Punch—is made by adding 1 cup White Port wine and 2 tablespoons lemon juice to 1 cup strong hot tea made by using two teabags or two teaspoons of tea to a cup of bubbly boiling water. Chill, garnish with orange slices and pour into your fanciest glasses. This recipe is for two celebration-minded people. Double it as many times as you wish for a prize party punch.

• • •

Sentimental Specialties were Grandma's forte. She watched the budget with a close eye, too, and let imagination make up for money. A few cinnamon hearts added to a cup of steaming hot tea was a favorite trick of Grandma's when she wanted to dress up economical tea for a special occasion. Try this in your sentimental scheme.

APPLE KUCHEN

Apples can serve as the basis for any number of delicious desserts. This new recipe for a spicy dish called apple kuchen is worthy of adding to your collection. Give your family fair warning to save room for dessert when you serve apple kuchen, because it is unusually rich and satisfying.

Apple Kuchen

- 1 cup milk, scalded
- ⅓ cup sugar
- ⅓ cup margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup lukewarm water
- 2 packages or cakes yeast
- 2 eggs
- 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 3 apples, sliced
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 egg yolk
- 3 tablespoons cream or top milk

Mix the sugar, margarine, and salt in the hot milk. Cool to a luke warm temperature. Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water. (Follow directions on package for dry yeast.) Combine the milk and yeast mixture and stir in the well-beaten eggs. Add and stir in the flour using enough to make a stiff batter. This recipe will make two 8-inch square pans. Pour into greased pans. Cover with a clean towel. Place in a warm place and let rise until doubled in bulk. Arrange the peeled sliced apples over the top. Mix the sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over the apples. Mix the egg yolk and cream together and drizzle around the apples. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Chiffon Pie Acquires Smooth Airy Texture With Gelatine

TINSEL light, colorful as a holly wreath comes an egg nog chiffon pie to the party feast. Commercially-made egg nog as an ingredient in the filling means that a custard base is all ready to acquire its chiffon texture with unflavored gelatine. See recipe elsewhere on this page.

Chiffon pies complete holiday meals with a light, airy note. By using commercially-made egg nog, you incorporate a seasonal beverage in a novel dessert. Unflavored gelatine combined with egg nog and whipped cream is the magic ingredient to maintain the airy texture and height of the pie's filling. The addition of nuts and maraschino cherries varies this basic filling for a nesselrode pie. The gay wreath of whipped cream with citron and shaved chocolate trim is a colorful invitation for all to join in the eating enjoyment.

Egg Nog Chiffon Pie

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine; 4 cups bottled egg nog; ¼ cup sugar; 1 cup heavy cream, whipped; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, optional; 4 teaspoons rum flavoring, optional; 1 10-inch baked pie shell.

Soften gelatine in 1 cup of the cold egg nog in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water. Add sugar and stir until —gelatine and sugar is dissolved. Add remaining egg nog. If additional flavoring is desired, add nutmeg and flavoring. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Whip gelatine mixture until light and fluffy; fold into whipped cream. Turn into pie shell; chill until firm. Garnish with additional cream, shaved chocolate, chopped maraschino cherries, orange peel and citron. YIELD: 1 10-inch pie.

VARIATION: To make Nesselrode Pie, fold in ½ cup chopped maraschino cherries and ½ cup chopped nuts just before turning into pieshell.

Finely shredded cooked carrots, snap beans, turnips and beets make a delightful addition to consomme. Add one to two tablespoons of the vegetables for each serving of the soup.

Meals To Remember Dramatize Simple Foods

You can stimulate the family's appetite with an unusual dish or two that everyone will enjoy. All you need to do is to dramatize simple foods so that they take on a little glamour and are more interesting. There is cheese, for instance. Of course you serve it often, but have you ever made a cheese fondue the way they do in Switzerland? If you have never been to this charming little country you certainly have a great treat in store. The breathtaking scenery in winter or summer, the invigorating Alpine air, the intensive sunshine, the fragrance of the woods, the friendliness of the people, the good things to eat; all these and many more will be memories you'll never forget.

But to get back to the cheese fondue which is a sort of super-duper Welsh rarebit. Our recipe today uses white wine and kirsch or brandy as the Swiss do it. They have some delightful customs in connection with the fondue. It is never put into separate plates. Everyone eats from the same casserole by dipping small pieces of bread impaled on a fork into the delicious concoction. According to an old tradition, the first person who drops the bread from his fork must treat with a bottle of wine.

Your table companions are invariably your family and friends, and the spirit goes up and up as the fondue goes down and down. A quaint custom, which further reinforces the fondue's power to cement friendship is "le coup du milieu", a little glass of wine which is ceremoniously drunk when the fondue is half eaten. You will surprise and delight the family if you serve them a Swiss fondue with "the half-way sip".

Another important item of food in Switzerland, which is also popular here in this country, is cheese cake. The Swiss very often serve it hot for a light supper, followed by a cold ham and lettuce salad, and coffee or white wine.

Swiss Cheese Fondue

Shred cheese fine and dredge with flour. Pour wine into shallow-heat-proof casserole and heat but do not allow to boil. Add ⅓ of the cheese and stir over low heat until melted. Add remaining cheese in two installments. Continue stirring until mixture begins to bubble. Then stir in kirsch or brandy. Keep hot by serving over candle or alcohol flame. Serve with French bread cut into 1-inch squares. Spear the cubes of bread with a fork and dip into cheese, one at a time. If mixture becomes too thick, add a little more heated wine.

Note: Salt, pepper and nutmeg may be added, if desired, but the flavor of Swiss cheese is so good that this is not essential. The casserole may be rubbed with a clove of garlic.

Swiss Cheese Cake

Mix cheese, grated or put through meat chopper, lightly beaten eggs, milk and flour. Line 8-inch pie plate with pastry and half fill with the mixture. Bake in moderate oven for twenty minutes. Remove from plate and serve hot.

"Mehlsuppe"

2 tblsp. butter; 3 tblsp. flour; 1 sliced onion; 2½ cups water or meat stock; 2 bouillon cubes pepper and salt: 3 tblsp grated Swiss cheese.

Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and stir five minutes. Add onion and cook until it is golden brown. Add water and bouillon cubes and simmer for 30 minutes. Strain, season to taste and serve with grated cheese.

Mash liverwurst with a little mayonnaise and spread on crackers or rounds of Melba toast; garnish with a little chopped onion and sieved hard-cooked egg.

Dip your kitchen scissors in water when you are cutting foods such as dates and marshmallows with it. A kitchen scissors is also useful with which to cut parsley fine.

To make a quick sauce for ham, melt currant jelly and then beat in a little prepared mustard.

TOASTED PEACHES

Luscious toasted peaches make an excellent addition to any menu—but they're especially good as accompaniment to a hamburger supper. To round out the menu, serve piping hot corn on the cob with a generous supply of creamy margarine.

Toasted Peaches

1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 peach halves
2 tablespoons melted margarine
¼ cup crushed corn flakes or graham crackers

Mix the grated rind, sugar, and lemon juice. Dip each peach half into the mixture. Next, dip the peach halves into melted margarine and roll in crushed cereal or cracker crumbs. Arrange cut side down in a shallow pan. Bake in a slow oven (300 to 325° F.) for about 30 minutes. Canned peaches may be used. They require about 15 minutes cooking time.

A Fellow Can Eat A Pancake "Snowman"!

If Johnny likes to cook, aid and abet him. He may not be a famous chef in the making—but at least he'll grow up to have a culinary "specialty" that will provide his wife with a night off occasionally!

With real snowmen just around the corner, Johnny will enjoy preparing—and eating—a pancake snowman. You provide the batter and give Johnny the green light. He'll love you for it—now and later, and he'll be encouraged to eat a good, a real American breakfast. Add to the boy's props, a can of maple-blended syrup, crisp broiled bacon, butter, and a bowl of plump raisins. Eyes and buttons-down-the-front of each snowman will make a gay picture on the breakfast plate—the snowman liberally covered with maple-blended syrup will have melt-in-the-mouth goodness.

Add fruit in season, a tall glass of milk, and your Johnny can have a real American breakfast of his own making!

Snowmen Pancakes

Use your favorite pancake recipe. Then, to make each snowman, pour spoonfuls of batter onto hot greased griddle, dropping batter so as to form small, medium and large circles, close enough together so that they will overlap to make a snowman. Bake to a golden brown, then turn, and brown on other side. Remove pancakes to a warm plate and decorate with raisins to make face and buttons.

4-Way Cookies

1 cup lard; 2 cups sugar; 2 eggs; 2 teaspoons vanilla; 3 cups sifted flour; 1 teaspoon soda; 1½ teaspoons salt; ½ lemon rind; ¼ cup chopped nuts; ½ cup shredded cocoanut.

1 square chocolate, melted; Cream lard. Add sugar gradually, —creaming continually. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Stir in flour with soda and salt, mix well.

Divide dough into 4 equal portions. To first portion add lemon rind; to second portion add chopped nuts; to third portion add shredded cocoanut and to fourth portion add chocolate. Shape each portion into 1 ½-inch rolls 10 to 12 inches long; roll in waxed paper and chill several hours.

Cut into ¼-inch slices and arrange on cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Decorate if desired. Yield: 11 to 12 dozen cookies.

Mayonnaise Meat Loaf

3 cups diced cooked veal; 3 tablespoons gelatin; 3 tablespoons water; 1¼ cups hot meat stock; ½ cup diced celery; ½ cup stuffed olives, sliced; 1 cup peas, cooked; 3 hard cooked eggs, diced; 2 tablespoons capers; 1 cup mayonnaise.

Cut veal in one-half inch cubes. Soak gelatin in water and dissolve in meat stock. Cool. Add remaining ingredients to diced veal. When gelatin mixture begins to congeal combine with meat mixture and pour into 5x9-inch loaf pan. Place in refrigerator and allow to stand until very firm. 12 servings.

Flavor tapioca cream with orange rind, then serve with orange sections and a fluff of sweetened whipped cream.

For Sunday night supper arrange thin slices of broiled ham on split toasted English muffins; top with poached eggs and Hollandaise or rich Cream Sauce. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Next time you bake sweet potatoes remove the pulp from the shells and mash well with butter or margarine, cream or milk, a little molasses and a dash of nutmeg.

Add a little crushed garlic, a few drops of tabasco sauce, and a dash of paprika to a cream sauce and serve with broiled mackerel.

Meals To Remember Dramatize Simple Foods

You can stimulate the family's appetite with an unusual dish or two that everyone will enjoy. All you need to do is to dramatize simple foods so that they take on a little glamour and are more interesting. There is cheese, for instance. Of course you serve it often, but have you ever made a cheese fondue the way they do in Switzerland? If you have never been to this charming little country you certainly have a great treat in store. The breathtaking scenery in winter or summer, the invigorating Alpine air, the intensive sunshine, the fragrance of the woods, the friendliness of the people, the good things to eat; all these and many more will be memories you'll never forget.

But to get back to the cheese fondue which is a sort of super-duper Welsh rarebit. Our recipe today uses white wine and kirsch or brandy as the Swiss do it. They have some delightful customs in connection with the fondue. It is never put into separate plates. Everyone eats from the same casserole by dipping small pieces of bread impaled on a fork into the delicious concoction. According to an old tradition, the first person who drops the bread from his fork must treat with a bottle of wine.

Your table companions are invariably your family and friends, and the spirit goes up and up as the fondue goes down and down. A quaint custom, which further reinforces the fondue's power to cement friendship is "le coup du milieu", a little glass of wine which is ceremoniously drunk when the fondue is half eaten. You will surprise and delight the family if you serve them a Swiss fondue with "the half-way sip".

Another important item of food in Switzerland, which is also popular here in this country, is cheese cake. The Swiss very often serve it hot for a light supper, followed by a cold ham and lettuce salad, and coffee or white wine.

Swiss Cheese Fondue

Shred cheese fine and dredge with flour. Pour wine into shallow-heat-proof casserole and heat but do not allow to boil. Add ⅓ of the cheese and stir over low heat until melted. Add remaining cheese in two installments. Continue stirring until mixture begins to bubble. Then stir in kirsch or brandy. Keep hot by serving over candle or alcohol flame. Serve with French bread cut into 1-inch squares. Spear the cubes of bread with a fork and dip into cheese, one at a time. If mixture becomes too thick, add a little more heated wine.

Note: Salt, pepper and nutmeg may be added, if desired, but the flavor of Swiss cheese is so good that this is not essential. The casserole may be rubbed with a clove of garlic.

Swiss Cheese Cake

Mix cheese, grated or put through meat chopper, lightly beaten eggs, milk and flour. Line 8-inch pie plate with pastry and half fill with the mixture. Bake in moderate oven for twenty minutes. Remove from plate and serve hot.

"Mehlsuppe"

2 tblsp. butter; 3 tblsp. flour; 1 sliced onion; 2½ cups water or meat stock; 2 bouillon cubes pepper and salt: 3 tblsp grated Swiss cheese.

Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and stir five minutes. Add onion and cook until it is golden brown. Add water and bouillon cubes and simmer for 30 minutes. Strain, season to taste and serve with grated cheese.

Mash liverwurst with a little mayonnaise and spread on crackers or rounds of Melba toast; garnish with a little chopped onion and sieved hard-cooked egg.

Dip your kitchen scissors in water when you are cutting foods such as dates and marshmallows with it. A kitchen scissors is also useful with which to cut parsley fine.

To make a quick sauce for ham, melt currant jelly and then beat in a little prepared mustard.

TOASTED PEACHES

Luscious toasted peaches make an excellent addition to any menu —but they're especially good as accompaniment to a hamburger supper. To round out the menu, serve piping hot corn on the cob with a generous supply of creamy margarine.

Toasted Peaches

1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 peach halves
2 tablespoons melted margarine
¾ cup crushed corn flakes or graham crackers

Mix the grated rind, sugar, and lemon juice. Dip each peach half into the mixture. Next, dip the peach halves into melted margarine and roll in crushed cereal or cracker crumbs. Arrange cut side down in a shallow pan. Bake in a slow oven (300 to 325° F.) for about 30 minutes. Canned peaches may be used. They require about 15 minutes cooking time.

A Fellow Can Eat A Pancake "Snowman"!

If Johnny likes to cook, aid and abet him. He may not be a famous chef in the making—but at least he'll grow up to have a culinary "specialty" that will provide his wife with a night off occasionally!

With real snowmen just around the corner, Johnny will enjoy preparing—and eating—a pancake snowman. You provide the batter and give Johnny the green light. He'll love you for it—now and later, and he'll be encouraged to eat a good, a real American breakfast. Add to the boy's props, a can of maple-blended syrup, crisp broiled bacon, butter, and a bowl of plump raisins. Eyes and buttons-down-the-front of each snowman will make a gay picture on the breakfast plate—the snowman liberally covered with maple-blended syrup will have melt-in-the-mouth goodness.

Add fruit in season, a tall glass of milk, and your Johnny can have a real American breakfast of his own making!

Snowmen Pancakes

Use your favorite pancake recipe. Then, to make each snowman, pour spoonfuls of batter onto hot greased griddle, dropping batter so as to form small, medium and large circles, close enough together so that they will overlap to make a snowman. Bake to a golden brown, then turn, and brown on other side. Remove pancakes to a warm plate and decorate with raisins to make face and buttons.

4-Way Cookies

1 cup lard; 2 cups sugar; 2 eggs; 2 teaspoons vanilla; 3 cups sifted flour; 1 teaspoon soda; 1½ teaspoons salt; ½ lemon rind; ¼ cup chopped nuts; ½ cup shredded cocoanut.

1 square chocolate, melted; Cream lard. Add sugar gradually, —creaming continually. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Stir in flour with soda and salt, mix well.

Divide dough into 4 equal portions. To first portion add lemon rind; to second portion add chopped nuts; to third portion add shredded cocoanut and to fourth portion add chocolate. Shape each portion into 1 ½-inch rolls 10 to 12 inches long; roll in waxed paper and chill several hours.

Cut into ¼-inch slices and arrange on cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Decorate if desired. Yield: 11 to 12 dozen cookies.

Mayonnaise Meat Loaf

3 cups diced cooked veal; 3 tablespoons gelatin; 3 tablespoons water; 1¼ cups hot meat stock; ½ cup diced celery; ½ cup stuffed olives, sliced; 1 cup peas, cooked; 3 hard cooked eggs, diced; 2 tablespoons capers; 1 cup mayonnaise.

Cut veal in one-half inch cubes. Soak gelatin in water and dissolve in meat stock. Cool. Add remaining ingredients to diced veal. When gelatin mixture begins to congeal combine with meat mixture and pour into 5x9-inch loaf pan. Place in refrigerator and allow to stand until very firm. 12 servings.

Flavor tapioca cream with orange rind, then serve with orange sections and a fluff of sweetened whipped cream.

For Sunday night supper arrange thin slices of broiled ham on split toasted English muffins; top with poached eggs and Hollandaise or rich Cream Sauce. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Next time you bake sweet potatoes remove the pulp from the shells and mash well with butter or margarine, cream or milk, a little molasses and a dash of nutmeg.

Add a little crushed garlic, a few drops of tabasco sauce, and a dash of paprika to a cream sauce and serve with broiled mackerel.

Bread Pudding Old Favorite

Let's face it squarely! Bread Pudding is one of our favorites from way, way back. And in these days of looking at both sides of every penny, we can't afford to ignore a dish that's really economical. Our delicious Bread Pudding has margarine as its base—to add flavor and nutrition. It also boasts a custard that bubbles up around the pudding as it bakes, a simple egg and milk custard that keeps the slices of bread moist and good . . . raisins add their own extra spice!

We serve our Bread Pudding as a hearty end to a light dinner, with a sour cream sauce powdered with cinnamon.

BREAD PUDDING

¼ cup margarine, creamed
7½ slices enriched white bread
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup seedless raisins
3 eggs
⅔ cup sugar
2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Spread creamed margarine on bread. Cut each slice in 4 squares. Cover the bottom of a baking dish (12 x 7½ x 1¾ inches) with half the bread squares. Sprinkle with cinnamon and raisins. Top with remaining bread, margarine side up. Beat eggs with rotary egg beater until light, add sugar gradually. Add hot milk very slowly to eggs, beating constantly. Beat in vanilla. Pour egg, milk mixture over bread. Set dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50-60 minutes or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serve hot with Cinnamon Sauce. Makes 6-8 servings.

CINNAMON SAUCE

1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Blend all ingredients well and serve sauce separately.

Gourmet Hamburgers

½ cup crumbled Bleu cheese
½ cup soft butter or margarine
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
⅜ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
6 sandwich buns
3 cups (1½ pounds) hamburger
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine Bleu cheese, butter, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Cut buns in half lengthwise. Spread 1 tablespoon butter mixture on each bun half. Combine hamburger, salt and pepper. Shape hamburger into 6 patties. Broil hamburger patties, turning them so they'll be done on both sides. During last three minutes of broiling hamburgers, place the buns, spread side up, on a cookie sheet and toast them until bubbly and brown. Place broiled hamburger patty between toasted bun halves. Serve hot.

Yield: 6 Gourmet Hamburgers.

Snow Swirl Cup Cakes

These tempting small cakes, swirled with fluffy frosting and garnished with walnut halves, are convenient to serve large groups at a tea or coffee hour.

When it's cold outside you can make the kitchen cozy by baking breads and cakes or pies for the family supper. Cupcakes offer a nice change for dessert, and they can be made from your favorite cake batter or the quick-mix two-egg cake recipe given here.

Since economical enriched flour is the main ingredient, cupcakes are an ideal choice for family dessert, or as refreshments for a club or church group. Cost of the unfrosted cakes is only 1½ cents apiece.

If you prefer to buy cupcakes, bakers usually have them, and often with a variety of frostings—lemon, vanilla, butterscotch, strawberry and chocolate. Like the home product, these cupcakes made with enriched flour contribute protein, B-vitamins and food iron to make a nutritious dessert.

Cupcakes wrapped in wax paper make good treats to complete a sandwich and fruit lunchbox meal.

SNOW SWIRL CUPCAKES
(Quick Mix Method)

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
½ cup new-type shortening
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
Fluffy Frosting

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add shortening and ⅔ cup milk. Beat 2 minutes. Add remaining milk, vanilla extract and eggs. Beat 2 minutes longer. Fill greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 20 minutes. When cool, frost with Fluffy Frosting. Makes about 16 3-inch cupcakes.

Fluffy Frosting

1 egg white
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons water
Dash salt
1 teaspoon corn sirup
Walnut halves, if desired

Combine egg white, sugar, water, salt and corn sirup in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary beater until thoroughly blended. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook, beating continuously, until miture holds its shape (about 7 minutes). Cool and spread on cupcakes. Garnish with walnut halves or chopped nuts. Makes enough for 16 3-inch cupcakes.

Pass any baker's window and you'll find an assortment of good things to eat for your holiday table. There are Christmas cookies and mincemeat and pumpkin pies and fruit cakes galore. You'll also want to drop in for a tempting coffee cake to simplify meal-planning during these busy days. Coffee cake can be served with milk and stewed fruit for a simple, but nutritious breakfast. If there is any left, reheat and serve for luncheon with baked eggs and pan-browned sausage.

Bread Pudding Old Favorite

Let's face it squarely! Bread Pudding is one of our favorites from way, way back. And in these days of looking at both sides of every penny, we can't afford to ignore a dish that's really economical. Our delicious Bread Pudding has margarine as its base—to add flavor and nutrition. It also boasts a custard that bubbles up around the pudding as it bakes, a simple egg and milk custard that keeps the slices of bread moist and good . . . raisins add their own extra spice!

We serve our Bread Pudding as a hearty end to a light dinner, with a sour cream sauce powdered with cinnamon.

BREAD PUDDING

¼ cup margarine, creamed
7½ slices enriched white bread
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup seedless raisins
3 eggs
⅔ cup sugar
2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Spread creamed margarine on bread. Cut each slice in 4 squares. Cover the bottom of a baking dish (12 x 7½ x 1¾ inches) with half the bread squares. Sprinkle with cinnamon and raisins. Top with remaining bread, margarine side up. Beat eggs with rotary egg beater until light, add sugar gradually. Add hot milk very slowly to eggs, beating constantly. Beat in vanilla. Pour egg, milk mixture over bread. Set dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50-60 minutes or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serve hot with Cinnamon Sauce. Makes 6-8 servings.

CINNAMON SAUCE

1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Blend all ingredients well and serve sauce separately.

Gourmet Hamburgers

½ cup crumbled Bleu cheese
½ cup soft butter or margarine
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
⅝ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
6 sandwich buns
3 cups (1½ pounds) hamburger
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine Bleu cheese, butter, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Cut buns in half lengthwise. Spread 1 tablespoon butter mixture on each bun half. Combine hamburger, salt and pepper. Shape hamburger into 6 patties. Broil hamburger patties, turning them so they'll be done on both sides. During last three minutes of broiling hamburgers, place the buns, spread side up, on a cookie sheet and toast them until bubbly and brown. Place broiled hamburger patty between toasted bun halves. Serve hot.

Yield: 6 Gourmet Hamburgers.

Snow Swirl Cup Cakes

These tempting small cakes, swirled with fluffy frosting and garnished with walnut halves, are convenient to serve large groups at a tea or coffee hour.

When it's cold outside you can make the kitchen cozy by baking breads and cakes or pies for the family supper. Cupcakes offer a nice change for dessert, and they can be made from your favorite cake batter or the quick-mix two-egg cake recipe given here.

Since economical enriched flour is the main ingredient, cupcakes are an ideal choice for family dessert, or as refreshments for a club or church group. Cost of the unfrosted cakes is only 1½ cents apiece.

If you prefer to buy cupcakes, bakers usually have them, and often with a variety of frostings—lemon, vanilla, butterscotch, strawberry and chocolate. Like the home product, these cupcakes made with enriched flour contribute protein, B-vitamins and food iron to make a nutritious dessert.

Cupcakes wrapped in wax paper make good treats to complete a sandwich and fruit lunchbox meal.

SNOW SWIRL CUPCAKES
(Quick Mix Method)

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
½ cup new-type shortening
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
Fluffy Frosting

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add shortening and ⅔ cup milk. Beat 2 minutes. Add remaining milk, vanilla extract and eggs. Beat 2 minutes longer. Fill greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 20 minutes. When cool, frost with Fluffy Frosting. Makes about 16 3-inch cupcakes.

Fluffy Frosting

1 egg white
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons water
Dash salt
1 teaspoon corn sirup
Walnut halves, if desired

Combine egg white, sugar, water, salt and corn sirup in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary beater until thoroughly blended. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook, beating continuously, until miture holds its shape (about 7 minutes). Cool and spread on cupcakes. Garnish with walnut halves or chopped nuts. Makes enough for 16 3-inch cupcakes.

Pass any baker's window and you'll find an assortment of good things to eat for your holiday table. There are Christmas cookies and mincemeat and pumpkin pies and fruit cakes galore. You'll also want to drop in for a tempting coffee cake to simplify meal-planning during these busy days. Coffee cake can be served with milk and stewed fruit for a simple, but nutritious breakfast. If there is any left, reheat and serve for luncheon with baked eggs and pan-browned sausage.

Thrifty Molasses Candy

OLD-FASHIONED taffy pulls are being revived and sweet are the rewards for the effort. Best news of all for mothers is the fact that with unsulphured molasses as the main ingredient, toothsome taffy can be pulled for about 20 cents a pound—a fraction of the cost of commercially-made taffy. How it's done will be found elsewhere on this page.

An old-fashioned taffy pull offers a smart and modern theme for a vacation day party. Guests limber up muscles and social graces at the same time. And as good as the fun is the wonderful fragrance of molasses wafting from the candy kitchen. Unsulphured molasses rates for sweetness and mellowness.

The hostess who plans a taffy pull need fear no extensive preparations nor threat to the family budget. The three ingredients . . . unsulphured molasses, sugar and butter . . . for more than a pound of this candy cost about 20 cents . . . a fraction of the charge for commercial made taffy.

Old-Fashioned Molasses Taffy

1 cup unsulphured molasses
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Combine all ingredients in a 2-quart saucepan. Place over low heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook over medium heat until syrup, when dropped in very cold water, separates into threads which are hard but not brittle, or until candy thermometer reaches 270°F. Pour into greased platter. As edges cool, fold toward center or they will harden before center is ready to pull. When candy is cool enough to handle, press into ball with lightly buttered fingers. Pull until candy is light in color and ready to harden. Stretch into a long rope, ½-inch wide. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Wrap each piece of taffy in waxed paper. YIELD: 1¼ pounds.

Don't overlook cauliflower! When the vegetable is separated into caulifflowerets eight to ten minutes of gentle boiling will usually be plenty; if the whole head is cooked it will need twenty minutes or a little longer.

Slice leftover holiday ham thin and warm in a double boiler; serve on toast with a mushroom or cheese sauce. This is good with a tossed green salad with a tangy French dressing and hot garlic bread.

Orange sections, sliced pears, and seedless grapes combine well in a fruit cup; pour ginger ale over the fruit and serve in sherbet glasses as a first course for a holiday meal or as desert.

Apples may absorb odors so store them away from potatoes or onions.

Lemon Plan Pays Extras

Health insurance with low premium and high dividend is the keynote of the winter LEMON HEALTH PLAN. This method of insuring good health for the whole family is very inexpensive and can be put into effect by every homemaker who remembers just one important fact—see that each member of the family has a fresh supply of Vitamin C every day.

Here's the way the LEMON HEALTH PLAN works! By making sure that your family has generous amounts of Vitamin C, you are helping to build energy and resistance to colds and other infections. This important vitamin is absent in most foods, but is very plentiful in lemons. In fact, lemons are one of the best known sources, so by serving lemons in some way every day you'll be subscribing to the important health plan.

This time of the year when temperatures are likely to drop suddenly, our bodies seem to need lots of Vitamin C to keep us in tip-top condition. Throughout the winter months when infections are more prevalent, a lack of Vitamin C may sap your family's energy and let colds or other illnesses creep in.

Your family doctor has probably prescribed the LEMON HEALTH PLAN many times when members of the family have had colds. Chances are that he recommends lemon and soda every 2 or 3 hours when you feel a cold coming on . . . then 3 or 4 times a day thereafter. In addition, hot lemonade has long been recognized for its beneficial effect in the treatment of colds. You've probably noticed that lots of liquids seem to help when you have a cold. A pleasant way to do this is to drink lemonade—either hot or cold.

Don't forget the many other ways to include lemons in the winter diet from morning 'til night! Join thousands who start the day with the national health habit—drink lemon juice and water the first thing on arising, for extra Vitamin C, plus healthful regularity. At lunchtime, include thick wedges of lemons on each serving of salad or seafood and note how the tangy juice peps up these foods. For a mid-afternoon pepper-upper, large wedges of fresh lemons give added flavor to hot tea or other fruit juices. You'll want to squeeze lemon juice over green vegetables and vegetable salads.

Orange Ginger Bars

Fresh orange juice adds the surprise flavor touch to these orange ginger bars. The spicy gingerbread flavor makes a natural combination with fresh orange juice, resulting in a delicious, yet different snack item. This bar keeps well so you can make it up the day before. Then add a lemon butter filling a short time before serving. Surprise your guests with this snack, but be sure to save enough for all lunches you have to pack — they're easy to carry, keep well, and are liked by young and old.

Orange Ginger Bars

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup molasses
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup orange juice

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add beaten egg. Mix in molasses and grated peel. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with orange juice. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake at 350 degrees F. for 35 minutes. Cool and slice. Put two slices together with lemon butter frosting.

Torn By Factions, Burma Seems Open Field For Red Maneuvering

By FRED HAMPSON

RANGOON (AP)—Burma girls still smoke the same "whackin' white cheroots" and waste a certain number of "Christian kisses on 'eathen idols" feet.

But otherwise the road to Mandalay is much different than the Burma that Rudyard Kipling wrote about.

Elephants aren't piling much teak. Production is hardly one-tenth of prewar. The temple bells are not calling any British soldiers back to Mandalay. Burma, like many another Asiatic nation, is still in the throes of liberation from imperial rule.

While freedom has not brought all the hoped-for blessings, and has certainly not brought peace, Burma hates the merest thought of her old colonial bonds.

The temple bells seem to carry more of an undertone of worry than of invitation. For Burma, free of her British masters, is so riven and torn by factions she seems constantly in danger of being seized by the new master, communism.

Just now this lush and sunny land is not quite Red but it is certainly playing footie with the Reds, domestic and foreign.

The reasons are myriad. The biggest seems to be that Burma, horribly battered and still not much rebuilt from the last war, is scared stiff of another war and doesn't intend to risk one just to stand on principle.

This national disposition to make a deal rather than risk a fight with the Reds is a hard thing to measure.

Yet on Nov. 7 Dr. Ba Maw, the old puppet premier under the Japanese, made a straight Moscow party line speech to public meeting of pro-Communist groups. The main theme was the familiar charge that the United States is planning the third world war. Every newspaper in Rangoon—Burmese, English, Chinese—banner-lined the story on page one and printed all or almost all of the speech.

Second, Burma's border is exposed to the Chinese Red threat and Burma feels a conciliatory attitude toward Peiping is necessary. Very few people here take the Chinese Nationalist guerrillas under General Li Mi seriously. These remnants of Chiang's armies, which fled into Burma in 1949, this year under Li Mi made an excursion back into Yunnan Province of China scoring some victories.

Third, Burma's freedom granted in 1948 has been followed by a period of almost unbelievable factionalising. One gets dizzy trying to remember all the political factions, some of which are the results of three or four splits. Some stayed peaceful and fought the government and one another in the political arena, but a grim number went underground and became armed insurgents.

Torn By Factions, Burma Seems Open Field For Red Maneuvering

By FRED HAMPSON

RANGOON (AP)—Burma girls still smoke the same "whackin' white cheroots" and waste a certain number of "Christian kisses on 'eathen idols" feet.

But otherwise the road to Mandalay is much different than the Burma that Rudyard Kipling wrote about.

Elephants aren't piling much teak. Production is hardly one-tenth of prewar. The temple bells are not calling any British soldiers back to Mandalay. Burma, like many another Asiatic nation, is still in the throes of liberation from imperial rule.

While freedom has not brought all the hoped-for blessings, and has certainly not brought peace, Burma hates the merest thought of her old colonial bonds.

The temple bells seem to carry more of an undertone of worry than of invitation. For Burma, free of her British masters, is so riven and torn by factions she seems constantly in danger of being seized by the new master, communism.

Just now this lush and sunny land is not quite Red but it is certainly playing footie with the Reds, domestic and foreign.

The reasons are myriad. The biggest seems to be that Burma, horribly battered and still not much rebuilt from the last war, is scared stiff of another war and doesn't intend to risk one just to stand on principle.

This national disposition to make a deal rather than risk a fight with the Reds is a hard thing to measure.

Yet on Nov. 7 Dr. Ba Maw, the old puppet premier under the Japanese, made a straight Moscow party line speech to public meeting of pro-Communist groups. The main theme was the familiar charge that the United States is planning the third world war. Every newspaper in Rangoon—Burmese, English, Chinese — banner-lined the story on page one and printed all or almost all of the speech.

Second, Burma's border is exposed to the Chinese Red threat and Burma feels a conciliatory attitude toward Peiping is necessary. Very few people here take the Chinese Nationalist guerrillas under General Li Mi seriously. These remnants of Chiang's armies, which fled into Burma in 1949, this year under Li Mi made an excursion back into Yunnan Province of China scoring some victories.

Third, Burma's freedom granted in 1948 has been followed by a period of almost unbelievable factionalising. One gets dizzy trying to remember all the political factions, some of which are the results of three or four splits. Some stayed peaceful and fought the government and one another in the political arena, but a grim number went underground and became armed insurgents.

All my friends are buying O.P.O. Clothes for their men this Christmas!

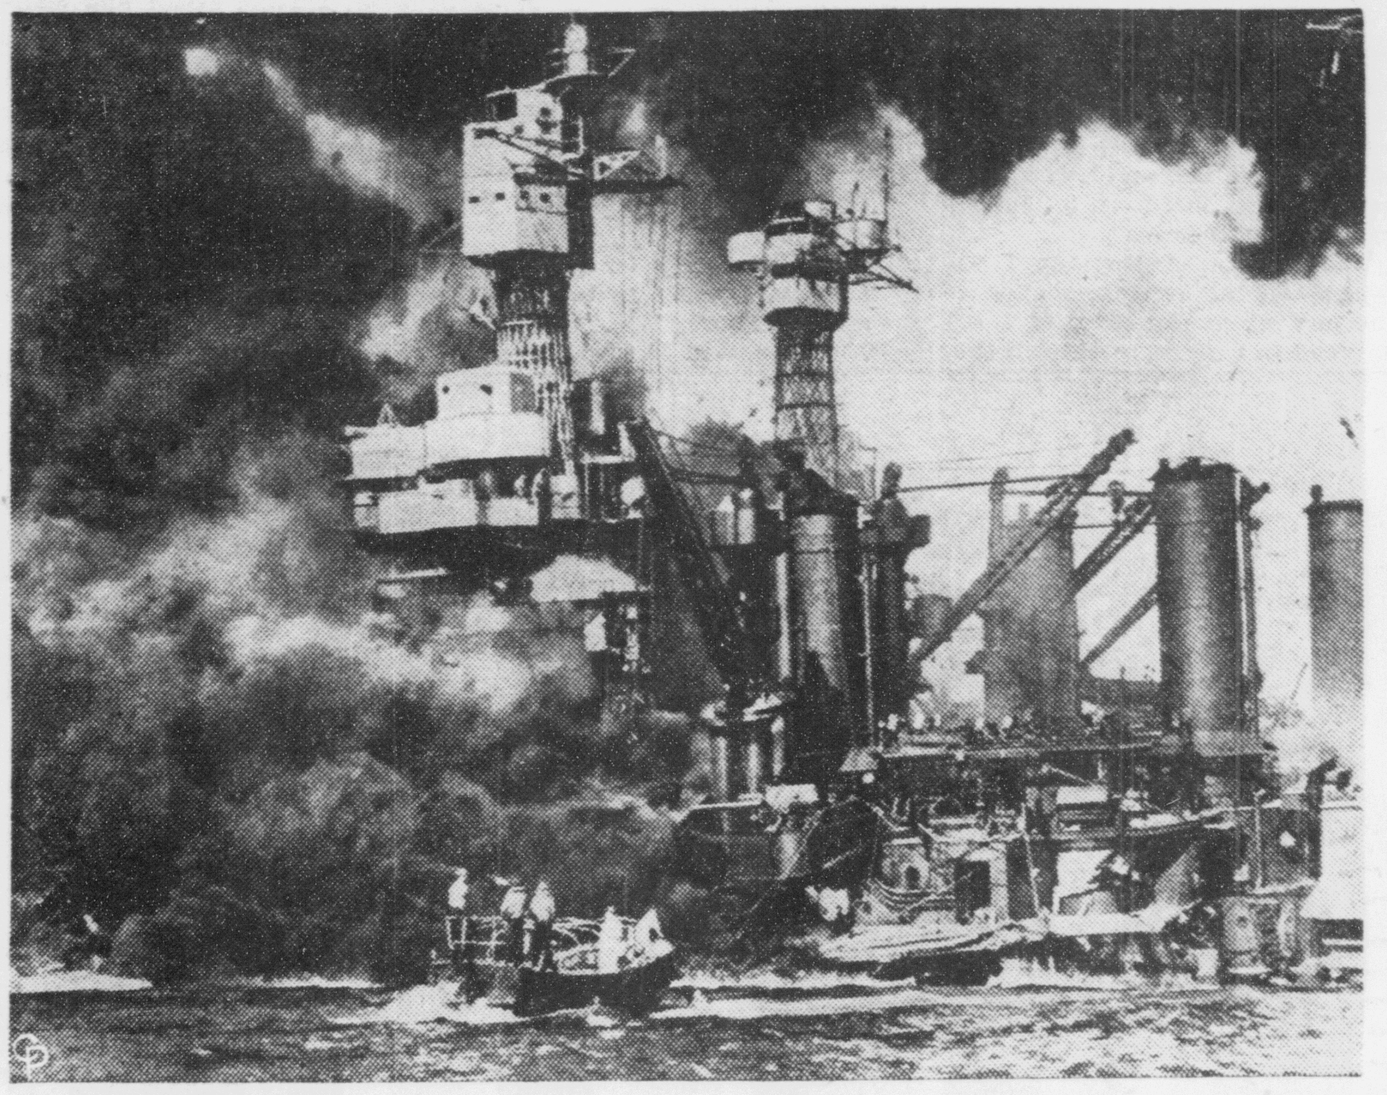
Ten Years Have Dimmed, But Not Erased Memories Of Jap Attack On Pearl Harbor

The "Big Mo," U.S.S. Missouri, cuts loose with her 16-inch guns and batters key North Korean bases



Billows of smoke belch from the flaming U.S.S. West Virginia after the infamous Sunday morning raid

A DECADE AGO, on December 7, 1941, a good part of American naval might lay sinking and burning in Pearl Harbor. A horde of Jap planes and midget submarines made a mid-morning sneak attack on the great U. S. base in Hawaii. The battleship Arizona was totally destroyed. Severely damaged were the battleships Oklahoma, Nevada, California, West Virginia, 3 destroyers, 1 target ship and 1 minelayer. Today, on the anniversary of that day which plunged America into the holocaust of a second World War, the U. S. Navy is the proud master of the world's seas. Units of a fleet vastly superior in firepower and numbers to that of 1941 are pouring shells into Communist bases and communication lines along North Korean coastline.

Ten years ago today the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and plunged the United States into World War II.

Veteran INS White House Correspondent George E. Durno, who had been "covering" President Roosevelt for a long time, recalls in the following story the drama behind the scenes when the White House first flashed word of the "infamous" attack.

By GEORGE E. DURNO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (INS)—Tomorrow is the tenth anniversary of what the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt called "a day which will live in infamy."

On Dec. 7, 1941, the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor plunged the United States into the slaughter, the destruction and the global upheaval of World War II.

The ink is barely dry on the treaty of peace with a beaten and humbled Japan.

But the United States, now shadowed by the new threat of atomic annihilation, girds itself against the menace of still another world war—which could be touched off by Soviet Russia.

Mindful of that menace — which President Truman has warned could mean the end of civilization itself—Americans recall that fateful December Sunday of ten years ago.

Ten years have dimmed, but not erased, the memories of that Sunday when the word was flashed to a stunned world that the Japanese had brought war to the United States.

The day was being observed in a fashion normal to early winter Sundays. The morning papers related how, the night before, President Roosevelt had taken the unprecedented step of appealing directly to Emperor Hirohito for a withdrawal of the Japanese threat southward from China toward Indo-China and Siam. The people knew there was tension in the Far East but they proceeded with their usual routine—church, early Sunday dinner, football games, the movies.

In Washington, the scene was being set for an ugly climax. At 1:00 p. m. (EST) the Japanese embassy called the State Department and advised that Ambassador Kichisabura Nomura and Special Envoy Saburo Kurusu would like an appointment with Secretary Cordell Hull. It was scheduled for 1:45 p. m.

The two Japanese diplomats, who had been conferring with Hull since the latter, the preceding Nov. 26, had handed them a statement of "principles" governing future activities in the Far East, arrived at the old State, War and Navy Building at 2:05 p. m., 20 minutes late. They had with them the Japanese reply.

It was 2:20 p. m. when Nomura and Kurusu were finally ushered into the secretary of state's office.

At almost precisely that same minute, phones rang in the offices of the three major press associations. When it was assured that all three were on the line, a voice came over the phone:

"This is Steve Early. I am calling from home. I have a statement here which the President has asked me to read: "The Japanese have attacked Pearl Harbor from the air and all naval and military activities on the island of Oahu, principal American base in the Hawaiian Islands.' That is all. I am going directly to the White House and I will tell you more later."

Across the street, Hull—who had been advised of the sneak bombing by the President while the Japanese envoys were waiting in his outer office—had them ushered in. His face a grey-white mask concealing livid anger, Hull accepted and carefully read the Japanese document.

Then, in a tone as cold as ice, but in language neither cold nor diplomatic, he dismissed them. He said in a printable conclusion he . . . "had never seen a document more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions."

Newspaper offices and radio studios by this time were scenes of organized bedlam getting the shattering news to the American public and the world. Forgotten was the Department of Commerce announcement that more than five million evergreens were going to be cut that year for use as Christmas trees.

The White House became the nerve center with Presidential Secretary Early steadily pouring out new and shocking details. The press room was a madhouse as additional flashes and bulletins streamed in. Linemen were installing batteries of phones and radio microphones to get the appalling news out instantly.

"Manilla and other Philippine points are under air attack . . . . An Army transport carrying lumber has been torpedoed thirteen hundred miles west of San Francisco . . . Distress signals have been sent out by an American cargo vessel seven hundred miles west of San Francisco . . . . Japanese submarines are operating well out in the Pacific. . . . Enemy planes have attacked the island of Guam . . . . A second wave of planes is coming over the city of Honolulu . . . . President Roosevelt has called a cabinet meeting for 8:30 this evening and will see congressional leaders half an hour later . . . . The President will make a full report to Congress tomorrow . . ."

So it went into the night. The nation was stunned but not afraid. Disunity over foreign policy disappeared like a vapor. Angered men, young and old, flocked to recruiting services. "They asked for it and now the S.O.B.'s are going to get it," was the nationwide reaction.

What that reaction might have been had the public only known the ghastly details of Japan's Sunday punch is now academic, but it is a fact the nation was unaware that six U. S. battleships and three destroyers had been bombed into defenseless and useless hulks — the Arizona, Utah and California sunk at their Pearl Harbor anchorages; the West Virginia and the Nevada forced aground in shallow water; the Oklahoma completely turned turtle; 2,300 casualties.

Neither did they know that adjoining Hickam Field was a shambles with planes of the woefully inadequate Air Force caught like sitting ducks in their parking spaces; with dive bombers tossing small bombs into the windows of barracks and mess halls, all filled at that early hour (Hawaiian time) of the morning.

In his White House oval room study, a grim-faced commander-in-chief sat, surrounded by his top aides, tumbling one fast decision on another. Present were Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, Army Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall, Presidential Assistant Harry Hopkins, and others. Most of the disjointed information was coming by phone from the naval chief of operations, Adm. Harold R. Stark.

A phone call came in from London. It was British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. He said the Japanese had bombed the British-occupied Malay Straits and he was going before parliament in the morning to ask for a declaration of war.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, had been working on his own message to Congress. It was a succinct 500-word document which said in part:

"Yesterday, December 7, 1941—a day which will live in infamy—the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan . . . .

"I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December 7, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese empire."

Congress declared war immediately with a single dissenting vote.

Armored Vests Save Yanks Lives But Are Cumbersome

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, KOREA—(AP)—Soldiers on this front are eager to try the new lightweight body armor just becoming available because the armed vests some wear now are too heavy.

The armored vests the soldiers in this battalion wear weigh about 14 pounds and look something like a baseball catcher's chest protector.

The new model, which weighs only eight pound, is on order, but it has not reached the Korean front in any quantity.

Maj. Walter Turner, Sanford, Fla., is a strong believer in armored vests, but he concedes the present World War II model is to cumbersome.

"Last week," he said, "they saved 15 to 20 casualties in my battalion."

Turner said the vests were impractical for infantrymen charging up a hill or on the move, but were good for reconnaissance patrols and for stationary, defensive fighting.

Turner makes his men wear the vests in certain situations. But he said several other infantry commanders object to them as impractical.

The vest is shaped like a short undershirt and protects the chest and back. It is made of nylon and overlapping aluminum plates.

The new body armor is made of layers of nylon cemented by plastics. Both are capable of stopping mortar fragments and ordinary rilfe or machinegun bullets but not bullets fired at close enough range that they still are traveling at a high velocity.

(While the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association received a report from the Army surgeon-general's office last month that 50 of the new vests had passed tests in Korea, this dispatch made no mention of their yet being used.)

Lt. Col. Edward Cleveland, Lake Forest, Ill., Third Division supply officers, said so far as he knew the Third Division is the only one using the World War II type vests.

"They're great to have if you can carry them," said Pfc. Wintrop Eldredge, Danbury, Conn.

The morning papers related how, the night before, President Roosevelt had taken the unprecedented step of appealing directly to Emperor Hirohito for a withdrawal of the Japanese threat southward from China toward Indo-China and Siam. The people knew there was tension in the Far East but they proceeded with their usual routine—church, early Sunday dinner, football games, the movies.

In Washington, the scene was being set for an ugly climax. At 1:00 p. m. (EST) the Japanese embassy called the State Department and advised that Ambassador Kichisabura Nomura and Special Envoy Saburo Kurusu would like an appointment with Secretary Cordell Hull. It was scheduled for 1:45 p. m.

The two Japanese diplomats, who had been conferring with Hull since the latter, the preceding Nov. 26, had handed them a statement of "principles" governing future activities in the Far East, arrived at the old State, War and Navy Building at 2:05 p. m., 20 minutes late. They had with them the Japanese reply.

It was 2:20 p. m. when Nomura and Kurusu were finally ushered into the secretary of state's office.

At almost precisely that same minute, phones rang in the offices of the three major press associations. When it was assured that all three were on the line, a voice came over the phone:

"This is Steve Early. I am calling from home. I have a statement here which the President has asked me to read: "The Japanese have attacked Pearl Harbor from the air and all naval and military activities on the island of Oahu, principal American base in the Hawaiian Islands.' That is all. I am going directly to the White House and I will tell you more later."

Across the street, Hull—who had been advised of the sneak bombing by the President while the Japanese envoys were waiting in his outer office—had them ushered in. His face a grey-white mask concealing livid anger, Hull accepted and carefully read the Japanese document.

Then, in a tone as cold as ice, but in language neither cold nor diplomatic, he dismissed them. He said in a printable conclusion he . . . "had never seen a document more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions."

Newspaper offices and radio studios by this time were scenes of organized bedlam getting the shattering news to the American public and the world. Forgotten was the Department of Commerce announcement that more than five million evergreens were going to be cut that year for use as Christmas trees.

The White House became the nerve center with Presidential Secretary Early steadily pouring out new and shocking details. The press room was a madhouse as additional flashes and bulletins streamed in. Linemen were installing batteries of phones and radio microphones to get the appalling news out instantly.

"Manilla and other Philippine points are under air attack . . . . An Army transport carrying lumber has been torpedoed thirteen hundred miles west of San Francisco . . . Distress signals have been sent out by an American cargo vessel seven hundred miles west of San Francisco . . . . Japanese submarines are operating well out in the Pacific. . . . Enemy planes have attacked the island of Guam . . . . A second wave of planes is coming over the city of Honolulu . . . . President Roosevelt has called a cabinet meeting for 8:30 this evening and will see congressional leaders half an hour later . . . . The President will make a full report to Congress tomorrow . . ."

So it went into the night. The nation was stunned but not afraid. Disunity over foreign policy disappeared like a vapor. Angered men, young and old, flocked to recruiting services. "They asked for it and now the S.O.B.'s are going to get it," was the nationwide reaction.

What that reaction might have been had the public only known the ghastly details of Japan's Sunday punch is now academic, but it is a fact the nation was unaware that six U. S. battleships and three destroyers had been bombed into defenseless and useless hulks — the Arizona, Utah and California sunk at their Pearl Harbor anchorages; the West Virginia and the Nevada forced aground in shallow water; the Oklahoma completely turned turtle; 2,300 casualties.

Neither did they know that adjoining Hickam Field was a shambles with planes of the woefully inadequate Air Force caught like sitting ducks in their parking spaces; with dive bombers tossing small bombs into the windows of barracks and mess halls, all filled at that early hour (Hawaiian time) of the morning.

In his White House oval room study, a grim-faced commander-in-chief sat, surrounded by his top aides, tumbling one fast decision on another. Present were Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, Army Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall, Presidential Assistant Harry Hopkins, and others. Most of the disjointed information was coming by phone from the naval chief of operations, Adm. Harold R. Stark.

A phone call came in from London. It was British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. He said the Japanese had bombed the British-occupied Malay Straits and he was going before parliament in the morning to ask for a declaration of war.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, had been working on his own message to Congress. It was a succinct 500-word document which said in part:

"Yesterday, December 7, 1941—a day which will live in infamy—the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan . . . .

"I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December 7, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese empire."

Congress declared war immediately with a single dissenting vote.

Armored Vests Save Yanks Lives But Are Cumbersome

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, KOREA—(AP)—Soldiers on this front are eager to try the new lightweight body armor just becoming available because the armed vests some wear now are too heavy.

The armored vests the soldiers in this battalion wear weigh about 14 pounds and look something like a baseball catcher's chest protector.

The new model, which weighs only eight pound, is on order, but it has not reached the Korean front in any quantity.

Maj. Walter Turner, Sanford, Fla., is a strong believer in armored vests, but he concedes the present World War II model is to cumbersome.

"Last week," he said, "they saved 15 to 20 casualties in my battalion."

Turner said the vests were impractical for infantrymen charging up a hill or on the move, but were good for reconnaissance patrols and for stationary, defensive fighting.

Turner makes his men wear the vests in certain situations. But he said several other infantry commanders object to them as impractical.

The vest is shaped like a short undershirt and protects the chest and back. It is made of nylon and overlapping aluminum plates.

The new body armor is made of layers of nylon cemented by plastics. Both are capable of stopping mortar fragments and ordinary rilfe or machinegun bullets but not bullets fired at close enough range that they still are traveling at a high velocity.

(While the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association received a report from the Army surgeon-general's office last month that 50 of the new vests had passed tests in Korea, this dispatch made no mention of their yet being used.)

Lt. Col. Edward Cleveland, Lake Forest, Ill., Third Division supply officers, said so far as he knew the Third Division is the only one using the World War II type vests.

"They're great to have if you can carry them," said Pfc. Wintrop Eldredge, Danbury, Conn.

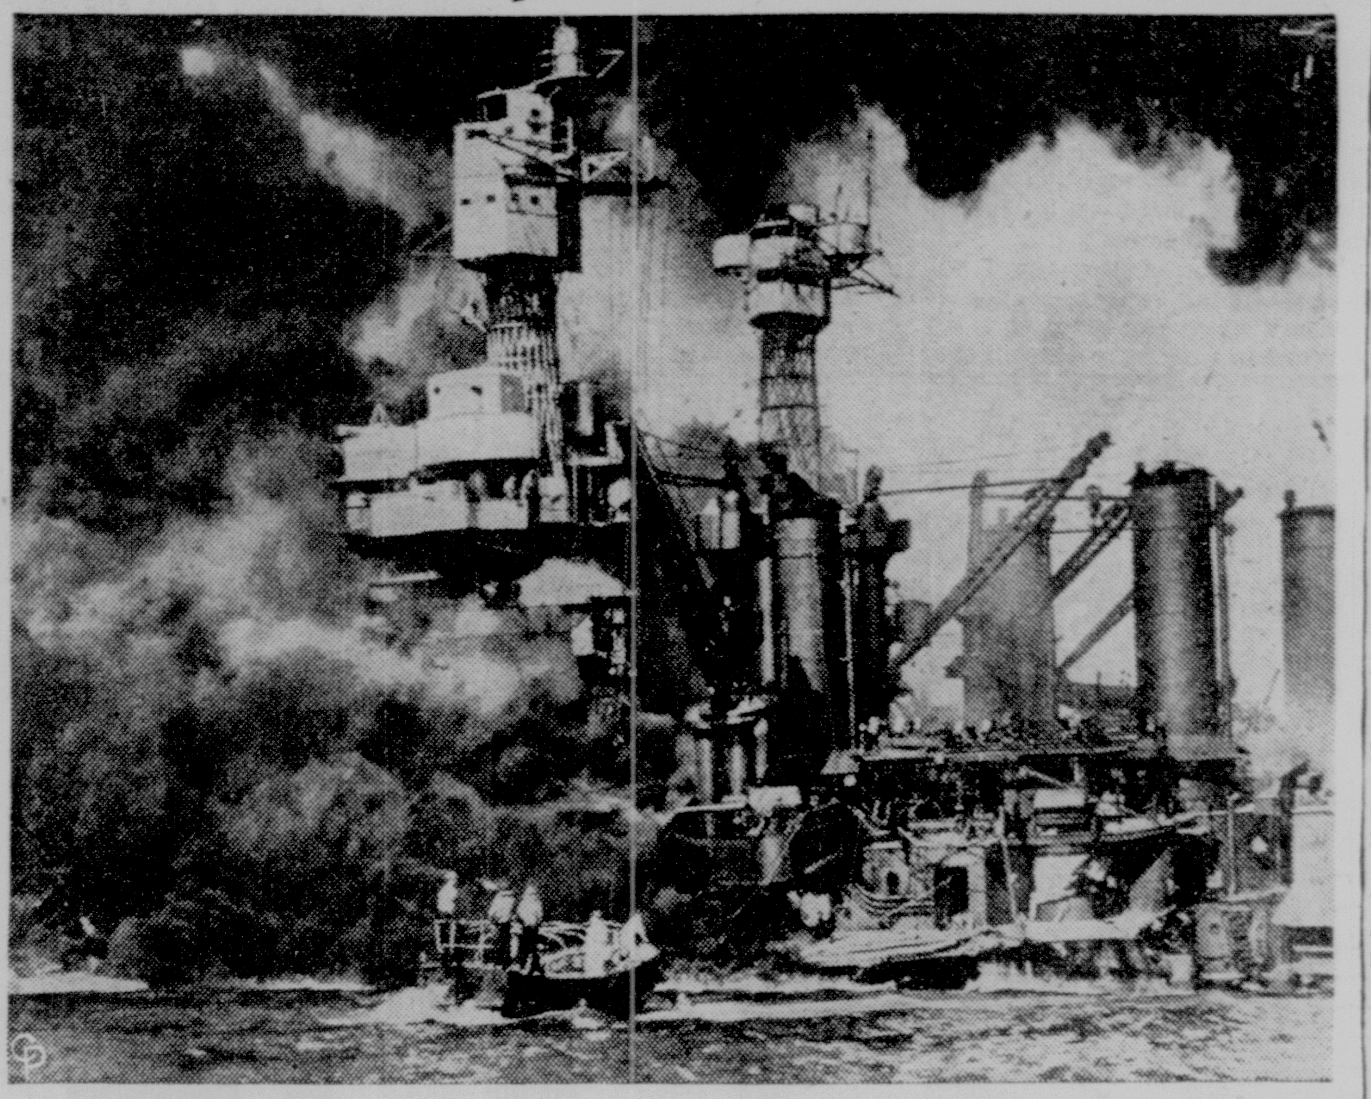
Ten Years Have Dimmed, But Not Erased Memories Of Jap Attack On Pearl Harbor

The "Big Mo," U.S.S. Missouri, cuts loose with her 16-inch guns and batters key North Korean bases



Billows of smoke belch from the flaming U.S.S. West Virginia after the infamous Sunday morning raid

A DECADE AGO, on December 7, 1941, a good part of American naval might lay sinking and burning in Pearl Harbor. A horde of Jap planes and midget submarines made a mid-morning sneak attack on the great U. S. base in Hawaii. The battleship Arizona was totally destroyed. Severely damaged were the battleships Oklahoma, Nevada, California, West Virginia, 3 destroyers, 1 target ship and 1 minelayer. Today, on the anniversary of that day which plunged America into the holocaust of a second World War, the U. S. Navy is the proud master of the world's seas. Units of a fleet vastly superior in firepower and numbers to that of 1941 are pouring shells into Communist bases and communication lines along North Korean coastline.

Ten years ago today the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and plunged the United States into World War II.

Veteran INS White House Correspondent George E. Durno, who had been "covering" President Roosevelt for a long time, recalls in the following story the drama behind the scenes when the White House first flashed word of the "infamous" attack.

By GEORGE E. DURNO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (INS)—Tomorrow is the tenth anniversary of what the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt called "a day which will live in infamy."

On Dec. 7, 1941, the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor plunged the United States into the slaughter, the destruction and the global upheaval of World War II.

The ink is barely dry on the treaty of peace with a beaten and humbled Japan.

But the United States, now shadowed by the new threat of atomic annihilation, girds itself against the menace of still another world war—which could be touched off by Soviet Russia.

Mindful of that menace — which President Truman has warned could mean the end of civilization itself—Americans recall that fateful December Sunday of ten years ago.

Ten years have dimmed, but not erased, the memories of that Sunday when the word was flashed to a stunned world that the Japanese had brought war to the United States.

The day was being observed in a fashion normal to early winter Sundays. The morning papers related how, the night before, President Roosevelt had taken the unprecedented step of appealing directly to Emperor Hirohito for a withdrawal of the Japanese threat southward from China toward Indo-China and Siam. The people knew there was tension in the Far East but they proceeded with their usual routine—church, early Sunday dinner, football games, the movies.

$1,000 To $1,500 Prize Is Offered To Anyone Finding Leukemia Cure

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—An offer of $1,000 to $1,500, to anyone, for a significant contribution to knowledge and treatment of blood cancer—leukemia—has been announced.

The prize is set up by the Robert Roesler De Villiers Foundation, Inc., of New Work, named after a 16-year-old boy of that name who died of leukemia in 1944.

The purpose is to reach not only the usual leukemia workers in many lands, but the peripheral and unknown scientific workers, in hopes of enlisting them in the study of this completely incurable disease.

"No one," the offer states, "can foretell from where the answer will come; perhaps from one of the well-known hospitals, perhaps from some isolated scientist in a far-off corner of the world who never had time or incentive to develop and test his theories."

The amount of the award will depend on the recommendation of the jury which can set it at $1,500, and can go further, to $5,000 if they receive a report describing a cure.

The jury is four world-famous physicians, William B. Castle, professor of medicine, Harvard; Maxwell M. Wintrobe, professor of medicine, University of Utah, Salt Lake City; Albert Adler, professor of medicine, University of Zurich, Switzerland, and Jan Waldenstroem, professor of medicine, University of Uppsala, Sweden.

This is the second offer of a similar leukemia award. The first, $500, was made in March, 1950. From that have been received 30 scientific papers. They came from France, United States, Italy, Argentina, Uruguay, Poland, Spain and Switzerland. The jury named above is now considered the thirty.

The new offer is larger in hopes of attracting more study. The award will be in American dollars. If the winning reply comes from a place cut off by war or iron curtains, the money will be held until the author can arrange to receive it.

The papers, outside the Western Hemisphere, are to be sent (five copies) to the secretary-general, P. D. Sven Moeschlin, of the Societe Internationale Europeenne D'Hematologie, Kantonsspital, Zurich, Switzerland. From the Western Hemisphere to the secretary-general of the International Society of Hematology, Dr. Sol Haberman, Dallas, Tex.

To be eligible the papers must be received not later than Oct. 20, 1952, and not have been published before January, 1951.

Hoey To Be Honored By Moose Lodge

Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, will initiate a class of candidates Sunday at 2 p. m. in honor of Edmund F. Hoey, director of the Cumberland Recreation Department.

The class initiation climaxes a membership drive by the Cumberland lodge. Hoey, who has been active in Moose circles since coming here several years ago, recently submitted his resignation and will leave here about December 15. He assumes his new position with the Baltimore County Recreation Association on January 1.

$1,000 To $1,500 Prize Is Offered To Anyone Finding Leukemia Cure

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—An offer of $1,000 to $1,500, to anyone, for a significant contribution to knowledge and treatment of blood cancer—leukemia—has been announced.

The prize is set up by the Robert Roesler De Villiers Foundation, Inc., of New Work, named after a 16-year-old boy of that name who died of leukemia in 1944.

The purpose is to reach not only the usual leukemia workers in many lands, but the peripheral and unknown scientific workers, in hopes of enlisting them in the study of this completely incurable disease.

"No one," the offer states, "can foretell from where the answer will come; perhaps from one of the well-known hospitals, perhaps from some isolated scientist in a far-off corner of the world who never had time or incentive to develop and test his theories."

The amount of the award will depend on the recommendation of the jury which can set it at $1,500, and can go further, to $5,000 if they receive a report describing a cure.

The jury is four world-famous physicians, William B. Castle, professor of medicine, Harvard; Maxwell M. Wintrobe, professor of medicine, University of Utah, Salt Lake City; Albert Adler, professor of medicine, University of Zurich, Switzerland, and Jan Waldenstroem, professor of medicine, University of Uppsala, Sweden.

This is the second offer of a similar leukemia award. The first, $500, was made in March, 1950. From that have been received 30 scientific papers. They came from France, United States, Italy, Argentina, Uruguay, Poland, Spain and Switzerland. The jury named above is now considered the thirty.

The new offer is larger in hopes of attracting more study. The award will be in American dollars. If the winning reply comes from a place cut off by war or iron curtains, the money will be held until the author can arrange to receive it.

The papers, outside the Western Hemisphere, are to be sent (five copies) to the secretary-general, P. D. Sven Moeschlin, of the Societe Internationale Europeenne D'Hematologie, Kantonsspital, Zurich, Switzerland. From the Western Hemisphere to the secretary-general of the International Society of Hematology, Dr. Sol Haberman, Dallas, Tex.

To be eligible the papers must be received not later than Oct. 20, 1952, and not have been published before January, 1951.

igher Education artnership Idea ig Hit In South

By BEM PRICE

ATLANTA (AP)—Southern regional ucation planners with their ornization barely out of the diaper age have set themselves quietly to ganizing a sort of revolution.

Meeting in Daytona Beach, Fla., cently, educators from 65 colleges d universities in 14 southern states oposed to make industry and govnment partners in the plan.

Nothing like it has ever been prosed on such a scale in the history U.S. graduate education.

The same session also turned out e first signed agreement among schools to take a certain field of udy—in this case forestry— and ecialize in certain aspects.

The planners hope the forestry ogram will become a model for velopment of graduate education the South.

The purpose of both developments to avoid expensive duplication of cilities, to provide a type of edution higher than any single school the region could afford and to ep home grown brains at home.

Of primary importance, too, says rector John E. Ivey of the board control for southern regional ucation, is the fact that a partrship with business and governent will help both solve critical anpower shortages while providing aduates with an opportunity to rn as they learn.

Instead of trying to be all things all students in the forestry field, ey reported, each school will delop a specialty. One school might ecialize in the problems of the lp paper industry, another in byoducts and another in developent of resources.

At present, Ivey said, the southern per industry is almost forced to e northern schools and laboratoes to handle research.

The schools signing the forestry mpact were Duke, Louisiana ate University, Alabama Polychnic Institute and the Univeries of Georgia, Florida and North arolina.

The idea of taking industry and vernment into educational partrship first was broached at a eeting of educators in 1949 at vannah, Ga. The Daytona Beach eeting put the finishing touches the idea and moved for actual gning of contracts with the agenes and with industries.

"Lord," said Ivey, "if it works it, by a stroke of the pen laborary equipment worth billions of llars will become available."

The three major cost items in proding graduate educations, Ivey plained, are faculty, plant and orary.

"A good many industries and govnment agencies," Ivey pointed out, have top scientists, laboratories d libraries." The next step, as tlined at Daytona Beach, is to nd out the needs of industry and vernment and tailor the educaon program to fill the bill.

A student, for example, under the acts might register at the University of Georgia for study in aeroautics, but actually would do his ork at the Air Force's Arnold Rearch Center at Tullahoma, Tenn. e might prepare his thesis while orking at a large aircraft plant.

A by-product of the contracts, vey continued, might be the development of the consultant system r professors. Thus a professor, say t Georgia Tech, might be in part n the payroll of industry or the overnment. Like the student, the rofessor thus would have more inome to develop his specialty and also would benefit from improved equipment.

What is southern regional education? It is simply a region-wide university with a current enrollment of 850 students financed by 14 state legislatures.

When the plan went into operation in 1949 it moved into certain high cost education fields as a starter — veterinary medicine, human medicine, dentistry and nursing.

The plan is simple. Instead of each state duplicating facilities it provides a quota system for the exchange between the states of students.

Mississippi, for example, has no veterinary school. Alabama has two, one for white students at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn and the other for negroes at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee.

Under the pact Alabama charges Mississippi students the same tuition fee it charges its own state students.

In no case does the student receive any direct funds from the participating states. The money goes directly to the school to improve facilities.

Ivey estimates it would cost each of the 14 participating states $3,000,000 to duplicate a veterinary school.

Since Alabama, Texas, Georgia and Oklahoma already have such schools the other 10 states, rather than build from the ground up, send veterinary students under the swap arrangement to a school in one of these states.

Theoretically, the 10 states without veterinary schools save $30,000,000 and thus have more money available to develop specialty schools of their own.

Useless Fat On Americans Could Do 1,500,000,000 Man-Hours Of Work

By RENNIE TAYLOR

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The useless fat which Americans are carrying around on their bodies could supply energy enough to do about one and one-half billion man-hours of work, a group of doctors reports.

This excess poundage is becoming so much of a health problem that the American Medical Association is repeating at its clinical sessions here a four-day feature program urging doctors to take a firmer hand with overweight patients. A similar program was presented by the AMA at its Atlantic City convention last June.

The aggregate overweight of all American adults amounts to about 500 million pounds, said Dr. Louis I. Dublin and Dr. H. H. Marks, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

One-fourth of the population carries excess weight, they said. On the average this means an overweight of about 10 per cent or around 16 pounds for each of 30,000,000 people.

Possibly two-thirds of this excess weight is fat and the other third is water. Theoretically the fat is convertible into energy.

If the excess fat could be utilized efficiently in work energy it could give this country's production a terrific boost without appreciably increasing its food intake, said Dr. D. M. Hegsted of Boston, one of the participants in the program.

Efficiently converted into energy, this would mean 1½ billion man-hours, he said.

However, it can't be utilized in that way to full advantage. But it could be used beneficially if people cut down on their eating without cutting down on their work.

In that case it would gradually disappear and the gain would be in the amount of work done compared with the amount of food eaten.

But the big benefits, said Dr. Marks, would be in improved health.

Dr. Dublin and Dr. Marks have produced sheaves of statistics indicating that the death rate among overweight persons is appreciably higher than among normal weights.

They cited figures showing that the death rate among fat men is 42 per cent greater than among normal weights. These people have to pay an extra premium for life insurance.

igher Education artnership Idea ig Hit In South.

By BEM PRICE

ATLANTA (AP)—Southern regional ucation planners with their ornization barely out of the diaper age have set themselves quietly to ganizing a sort of revolution.

Meeting in Daytona Beach, Fla., cently, educators from 65 colleges d universities in 14 southern states oposed to make industry and govnment partners in the plan.

Nothing like it has ever been prosed on such a scale in the history U.S. graduate education.

The same session also turned out e first signed agreement among schools to take a certain field of udy—in this case forestry— and ecialize in certain aspects.

The planners hope the forestry ogram will become a model for velopment of graduate education the South.

The purpose of both developments to avoid expensive duplication of cilities, to provide a type of education higher than any single school the region could afford and to ep home grown brains at home.

Of primary importance, too, says rector John E. Ivey of the board control for southern regional ucation, is the fact that a partrship with business and government will help both solve critical anpower shortages while providing aduates with an opportunity to rn as they learn.

Instead of trying to be all things all students in the forestry field, ey reported, each school will delop a specialty. One school might ecialize in the problems of the lp paper industry, another in byoducts and another in development of resources.

At present, Ivey said, the southern per industry is almost forced to e northern schools and laboratoes to handle research.

The schools signing the forestry mpact were Duke, Louisiana ate University, Alabama Polychnic Institute and the Universies of Georgia, Florida and North arolina.

The idea of taking industry and vernment into educational partrship first was broached at a eeting of educators in 1949 at vannah, Ga. The Daytona Beach eeting put the finishing touches the idea and moved for actual gning of contracts with the agenes and with industries.

"Lord," said Ivey, "if it works it, by a stroke of the pen laborary equipment worth billions of llars will become available."

The three major cost items in proding graduate educations, Ivey plained, are faculty, plant and orary.

"A good many industries and govnment agencies," Ivey pointed out, ave top scientists, laboratories d libraries." The next step, as tlined at Daytona Beach, is to d out the needs of industry and vernment and tailor the educaon program to fill the bill.

A student, for example, under the acts might register at the University of Georgia for study in aeroautics, but actually would do his ork at the Air Force's Arnold Rearch Center at Tullahoma, Tenn. e might prepare his thesis while orking at a large aircraft plant.

A by-product of the contracts, vey continued, might be the development of the consultant system r professors. Thus a professor, say t Georgia Tech, might be in part n the payroll of industry or the overnment. Like the student, the rofessor thus would have more inome to develop his specialty and also would benefit from improved equipment.

What is southern regional education? It is simply a region-wide university with a current enrollment of 850 students financed by 14 state legislatures.

When the plan went into operation in 1949 it moved into certain high cost education fields as a starter — veterinary medicine, human medicine, dentistry and nursing.

The plan is simple. Instead of each state duplicating facilities it provides a quota system for the exchange between the states of students.

Mississippi, for example, has no veterinary school. Alabama has two, one for white students at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn and the other for negroes at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee.

Under the pact Alabama charges Mississippi students the same tuition fee it charges its own state students.

In no case does the student receive any direct funds from the participating states. The money goes directly to the school to improve facilities.

Ivey estimates it would cost each of the 14 participating states $3,000,000 to duplicate a veterinary school.

Since Alabama, Texas, Georgia and Oklahoma already have such schools the other 10 states, rather than build from the ground up, send veterinary students under the swap arrangement to a school in one of these states.

Theoretically, the 10 states without veterinary schools save $30,000,000 and thus have more money available to develop specialty schools of their own.

Useless Fat On Americans Could Do 1,500,000,000 Man-Hours Of Work

By RENNIE TAYLOR

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The useless fat which Americans are carrying around on their bodies could supply energy enough to do about one and one-half billion man-hours of work, a group of doctors reports.

This excess poundage is becoming so much of a health problem that the American Medical Association is repeating at its clinical sessions here a four-day feature program urging doctors to take a firmer hand with overweight patients. A similar program was presented by the AMA at its Atlantic City convention last June.

The aggregate overweight of all American adults amounts to about 500 million pounds, said Dr. Louis I. Dublin and Dr. H. H. Marks, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

One-fourth of the population carries excess weight, they said. On the average this means an overweight of about 10 per cent or around 16 pounds for each of 30,000,000 people.

Possibly two-thirds of this excess weight is fat and the other third is water. Theoretically the fat is convertible into energy.

If the excess fat could be utilized efficiently in work energy it could give this country's production a terrific boost without appreciably increasing its food intake, said Dr. D. M. Hegsted of Boston, one of the participants in the program.

Efficiently converted into energy, this would mean 1½ billion man-hours, he said.

However, it can't be utilized in that way to full advantage. But it could be used beneficially if people cut down on their eating without cutting down on their work.

In that case it would gradually disappear and the gain would be in the amount of work done compared with the amount of food eaten.

But the big benefits, said Dr. Marks, would be in improved health.

Dr. Dublin and Dr. Marks have produced sheaves of statistics indicating that the death rate among overweight persons is appreciably higher than among normal weights.

They cited figures showing that the death rate among fat men is 42 per cent greater than among normal weights. These people have to pay an extra premium for life insurance.

Reason Needed For Eviction

Thomas E. Barrett, Jr., director of the local rent office, said yesterday that under the rent stabilization law a landlord can evict a tenant only for specified grounds. The law provides for monetary damages in case of illegal eviction.

"A tenant illegally evicted may sue the landlord for what is called reasonable attorney's fees, court costs, one month's rent or $50, whichever is greater, or sue for as much as $150 or three times the month's rent, whichever is greater," Barrett said.

"By an illegal eviction," Barrett continued, "I mean any action in which a tenant is required to vacate an apartment or flat, or for that matter, any housing accommodation for any reason not authorized by law."

For more information about illegal eviction, said Barrett, write or call your area rent office and request the "Fact Sheet On Eviction." "If it does not answer your question, one of our consultants will be glad to discuss your problem with you personally."

Four Area Soldiers Arrive In United States

Cpl. William H. Allen, 11 Cherry Place; Sgt. Harold E. Dibert, 20 West First Street; Sgt. William D. Ware, Route 5, and Cpl. Charles Barnhart, of Hancock, were among the 43 Marylanders due to arrive in Seattle yesterday.

The four area men are in the group of 2,914 troops being brought back to the U. S. from the Far East on the Army's rotation plan.

Two Area Men Enlist

Two area men were sworn into the armed forces this week at Martinsburg, W. Va. according to M-Sgt. Virgil P. Burns, recruiter.

Irvin Williams, RFD 1, Box 108, Frostburg, enlisted in the U. S. Army and will go to Fort George G. Meade for processing. Samuel R. Cope, 461 Goethe Street, enlisted in the U. S. Air Force, and was dispatched to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, for basic training.

Two Baltimore Area Hunters Wounded

Area casualties of the deer hunting season continued to mount yesterday with the report two nimrods are recuperating from bullet wounds in Garrett County Memorial Hospital at Oakland.

Carroll L. Rehmert, 40, of Baltimore, was wounded in the right thigh Wednesday while hunting at Buffalo Creek near Bayard, Grant county, W. Va. The accident occurred on the Ralph Miller farm.

Kenneth K. Boylan, 26, of Catonsville was admitted to the hospital Tuesday with a superficial wound between the eyes. Attaches said a "pumpkin ball" ricocheted off a rock. His injury was described as "not serious."

Givens Will Attend Industrial Meeting

H. C. Givens, Jr., Amcelle plant manager of the Celanese Corporation of America, will attend the third annual meeting of the Association Industries of Maryland on December 13 in Baltimore.

The event is scheduled at the Lord Baltimore Hotel and principal speaker will be Harold Blancke, president of the Celanese Corporation of America.

Remove Hazards In Street Dept.

Three of the eight hazards reported by the inspection committee of the Street Department Safety Committee this week were already in the process of correction.

John R. Wilson, secretary, said bids had been asked to correct inadequate lighting in the garage and that bad seats on several vehicles had been discovered and replaced before the meeting.

John Haus, chairman, reported that seven of eight hazards reported last month have been corrected.

Included was the installation of shields on motors and saws, ordering replacements for broken stepladders, repair of drain in the warehouse, repair of steps at the warehouse and the addition of another toilet in the building.

A full membership of the committee was on hand, including Andrew Heller, one of the co-chairmen, who was on vacation when the meeting was held.

A discussion on the methods of discovering hazards was also held.

Yuletide Tree Shipments Arriving In Cumberland

Christmas trees are arriving in Cumberland for the approaching holiday season.

Yesterday a carload of trees arrived along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad siding on George Street and workers began the task of unloading them. The trees arrived here from the Canadian woods. Others are due to arrive from nearby sections of West Virginia and Western Maryland. Thus far retail sales of trees has not started.

a step which McGill had constructed from her back porch, it was claimed. William A. Gunter and William J. Gunter were counsel for McGill.

Another suit removed here from Garrett county was also settled out of court.

Edith Showalter asked $10,000 damages from Sanders Motor Freight, Inc., Oakland. Mrs. Showalter was a passenger in a car, driven by her husband, which was involved in a collision with one of the Oakland firm's trucks on Oldtown Road near North Branch. She sustained extensive injuries, which required 47 stitches. Mrs. Showalter was represented by Ryan and W. Earle Cobey was attorney for the defendant.

of most coal mines in the area, and heavy furloughs at the Celanese plant in Cumberland, Lonaconing had at one time almost topped the list in the area's unemployment, based upon percentage.

The General Textile Mills is the only other large employer in the community, and recently had been shut down due to a slump in the textile market; however, the plant has since reopened.

Members of the committee said last night the new industry makes acoustical supplies and metal fasteners for wall board, using tin and sheet steel for raw material. They have contracts with large manufacturers of wall and panel board, officials indicated.

Workers Busily Engaged Reconditioning Christmas Toys For Deserving Children

For the past month city firemen have been busy reconditioning and repainting toys which will gladden the hearts of many deserving Cumberland children on Christmas morning.

Being collected and processed by the Associated Charities, the toys will be distributed to the children through the efforts of Santa Claus.

At Central Fire Station, a corner of the building has been turned into a workshop where hobby horses, trains, musical tops, and every type toy imaginable are being given a bright coat of paint. Much of the material used in the process has been donated by local merchants, as well as the firemen according to Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary of the Associated Charities.

Blackboards Made

Throughout the day, the city firemen may be seen dabbing a bit of paint, repairing a broken wheel, or replacing a spent spring. Yesterday several blackboards were being made by one of the firemen.

The Soroptomist Club and many of the sororities of the city are also pitching in and preparing to swell the pack of toys Santa will distribute Christmas morning. The Naval and Marine Reserve members are busily occupied at the Armory doing their bit in aiding Santa.

Last week about 42 doll beds, prepared by helpers at the H. and S. Plumbing Company workshop on Polk Street, were taken to the office and in the meantime colorful pillows and coverings are being made by volunteer workers. Hosts of baby dolls, to put a twinkle in the eyes of many little girls in Cumberland are also being processed.

Makes Doll Clothes

Yesterday Miss Bonig cited a case of a woman who has received benefits from the Associated Charities since she and her family ran into misfortune recently. When the woman came to the office and asked if there was something she could do, Miss Bonig suggested making some doll clothing.

The efforts of the woman in fixing the doll clothes with bonnets trimmed in lace are something to see.

Residents of Cumberland who would like to help in making this Christmas just a little bit brighter for some deserving child are reminded that the Associated Charities will still accept toys and volunteer help.

Two Area Army Vets Receive Discharges

Two Cumberland area reservists, both Korean veterans, have completed processing at the 2053rd Reception Center at Fort George G. Meade and have been released from active duty with the Army.

They are: Pvt. Walter G. Morris, son of Mrs. Emma B. Morris, Centre Street, who served in Korea for nine months. His wife, the former Ester V. Smith, Morgantown, W. Va., and one child, Carolyn Ann, three, live at 24 Ridgeway Terrace.

M/Sgt. Frank P. Stakem, son of Mrs. Winnie Stakem, Lonaconing, served in Korea for ten months. His wife, the former, Ruth E. Jones, Lonaconing, lives at 20 East Main Street.

appeared at the hospital Sunday and complained of feeling "drowsy." He reported the man was "treated on two occasions."

According to Dr. Thomas F. Lusby, of Oakland, he examined Bohn on Monday when the Frederick countian came to the hospital a second time, and found a bruise on the head but no serious injury or wound. Dr. Lusby said Bohn was unable to give any details as to the manner in which he was injured.

Dr. Lusby said he saw Bohn again Wednesday. X-rays showed "nothing definite" and he recommended that Bohn go to University Hospital for further examination.

Flue Fire Checked

Brick Workers Call Strike At Zihlman Plant

Workers at the Big Savage Refractories Corporation plant at Zihlman yesterday struck in protest of hauling of clay to the plant by non-union truckers, a union official said last night.

Howard Winfield, president of Local 190, Brick and Clay Workers, affiliated with District 50, UMW, said some 200 workers quit work at 3 p. m., saying they would not use clay hauled by the truckers, largely independent contractors.

He said the work had been done until a short time ago by five members of the local, who were laid off when the work was sub-contracted. Some clay used in the fire brick firm is hauled there from Ohiopyle, Pa.

Officials of the firm declined to comment on the stoppage last night, saying they might have a statement this morning.

Why Thousands of Doctors Prescribe PERTUSSIN for Bad Coughs caused by colds

Here's news which should be welcome to anyone who has a bad cough caused by a cold. You can now get, direct from your drugstore, that famous modern cough medicine called PERTUSSIN which thousands of doctors have prescribed for both old and young for cough relief.

PERTUSSIN acts at once! It promptly relieves and also loosens thick, sticky phlegm and makes it easier to raise.

PERTUSSIN is safe and mighty effective for both old and young. It positively contains no harmful ingredients of any kind. And it's very pleasant tasting. Buy the large family size and save money.

Workers Busily Engaged Reconditioning Christmas Toys For Deserving Children

For the past month city firemen have been busy reconditioning and repainting toys which will gladden the hearts of many deserving Cumberland children on Christmas morning.

Being collected and processed by the Associated Charities, the toys will be distributed to the children through the efforts of Santa Claus.

At Central Fire Station, a corner of the building has been turned into a workshop where hobby horses, trains, musical tops, and every type toy imaginable are being given a bright coat of paint. Much of the material used in the process has been donated by local merchants, as well as the firemen according to Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary of the Associated Charities.

Blackboards Made

Throughout the day, the city firemen may be seen dabbing a bit of paint, repairing a broken wheel, or replacing a spent spring. Yesterday several blackboards were being made by one of the firemen.

The Soroptomist Club and many of the sororities of the city are also pitching in and preparing to swell the pack of toys Santa will distribute Christmas morning. The Naval and Marine Reserve members are busily occupied at the Armory doing their bit in aiding Santa.

Last week about 42 doll beds, prepared by helpers at the H. and S. Plumbing Company workshop on Polk Street, were taken to the office and in the meantime colorful pillows and coverings are being made by volunteer workers. Hosts of baby dolls, to put a twinkle in the eyes of many little girls in Cumberland are also being processed.

Makes Doll Clothes

Yesterday Miss Bonig cited a case of a woman who has received benefits from the Associated Charities since she and her family ran into misfortune recently. When the woman came to the office and asked if there was something she could do, Miss Bonig suggested making some doll clothing.

The efforts of the woman in fixing the doll clothes with bonnets trimmed in lace are something to see.

Residents of Cumberland who would like to help in making this Christmas just a little bit brighter for some deserving child are reminded that the Associated Charities will still accept toys and volunteer help.

Two Area Army Vets Receive Discharges

Two Cumberland area reservists, both Korean veterans, have completed processing at the 2053rd Reception Center at Fort George G. Meade and have been released from active duty with the Army.

They are: Pvt. Walter G. Morris, son of Mrs. Emma B. Morris, Centre Street, who served in Korea for nine months. His wife, the former Ester V. Smith, Morgantown, W. Va., and one child, Carolyn Ann, three, live at 24 Ridgeway Terrace.

M/Sgt. Frank P. Stakem, son of Mrs. Winnie Stakem, Lonaconing, served in Korea for ten months. His wife, the former, Ruth E. Jones, Lonaconing, lives at 20 East Main Street.

Probe Begins

appeared at the hospital Sunday and complained of feeling "drowsy." He reported the man was "treated on two occasions."

According to Dr. Thomas F. Lusby, of Oakland, he examined Bohn on Monday when the Frederick countian came to the hospital a second time, and found a bruise on the head but no serious injury or wound. Dr. Lusby said Bohn was unable to give any details as to the manner in which he was injured.

Dr. Lusby said he saw Bohn again Wednesday. X-rays showed "nothing definite" and he recommended that Bohn go to University Hospital for further examination.

Flue Fire Checked

Brick Workers Call Strike At Zihlman Plant

Workers at the Big Savage Refractories Corporation plant at Zihlman yesterday struck in protest of hauling of clay to the plant by non-union truckers, a union official said last night.

Howard Winfield, president of Local 190, Brick and Clay Workers, affiliated with District 50, UMW, said some 200 workers quit work at 3 p. m., saying they would not use clay hauled by the truckers, largely independent contractors.

He said the work had been done until a short time ago by five members of the local, who were laid off when the work was sub-contracted. Some clay used in the fire brick firm is hauled there from Ohiopyle, Pa.

Officials of the firm declined to comment on the stoppage last night, saying they might have a statement this morning.

Although they are subjected to much more severe weather than are other bears, only the pregnant female polar bear sleeps during the winter.

New Stabilization Boss Sees Self 'Enlisted' To Wage Inflation Fight

By LEONARD P. GIBLIN

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—(AP)—The nation's new economic stabilization director thinks of his job as a military duty—"my third enlistment," he calls it.

Roger Lowell Putnam, Navy officer in two world wars and now, at 57, the vigorous head of a million-dollar machinery business, talks of his role as Eric Johnston's successor as "an assignment to carry on the war against inflation already started." But he declines to discuss any plan of campaign.

"It's not good judgment to deploy your forces until you see what's facing you," he explained.

Putnam, nephew of Harvard's late president, A. Lawrence Lowell, and a descendant of Revolutionary War Gen. Israel Putnam, says he is "not going down to Washington with the idea of doing any sweeping out. I'm not going to clean out any bad bunch, because I think they're a good bunch. Of course I don't approve of everything that has been done, but I have a high regard for Eric Johnston."

As for guns or butter, he says: "That's not my province, thank God. My job is coordinating, and that's enough to keep me busy."

Three times mayor of Springfield (he was elected in 1937, 1939 and 1941, the first man to serve three terms) and unsuccessful Democratic nominee for governor of Massachusetts (he lost in 1942 to Republican Leverett Saltonstall, now U. S. senator) Putnam says he is out of politics for good.

"I have no political ambitions," he says. "I don't think my friends believed me when I said this before, but after this maybe they will believe me now."

Washington will never permit Putnam to work as he does here. In the fluorescent-bright plant of Package Machinery Co., which boasts that the automatic wrapping machines it has turned out over the years produce a billion packages a day, Putnam is a company president without an office.

Callers looking for Putnam walk from a lobby into a huge workroom 240 by 80 feet, where bookkeepers, stenographers and sales personnel labor in a labyrinth of desks and filing cabinets. Down one side of the room are the executives' desks, out in the open, without even a railing for separation.

As the visitors start down a wide aisle, a man in a white shirt and a blue polka dot bow tie rises from a desk and extends his hand. The man is Putnam and this is his office.

A stocky man with a good build, he stands five feet 9½ inches and weighs 190 pounds. His eyes are bright and his brown hair still shows some of the curl of youth. He has been with Package Machinery since 1919, six years after its organization, and president since 1927, excluding the war years.

Oakland Weather Observer Cited For His Service

Commerce Secretary Lauds R. E. Weber

OAKLAND — Ralph E. Weber, Oakland weatherman for more than forty years, was cited yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer for patriotic service to the nation.

Weber was one of 22 Maryland volunteer weather observers listed in Sawyer's special commendation. He was one of only three men in the 40-to-50-year service bracket.

Other Western Marylanders cited for their service include: Mrs. Leo A. Cohill, Clear Spring, 30-40 years; Norris Bruce, Westernport, 30-29 years; Julian G. Patrick, Luke, 10-20 years.

Stationed at points all over the country, weather observers take daily readings of temperature and rainfall and record them on special forms which are mailed to the Weather Bureau once a month. There are 10,000 such volunteer observers in the nation.

The commendation from Sawyer came concurrently with the issuance of a volume titled "The Cooperative Weather Observer," compiled by the Weather Bureau and listing some 1,857 observers who have served for more than 10 years.

Sawyer praised the weather observer as "the highest type of American citizen, who unselfishly devotes his time and exposes himself to the severest of weather in the service of his government and who is content to do so for the general good he performs.

"The weather observations so gathered on out-of-the-way stations through the breadth of the country cumulatively add up to an in valuable body of information of importance to the commerce and industry, agriculture and defense of a nation."

Beall Latin Club Plans Program Monday

FROSTBURG — The Beall High Latin Club will plan and produce a program before the two advanced Latin classes on Monday.

This program, celebrating the ancient Roman holiday honoring the God Saturn, was planned by the following students: Mary Lee Stewart, Margaret Geiger, Ramona Densmore, and Arlene Landefeld. Plans include a program of Latin scripture and prayer, as well as Latin skits, songs, and games. The traditional sigillaria, or clay images, will be exchanged.

Frostburg Briefs

The senior choir of First Congregational Church will hold its business meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Lancaster, Spring Street, this evening at 8 o'clock.

Safe Economic Life Is Asked

KEYSER, W. Va.—Ervin L. Dayton, instructor of economics and business administration at Potomac State School, told the Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday that it is time for the American people to stop fooling and find a way to bring a return of safety in our economic life.

The time is past, he said, when people may extend their hands to get all they can from the government without working for it.

"Everytime we accept something from our Federal Government, we, as citizens, pay for it, and we pay the hard way," he said. "We must remember restraint, denial, honesty and respect. We should be able to deny and to hold a restraint over doing the wrong thing in governmental life."

"A general policy for many persons, both in government and gangland and to a certain extent closer home," he said, "is to get everything the easy way; the future generations will pay the expense."

He spoke of the tax probes, saying at first and only a small part of the public was aroused, and then the matter was forgotten or pushed aside by many with the feeling "nothing can be done about it."

There is no hope for improvement in politics, no solution there, he said, until the people return to sanity.

Lonaconing PTA Sponsors Yuletide Party At School

LONACONING — The Jackson School Parent-Teacher Association held its Christmas party Wednesday evening at the school.

A turkey supper and covered dishes were served and a jingle party held. Guests were Mrs. Mary Bartlett and daughter, of Cumberland. Mrs. Bartlett is instructor of the Civilian Defense Home Nursing class of the Jackson PTA group.

Following the exchange of gifts by the sixty members who attended, carol singing took place. Attractive angel decorations were on the window ledges made by Mrs. Esther Bowden's art pupils.

Pine branches, red Christmas balls, Christmas greens and candles were the table decorations.

Mrs. Audrey Garliez, president, welcomed the large group attending and announced that a play, "Flo Joins The PTA," will be presented by a cast of 11 members of the Jackson Association on Wednesday, January 9, at the school.

A class of 14 are enrolled in the Home Nursing Class and will complete their twelve hours of instruction by meetings on Mondays and Fridays, until December 14.

Santa Claus will make his arrival on Friday, December 21, at 1 p. m. at the Jackson school to give the Christmas treat to all of the pupils in their classrooms.

Christmas Program Set At Frostburg School

FROSTBURG — Miss Grace Finzel, chairman of the assembly committee, has announced that a Christmas program will be given Friday, December 21, at 1:30 p. m. in the auditorium. The patrons and friends of Beall are invited.

The Junior and Senior music clubs will have charge of the program under the direction of Mr. Harris the Music department.

Shopping Day

WITH KAYE and RAE

Hi! Before you buy your Xmas presents, it will pay you to visit your local merchants. Some of them who offer outstanding values are as follows:

★ ★ ★ ★

Ladies, is your hubbie a Moose or Elk? If so, HOSKEN JEWELRY STORE has just the Christmas present for him. They have men's onyx rings, initial type and fraternal emblems. Why not surprise and delight him with one of these?

★ ★ ★ ★

May we recommend our favorite cleaner, DEIST CLEANERS & DYERS, Frostburg. For expert cleaning and quick pickup and delivery, call 303 today. You'll see what we mean.

★ ★ ★ ★

It's not Xmas without kids and toys. If you've the kids, we'll tell you where to go for toys. CHARLIE HILL'S Xmas and regular stores feature tables and chairs, all metal service stations, electrical and mechanical trains, doll carts and wagons.

★ ★ ★ ★

What is a more peaceful scene than a family relaxed at home at Xmas. For real relaxation, CONDON'S SHOE STORE suggests men's bedroom slippers—$3.95 to $4.95; women's—$3.50 to $4.25. Stop in and ask Joe about them.

★ ★ ★ ★

We asked Elva Fischer, FROSTBURG DEPARTMENT STORE, for ladies' gifts. She suggested Stanley ladies' hankies, printed, linen, lace, colors, plain white,—$25c to $1.00. Very pretty too.

★ ★ ★ ★

She was all dressed up, lipstick too.
He took one look and said, "We're through!"
(She forgot to go to THE CINDERELLA BEAUTY SALON
for a hairdo).

★ ★ ★ ★

Why not make the Xmas gift one for the whole family? HAFER'S FURNITURE STORE offers a fine assortment of new tables, lamps and hassocks; all sizes and prices. Go in and look them over.

★ ★ ★ ★

In Lonaconing we watched Art Phillips making center and mantle pieces for original Xmas decorations. PHILLIPS FLOWER SHOP is now displaying these different, unique pieces. Call 3131 today; or better still, go in and see them for yourself.

★ ★ ★ ★

How's your family Xmas record supply? If you are a Mario Lanza fan, THE FROSTBURG MUSIC & SPORTS SHOP have his RCA 45 and 78 rpm Xmas songs, which include such favorites as "Silent Night", "Away in the Manger", etc. Enjoy Xmas with music.

★ ★ ★ ★

Why not drop a hint to your husband to go to HARRIS in Frostburg and ask to see their pajamas, housecoats, slips and gowns, which are always welcome at Xmas. We're sure they can fit you as they have varying styles, makes and prices.

★ ★ ★ ★

Have you got your supply of Xmas candy and nuts for the holidays? PRICE'S FOOD MARKET have nuts of all kinds, mixed or separate, also, Xmas candy in bulk, 1-lb. and 5-lb boxes.

★ ★ ★ ★

At MORTON'S GARAGE in Frostburg, we asked Freddie when the new Chrysler would be in. Smiling, he said, "Lady, all I can say is, keep watching our display window. It'll be soon."

★ ★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★ ★

The GIFT SHOP on Broadway offers Norcross Xmas cards for special friends, far and near, and all the family—boxes and packages. They have gift wrapping, tags and ribbons. There, too, can be found the nationally advertised Buxton wallets.

★ ★ ★ ★

In HARRIS RESTAURANT, Sadie was serving us in her usual smiling efficient way, so we asked her "what's on the menu?" She said, "There's a different special lunch daily, for $50c—coffee free."

★ ★ ★ ★

Men, go to HOHING'S MEN'S WEAR and ask to see the Wilson Bros. Faultless, no-belt waistband, underwear; full in the seat for comfort, priced at $3.95—$4.95. Bob has a good line of men's P.J.'s too.

★ ★ ★ ★

Girls, if your date stood you up, maybe he didn't know the time. At FORD'S DRUG STORE, Frostburg, buy him a lovely men's wrist watch, expansion bracelet, priced from $4.95 to $15.95.

★ ★ ★ ★

Was in Lonaconing to see Central play Accident Tues. nite. IKE LOVE'S ECONOMY STORE'S window had a very nice display of Hallmark Xmas cards. See Ike first—then buy!

★ ★ ★ ★

Ladies, in Lonaconing we have the ANNA MARY'S BEAUTY SHOP, (formerly High's). Be sure to stop in at 5 Union Street and ask Anna Mary about her specials on all permanents.

★ ★ ★ ★

Getting valuable fur pieces, fur coats or jewelry for Xmas? Why not have peace of mind by going to HOLBEN INSURANCE AGENCY, Frostburg, and asking Dick to insure them for you?

Be smart and start a Xmas fund at THE FROSTBURG NATIONAL BANK. Deposit $25c, 50c, $1.00, $2.00 and $5.00 a week, which amounts to $12.50 to $250.00 saved during the course of the year.

★ ★ ★ ★

So long for this week. Watch for SHOPPING DAY.

Lonaconing PTA Sponsors Yuletide Party At School

LONACONING — The Jackson School Parent-Teacher Association held its Christmas party Wednesday evening at the school.

A turkey supper and covered dishes were served and a jingle party held. Guests were Mrs. Mary Bartlett and daughter, of Cumberland. Mrs. Bartlett is instructor of the Civilian Defense Home Nursing class of the Jackson PTA group.

Following the exchange of gifts by the sixty members who attended, carol singing took place. Attractive angel decorations were on the window ledges made by Mrs. Esther Bowden's art pupils.

Pine branches, red Christmas balls, Christmas greens and candles were the table decorations.

Mrs. Audrey Garliez, president, welcomed the large group attending and announced that a play, "Flo Joins The PTA," will be presented by a cast of 11 members of the Jackson Association on Wednesday, January 9, at the school.

A class of 14 are enrolled in the Home Nursing Class and will complete their twelve hours of instruction by meetings on Mondays and Fridays, until December 14.

Santa Claus will make his arrival on Friday, December 21, at 1 p. m. at the Jackson school to give the Christmas treat to all of the pupils in their classrooms.

Christmas Program Set At Frostburg School

FROSTBURG — Miss Grace Finzel, chairman of the assembly committee, has announced that a Christmas program will be given Friday, December 21, at 1:30 p. m. in the auditorium. The patrons and friends of Beall are invited.

To Greet New Year

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Star of Italy Lodge No. 1426 will hold a public dance at their home, 17 West Hampshire Street, New Year's night. Music for dancing from 9 to 12 will be by the Rythnairs.

Shopping Day WITH KAYE and RAE

Hi! Before you buy your Xmas presents, it will pay you to visit your local merchants. Some of them who offer outstanding values are as follows:

★ ★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★ ★

May we recommend our favorite cleaner, DEIST CLEANERS & DYERS, Frostburg. For expert cleaning and quick pickup and delivery, call 303 today. You'll see what we mean.

★ ★ ★ ★

It's not Xmas without kids and toys. If you've the kids, we'll tell you where to go for toys. CHARLIE HILL'S Xmas and regular stores feature tables and chairs, all metal service stations, electrical and mechanical trains, doll carts and wagons.

★ ★ ★ ★

What is a more peaceful scene than a family relaxed at home at Xmas. For real relaxation, CONDON'S SHOE STORE suggests men's bedroom slippers—$3.95 to $4.95; women's—$3.50 to $4.25. Stop in and ask Joe about them.

★ ★ ★ ★

We asked Elva Fischer, FROSTBURG DEPARTMENT STORE, for ladies' gifts. She suggested Stanley ladies' hankies, printed, linen, lace, colors, plain white,—$25c to $1.00. Very pretty too.

★ ★ ★ ★

She was all dressed up, lipstick too.
He took one look and said, "We're through!"
(She forgot to go to THE CINDERELLA BEAUTY SALON
for a hairdo).

★ ★ ★ ★

Why not make the Xmas gift one for the whole family? HAFER'S FURNITURE STORE offers a fine assortment of new tables, lamps and hassocks; all sizes and prices. Go in and look them over.

★ ★ ★ ★

In Lonaconing we watched Art Phillips making center and mantle pieces for original Xmas decorations. PHILLIPS FLOWER SHOP is now displaying these different, unique pieces. Call 3131 today; or better still, go in and see them for yourself.

★ ★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★ ★

Why not drop a hint to your husband to go to HARRIS in Frostburg and ask to see their pajamas, housecoats, slips and gowns, which are always welcome at Xmas. We're sure they can fit you as they have varying styles, makes and prices.

★ ★ ★ ★

Have you got your supply of Xmas candy and nuts for the holidays? PRICE'S FOOD MARKET have nuts of all kinds, mixed or separate, also, Xmas candy in bulk, 1-lb. and 5-lb boxes.

★ ★ ★ ★

At MORTON'S GARAGE in Frostburg, we asked Freddie when the new Chrysler would be in. Smiling, he said, "Lady, all I can say is, keep watching our display window. It'll be soon."

★ ★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★ ★

The GIFT SHOP on Broadway offers Norcross Xmas cards for special friends, far and near, and all the family—boxes and packages. They have gift wrapping, tags and ribbons. There, too, can be found the nationally advertised Buxton wallets.

★ ★ ★ ★

In HARRIS RESTAURANT, Sadie was serving us in her usual smiling efficient way, so we asked her "what's on the menu?" She said, "There's a different special lunch daily, for $50c—coffee free."

★ ★ ★ ★

Men, go to HOHING'S MEN'S WEAR and ask to see the Wilson Bros. Faultless, no-belt waistband, underwear; full in the seat for comfort, priced at $3.95—$4.95. Bob has a good line of men's P.J.'s too.

★ ★ ★ ★

Girls, if your date stood you up, maybe he didn't know the time. At FORD'S DRUG STORE, Frostburg, buy him a lovely men's wrist watch, expansion bracelet, priced from $4.95 to $15.95.

★ ★ ★ ★

Was in Lonaconing to see Central play Accident Tues. nite. IKE LOVE'S ECONOMY STORE'S window had a very nice display of Hallmark Xmas cards. See Ike first—then buy!

★ ★ ★ ★

Ladies, in Lonaconing we have the ANNA MARY'S BEAUTY SHOP, (formerly High's). Be sure to stop in at 5 Union Street and ask Anna Mary about her specials on all permanents.

★ ★ ★ ★

Getting valuable fur pieces, fur coats or jewelry for Xmas? Why not have peace of mind by going to HOLBEN INSURANCE AGENCY, Frostburg, and asking Dick to insure them for you?

Be smart and start a Xmas fund at THE FROSTBURG NATIONAL BANK. Deposit $25c, 50c, $1.00, $2.00 and $5.00 a week, which amounts to $12.50 to $250.00 saved during the course of the year.

★ ★ ★ ★

So long for this week. Watch for SHOPPING DAY.

Oakland Weather Observer Cited For His Service

Commerce Secretary Lauds R. E. Weber

OAKLAND — Ralph E. Weber, Oakland weatherman for more than forty years, was cited yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer for patriotic service to the nation.

Weber was one of 22 Maryland volunteer weather observers listed in Sawyer's special commendation. He was one of only three men in the 40-to-50-year service bracket.

Other Western Marylanders cited for their service include: Mrs. Leo A. Cohill, Clear Spring, 30-40 years; Norris Bruce, Westernport, 30-29 years; Julian G. Patrick, Luke, 10-20 years.

Stationed at points all over the country, weather observers take daily readings of temperature and rainfall and record them on special forms which are mailed to the Weather Bureau once a month. There are 10,000 such volunteer observers in the nation.

The commendation from Sawyer came concurrently with the issuance of a volume titled "The Cooperative Weather Observer," compiled by the Weather Bureau and listing some 1,857 observers who have served for more than 10 years.

Sawyer praised the weather observer as "the highest type of American citizen, who unselfishly devotes his time and exposes himself to the severest of weather in the service of his government and who is content to do so for the general good he performs.

"The weather observations so gathered on out-of-the-way stations through the breadth of the country cumulatively add up to an invaluable body of information of importance to the commerce and industry, agriculture and defense of a nation."

Beall Latin Club Plans Program Monday

FROSTBURG — The Beall High Latin Club will plan and produce a program before the two advanced Latin classes on Monday.

This program, celebrating the ancient Roman holiday honoring the God Saturn, was planned by the following students: Mary Lee Stewart, Margaret Geiger, Ramona Densmore, and Arlene Landefeld. Plans include a program of Latin scripture and prayer, as well as Latin skits, songs, and games. The traditional sigillaria, or clay images, will be exchanged.

Safe Economic Life Is Asked

KEYSER, W. Va.—Ervin L. Dayton, instructor of economics and business administration at Potomac State School, told the Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday that it is time for the American people to stop fooling and find a way to bring a return of safety in our economic life.

The time is past, he said, when people may extend their hands to get all they can from the government without working for it.

"Everytime we accept something from our Federal Government, we, as citizens, pay for it, and we pay the hard way," he said. "We must remember restraint, denial, honesty and respect. We should be able to deny and to hold a restraint over doing the wrong thing in governmental life."

"A general policy for many persons, both in government and gangland and to a certain extent closer home," he said, "is to get everything the easy way; the future generations will pay the expense."

He spoke of the tax probes, saying at first and only a small part of the public was aroused, and then the matter was forgotten or pushed aside by many with the feeling "nothing can be done about it."

Birth Announced

FROSTBURG—Major and Mrs. F. A. Dwyer announce the birth of a daughter, Mary Anderson, on November 14 at the Tompkins Memorial Hospital, Ithaca, N. Y. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Elvin, 79 Frost Avenue.

Kiwanis Speaker Condemns Abuse Of Public Office

Yule Lighting Contest Planned In Petersburg

PETERSBURG, W. Va. — Paul Ware, Philippi, W. Va., attorney, was guest speaker at the Kiwanis meeting Friday. Ware has been active in Kiwanis work for 25 years, being past lieutenant governor of the fifth division, and has served on important assignments on Kiwanis International Committees.

Ware reviewed some of the resolutions adopted at the last Kiwanis International Convention, stressing the resolution, "To maintain efforts to prevent the corruption of public officials and condemn the misuse of public office."

"The greatest need of this hour is leaders," he declared, "who are incorruptible and who remain so because of an abiding faith in God."

Final plans were made to install Christmas lights on the streets.

This project is sponsored in conjunction with the Petersburg Volunteer Fire Company.

James Breathed is chairman of the committee for home decorations and $15, $10 and $5 prizes will be given for the best decorated homes.

Breathed, chairman of the March of Dimes for Grant County, named Dr. W. C. Van Meter as chairman of the Advance Gifts Committee. This committee will start working immediately.

Christmas Food Is Demonstrated

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — Miss Isabella Miller, of the Potomac Edison staff in Romney, gave a demonstration of Christmas cookery and demonstrations at a meeting Monday of the Moorefield Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. S. A. McCoy.

Miss Miller demonstrated mantle decorations, table decorations, package ties and hanging arrangemens for doors. She presented Christmas recipes and had prepared a turkey, several salads and cakes which were distributed.

Mrs. Orvan Bean received the turkey; Mrs. M. A. Bean, a fruit cake; Mrs. C. R. Powers, iced fruit cake; Mrs. H. G. Muntzing, coconut cake; Mrs. Thurman Renolds, jellied cheese salad; Mrs Arno Friddle, cranberry relish, and Phoebe Fisher, a cranberry salad.

At the business meeting, Mrs. Donald Baker, president, announced that $60 had been donated for CARE packages. The Build Freedom With Youth committee presented two projects to be undertaken with the cooperation of the youth of the community: a Baby Sitters Club and a plan for numbering the houses in Moorefield.

Mrs. F. Richard Trop, reporting on the Community Chorus, told of plans for Christmas caroling and asked whether members would like to sponsor a Community Christmas program. Mrs. M. A. Bean, Mrs. R. E. Fisher and Mrs. Francis Baker were appointed to contact churches and learn their plans for the holiday season.

A social hour followed with Mrs. M. A. Bean, Mrs. A. E. Judy, Mrs. W. D. McCauley and Mrs. R. E. Fisher, co-hostesses.

Sheep Killing Dogs Prove Costly In Mineral County

KEYSER, W. Va.—Sheep killing dogs have been costly for the Mineral County Court this year.

Checks totaling $1,809 were issued to cover damage done by dogs to several sheep herds in the county this week by County Clerk Harry Rogers.

Authorization for the payment was given by the County Court at its meeting in the Court House Wednesday.

A check to Richard E. Carskadon for $1,197 is said to have been the largest ever made to one person for sheep loss by dogs in the state. The sheep in his herd killed by dogs were purebred Dorset stock.

Payments are made from the County Dog Fund, which is made possible by the county dog license fees of $1 for males and $2 for female dogs. The fund usually runs from $1,000 to $1,200 annually in the county.

Plan Yule Dance

KEYSER, W. Va. — The annual Christmas dance of the Keyser High School Alumni Association will be held Friday night, December 28, in the Firemen's Hall from 10 to 1 o'clock, with music by the Midnighters.

Plywood Firm To Open Soon In Moorefield

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — A new industry, the Moorefield Plywood Corporation will go into operation at the former Thompson Mahogany Company plant here soon.

The firm, a subsidiary of the Washington Woodcraft Corporation, Washington, N. J., will manufacture a high grade plywood for the cabinet and furniture trade and will employ a minimum of 100 local workers.

The chief raw product used will be poplar logs, which will generally be purchased locally.

The corporation is owned by three brothers, Louis, Irvine and Matthew Schneider. Louis Schneider was in Moorefield recently with engineers from the New Jersey plant, checking the condition of the present boiler room and heating facilities.

Work on the installation of a heating plant, the first step in getting the plant into operation, will commence immediately and when completed, the necessary equipment will follow for a full scale operation.

Kennebec Outdoor Club Plans Party

LONACONING — The Kennebec Outdoor Club will hold a Christmas party Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Miss Khrista McKenzie.

A Christmas tree and holiday decorations will prevail. Games will be played and refreshments served. A meeting of the K. O. club was held Tuesday to make the party plans. Miss McKenzie was chosen chairman of the committee, and Patsy Murphy and Ray Clark will assist in party arrangements.

Keyser Yule Service Set

KEYSER, W. Va. — Mrs. E. E. Church, director of the Keyser Community Christmas Service, which will be held in the high school auditorium Sunday at 8 p. m., has announced the program. Mrs. Paul Dayton is accompanist and Nunzio Barbera is director of the high school ensemble.

Prelude, Christmas carols, by the high school ensemble; hymn, "Adeste Fideles", "One Night in Bethlehem", Goldsworthy;

Part I—Expectation, "O Come, O Come Emanuel" by Miss Dorothy Brock, supervisor of Music, Keyser Schools, Paul Krieger, "Thou Dids't Leave Thy Throne", Chorus and Junior Choir; Scripture and prayer by Rev. Louis E. Bouknight, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Part II—"In the Fields", "There Were in the Same Country", by Mrs. Carlyle Kaufman and Paul Krieger, "Glory to God in the Highest", Chorus and Junior Choir; offering, Rev. Lloyd Myers, pastor of Grace Methodist Church; The offertory by the Chorale, Palestrina.

Part III—At Bethlehem, "Let Us Go To Bethlehem", sung by Paul Krieger and Male Chorus, Mrs. Parker Black and Woman's Chorus; "Good Christian Men Rejoice, Chorus and Junior Choir.

Rev. Fred Bowman, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, will give the benediction. The program will conclude with Handel's Hallelujah Chorus.

Court Of Honor Set In Barton

BARTON—A Court of Honor will be held Wednesday, December 19, at 7:30 p. m. at Barton High School Tri-Towns District Scouters.

Okey Michael, Westernport, chairman of Board of Review, said the district also includes, Barton, Lonaconing and Swanton.

William Brown, of Barton Troop No. 25, who last February received His God and Country medal, will receive an Eagle badge at the meeting. Thirty awards in all will be received by scouts in the districts.

After the Court of Honor, the December meeting of the Tri-Towns District Scouters will be held with Dr. Donald P. Whitworth, district chairman, presiding.

McCoole Homemakers Plan Yule Party

McCOOLE—The annual Christmas Party will be given by the McCoole Homemakers Club Tuesday at 6 p. m. in McCoole Community Church.

Members have been asked to bring gifts, not to exceed 50 cents, for the exchange department and to bring a covered dish and a quarter for the dinner. Meat will be furnished by the club.

At the business meeting, Mrs. Donald Baker, president, announced that $60 had been donated for CARE packages. The Build Freedom With Youth committee presented two projects to be undertaken with the cooperation of the youth of the community: a Baby Sitters Club and a plan for numbering the houses in Moorefield.

Mrs. F. Richard Trop, reporting on the Community Chorus, told of plans for Christmas caroling and asked whether members would like to sponsor a Community Christmas program. Mrs. M. A. Bean, Mrs. R. E. Fisher and Mrs. Francis Baker were appointed to contact churches and learn their plans for the holiday season.

Sheep Killing Dogs Prove Costly In Mineral County

KEYSER, W. Va.—Sheep killing dogs have been costly for the Mineral County Court this year.

Checks totaling $1,809 were issued to cover damage done by dogs to several sheep herds in the county this week by County Clerk Harry Rogers.

Authorization for the payment was given by the County Court at its meeting in the Court House Wednesday.

A check to Richard E. Carskadon for $1,197 is said to have been the largest ever made to one person for sheep loss by dogs in the state. The sheep in his herd killed by dogs were purebred Dorset stock.

Payments are made from the County Dog Fund, which is made possible by the county dog license fees of $1 for males and $2 for female dogs. The fund usually runs from $1,000 to $1,200 annually in the county.

Plan Yule Dance

KEYSER, W. Va. — The annual Christmas dance of the Keyser High School Alumni Association will be held Friday night, December 28, in the Firemen's Hall from 10 to 1 o'clock, with music by the Midnighters.

Plywood Firm To Open Soon In Moorefield

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — A new industry, the Moorefield Plywood Corporation will go into operation at the former Thompson Mahogany Company plant here soon.

The firm, a subsidiary of the Washington Woodcraft Corporation, Washington, N. J., will manufacture a high grade plywood for the cabinet and furniture trade and will employ a minimum of 100 local workers.

The chief raw product used will be poplar logs, which will generally be purchased locally.

The corporation is owned by three brothers, Louis, Irvine and Matthew Schneider. Louis Schneider was in Moorefield recently with engineers from the New Jersey plant, checking the condition of the present boiler room and heating facilities.

Work on the installation of a heating plant, the first step in getting the plant into operation, will commence immediately and when completed, the necessary equipment will follow for a full scale operation.

Kennebec Outdoor Club Plans Party

LONACONING — The Kennebec Outdoor Club will hold a Christmas party Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Miss Khrista McKenzie.

A Christmas tree and holiday decorations will prevail. Games will be played and refreshments served. A meeting of the K. O. club was held Tuesday to make the party plans. Miss McKenzie was chosen chairman of the committee, and Patsy Murphy and Ray Clark will assist in party arrangements.

Keyser Yule Service Set

KEYSER, W. Va. — Mrs. E. E. Church, director of the Keyser Community Christmas Service, which will be held in the high school auditorium Sunday at 8 p. m., has announced the program. Mrs. Paul Dayton is accompanist and Nunzio Barbera is director of the high school ensemble.

Prelude, Christmas carols, by the high school ensemble; hymn, "Adeste Fideles", "One Night in Bethlehem", Goldsworthy;

Part I—Expectation, "O Come, O Come Emanuel" by Miss Dorothy Brock, supervisor of Music, Keyser Schools, Paul Krieger, "Thou Dids't Leave Thy Throne", Chorus and Junior Choir; Scripture and prayer by Rev. Louis E. Bouknight, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Part II—"In the Fields", "There Were in the Same Country", by Mrs. Carlyle Kaufman and Paul Krieger, "Glory to God in the Highest", Chorus and Junior Choir; offering, Rev. Lloyd Myers, pastor of Grace Methodist Church; The offertory by the Chorale, Palestrina.

Part III—At Bethlehem, "Let Us Go To Bethlehem", sung by Paul Krieger and Male Chorus, Mrs. Parker Black and Woman's Chorus; "Good Christian Men Rejoice, Chorus and Junior Choir.

Rev. Fred Bowman, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, will give the benediction. The program will conclude with Handel's Hallelujah Chorus.

Court Of Honor Set In Barton

BARTON—A Court of Honor will be held Wednesday, December 19, at 7:30 p. m. at Barton High School Tri-Towns District Scouters.

Okey Michael, Westernport, chairman of Board of Review, said the district also includes, Barton, Lonaconing and Swanton.

William Brown, of Barton Troop No. 25, who last February received His God and Country medal, will receive an Eagle badge at the meeting. Thirty awards in all will be received by scouts in the districts.

After the Court of Honor, the December meeting of the Tri-Towns District Scouters will be held with Dr. Donald P. Whitworth, district chairman, presiding.

McCoole Homemakers Plan Yule Party

McCOOLE—The annual Christmas Party will be given by the McCoole Homemakers Club Tuesday at 6 p. m. in McCoole Community Church.

Members have been asked to bring gifts, not to exceed 50 cents, for the exchange department and to bring a covered dish and a quarter for the dinner. Meat will be furnished by the club.

Sobeloff Group Will Discuss Aims At Wednesday Meeting

SIMON E. SOBELOFF

The Sobeloff Commission, formally called the State Commission of Administrative Organization, will meet with local representatives here Wednesday.

The commission will discuss its purposes at a dinner scheduled at 6 p.m. in the Algonquin Hotel. Invited by Simon E. Sobeloff, Baltimore attorney who is chairman of the commission, are Allegany county House of Delegate members, State Senator Robert B. Kimble and officials of service, civic, business, professional, labor and industry groups.

David Kauffman, of this city who is a member of the commission and chairman of the sub-committee that studied the office of the governor, said Sobeloff, J. Theodore Wolfe, and Charles Bandiere, all of Baltimore, will be here.

Discussed Last Night

The work of the commission, that will be discussed here, was brought out last night at a similar dinner in Salisbury.

The reaction of the lower Eastern Shoremen indicated general approval.

The commission was appointed by Gov. McKeldin soon after his inauguration to examine the structure of state government and make recommendations toward streamlining it.

Wolfe, vice president of the Consolidated Gas and Electric Company in Baltimore, said the biggest job the group had was to eliminate the confusion in the state budget.

A new budget system proposed by the commission, he said, should do the trick by itemizing expenditures by functions or programs instead of listing them in bulk columns.

Sobeloff said the commission's job was necessary because during the past 30 years state expenditures have gone up from $12,000,000 to $163,000,000 and the number of state employes has risen from 3,000 to 15,000.

This rise, he added, makes it imperative that methods be found to avoid extravagance and waste.

Vital Points Listed

Wolfe gave these three points as vital to the commission's proposed budget program:

1. The Governor would submit to the legislature one comprehensive budget document, which would include all estimated income and expenditures for running the state, a capital improvements program and a budget message.

2. The new program would replace the present line budget as a basis for appropriations. Instead of a list of employes and materials, the proposed budget would list the various programs or functions and the cost of each. Also, detailed material on each program would be available to the legislators or other parties who wanted to see them.

3. Special funds would be discontinued except for the roads program and the state game and inland fish commission.

Wolfe said each of the three recommendations would require legislation, and that the attorney general had said the second point would require a constitutional amendment.

The commissioner also said that under its proposal, supplemental budgets would be used only to correct mechanical errors in the original budget and to provide funds required by measures passed in the current legislative session.

Tharp Re-elected Union President

Lynn Tharp was re-elected president of Meat Cutters Local 323, AFL, at a meeting Wednesday in the Allegany County Trades Hall on Frederick Street.

Other officers re-elected were Joseph Houdersheldt, vice president; Ralph Ferguson, financial secretary-treasurer, and Josephine Minnicks, recording secretary.

Bar Group Plans Dinner For Judges

The Allegany County Bar Association at its meeting yesterday in the Court House discussed the plans to hold a dinner in January in honor of the Three judges of the Fourth Maryland Judicial Circuit.

In other business transacted, Donald W. Mason, of 218 Williams Street, a graduate of the Washington and Lee University School of Law, was admitted to membership in the bar association.

The possibility of microfilming records and documents in the Court House was also aired.

Committees noted that recent recommendations of the association are being carried out in the remodeling of the Court House basement, the purchase of a photostat machine and the installation of roller shelves.

20 Deer Die In Allegany On 4th Day

Total Mounts To 160; Illegal Kills Are Low

Twenty deer were reported bagged by hunters yesterday in Allegany county, increasing the kill for the first four days of the six-day season to 160.

Forty-one bucks must be killed in the two remaining days for the record of 201 to be equalled.

Fourteen deer were checked yesterday at Lewis' Store, Oldtown, while six were inspected at Shipway's Inn on Green Ridge.

The Maryland State Police barracks in LaVale checked only one animal but that was slain in Garrett county by William H. Booth of Frostburg. It was killed on Meadow Mountain, weighed 95 pounds and had four points.

Among the fortunate hunters yesterday was a woman—Maxine Zinn of Oldtown who bagged a 157-pounder on Stafford Ridge in Allegany county.

A total of 621 deer were killed on the first three days of the season in Region No. 1, Joseph A. Minke, regional warden, reported. The Garrett county total was 404, Allegany 140 and Washington 77.

Minke pointed out that the illegal kills were exceptionally low in Allegany county this season. Only two does and one spiked buck were reported slain. On the first day last year five illegal kills were recorded and the total was 17 for the six-day season.

Yesterday's kills in Allegany county:

Four Gridders Repeat On AP All-America

Kazmaier, Richter, Ward And Weatherall Named Second Time

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP) — Dick Kazmaier, the phenomenal triple-threat star of Princeton, heads the Associated Press All-America football team for 1951, repeating his 1950 honors.

He leads a spectacular backfield, other members of which are Larry Isbell of Baylor, Hugh McElhenny of Washington, and Hank Lauricella of Tennessee.

Three others with Kazmaier are repeaters from the 1950 All-America: Bob Ward of Maryland, offensive guard; Jim Weatherall of Oklahoma, defensive tackle; and Les Richter of California, linebacker.

Tennessee and Michigan State, the number one and two teams of the land, each won two places on the squad.

This is the team:

OFFENSE

Ends—Bill McColl, Stanford, and Bob Carey, Michigan State.
Tackles—Bob Toneff, Notre Dame, and Don Coleman, Michigan State.
Guards—Bob Ward, Maryland, and Marvin Mutuszak, Tulsa.
Center—Doug Moseley, Kentucky.
Backs—Dick Kazmaier, Princeton; Hank Lauricella, Tennessee; Hugh McElhenny, Washington; Larry Isbell, Baylor.

DEFENSE

Ends—Pat O'Donahue, Wisconsin, and Dewey McConnell, Wyoming.
Tackles—Jim Weatherall, Oklahoma, and Pug Pearman, Tennessee.
Guards—Ray Beck, Georgia Tech, and Joe Palumbo, Virginia.
Linebackers—Keith Flowers, Texas Christian, and Les Richter, California.
Backs—Bobby Dillon, Texas; Al Brosky, Illinois; Ollie Matson, San Francisco U.

The offensive and defensive All-America team takes into account the complete season's games through Dec. 1 and was selected in consultation with a board of 11 newspapermen representing every section of the nation. Hundreds of writers and sportscasters served as advisers.

SECOND TEAM OFFENSIVE

Ends—Tom McCann, Holy Cross; Bill Howton, Rice.
Tackles—Oliver Spencer, Kansas; Bob Werckle, Vanderbilt.
Guards—Jim Donarski, Arizona; Norm Manoogian, Stanford.
Center—Dick Hightower, S.M.U.
Backs—Ed Modzelewski, Maryland; Vito Parilli, Kentucky; Bill Wade, Vanderbilt; John Karras, Illinois.

New Classification Sought For Pacific Coast League

Minors Give Approval, Debate School Ruling

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6 (INS)—The minor leagues cleared the way today for the Pacific Coast League to become a major circuit within five years.

At their business session the minors approved by unanimous voice vote the establishment of a new "open" classification mid-way between the majors and Class AAA. The amendment to the major-minor agreement still must have approval by the big leaguers at their meetings in New York next week.

Pacific Coast League President Clarence Rowland indicated his loop will apply immediately for the new classification if the majors agree.

Vote On Schoolboy Rule

The minors put over until tomorrow morning two of their most controversial questions—a change in the high school rule to permit school boy recruiting and a resolution asking major league clubs to split their radio and television receipts with minors damaged by nation-wide broadcasts.

The executives voted to abolish the 24-hour recall provision for players optioned to lower leagues. The majors are not expected to go along in this action.

Although the minors will continue their deliberations tomorrow, most of the major league onlookers present planned to depart after tonight's annual banquet. That virtually precluded the possibility of any important trades at Columbus.

A primary roadblock in American League negotiations has been the New York Yankees' uncertainty about the future of Joe DiMaggio. The Yankees will talk to Joe in New York next Tuesday or Wednesday and have indicated interest in the Boston Red Sox' Ted Williams if Joe retires.

The open classification's complete lack of opposition encouraged coast leaguers to believe majors' consent will be forthcoming.

Rickey Leads Crusade

The high school rule was a different matter, with Branch Rickey, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, leading a crusade against the "hypocrisy" of the present ban on talking with high school players.

Many executives swung behind a rule that would permit contacting and signing high school players but would bar them from playing professionally or accepting any payment until their class graduates.

Sen. Edwin Johnson, president of the Western League, introduced the novel resolution for apportionment of radio-television receipts, saying he believed an outright ban on broadcasting would be contrary to the anti-trust laws.

Previously, the membership had come within three votes of the three-fourths majority needed to pass a proposal asking complete restriction of major league broadcasts in minor league territory. The vote was 33 to 14 with 36 favorable ballots needed.

Also defeated were attempts to re-establish a bonus rule and to abolish the player draft.

Seixas Bows To Sedgman

Victor Will Face Dick Savitt Today

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 8 (AP) — Dick Savitt, who has all but clinched a singles berth on the United States Davis Cup team through his impressive performances in the Victorian tennis championships, will meet Australia's leading player, Frank Sedgman, in the finals tomorrow.

Both this match and the doubles final which pits America's Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert against Adrian Quist and Geoff Brown are expected to give some clear indications of what is likely to happen in the Davis Cup challenge round, starting Dec. 26 at Sydney.

Savitt, feeling that he needed a good win to clinch his place on the team, came up with one of his finest performances in the semi-finals today, routing Ken McGregor, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Sedgman, possibly the fastest big man who ever played tennis, had to go all out to conquer slender, determined Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 5-7, 6-2, 11-9, 7-5, in a match that kept 6,000 spectators on edge for more than two hours.

Since these four likely will play the Davis Cup singles, the semi-final results supported the Americans' contention that they can regain the trophy if they can beat Sedgman and McGregor in the doubles.

Although they reached the finals after the great experiment of splitting up the No. 1 Australian team fizzled, Quist and Brown were not named to the seven-man cup squad. Instead, the selectors tonight added four youngsters—Ian Ayre, Don Candy, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewell — to the training camp list. Previously Sedgman, McGregor and Merwyn Rose had been named.

The Americans are not expected to have much difficulty in beating Sweden in the inter-zone final next week. It was learned reliably today that Lennart Bergelin, Swedish ace, still is troubled by a shoulder injury and is unlikely to be in condition to play.

Hold 2-Stroke Edge In Miami 1st Round

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP)—Setting a torrid pace for a big company of par butchers, defending champion Sammy Snead and Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., fired 64s today to snatch the first round lead in the $10,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament.

Snead, a Miami winter resident, and Bolt knifed six strikes off par for the smooth and farily easy Miami Springs course to go into a tie for first place by a two-stroke margin in the first major golf event of the Florida winter season.

Grouped in third place with 66s after the opening 18-hole journey were Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., Tony Penna of Cincinnati and Al Besselink of Mt. Clemens, Mich., and back of them was a long list of players who made par for the 6,510 yard course look simple.

Out of a starting field of 162 pros and amateurs, 31 came in a stroke or better under the par figure of 35-35—70.

Snead, who won the tournament for the fourth time last year with a 13 under par 267, toured the first nine in 33 and warmed up with a 31 on the back stretch as he joined bolt at the top of the list in the campaign for the $2,000 first prize.

The Rangy Bolt, who sped over the first nine in 31, was shooting at the tournament record of 62 when he ran into trouble for the first time at the 18th, which he called "the easiest hole on the course."

After aiming deadly approach shots and dropping putts up to 20 feet on the first 17 holes, he faltered for the first time at the 18th, making a poor stab at the green with his third shot and flubbing a short putt.

A 67 was just good enough for a sixth place deadlock and there were four in this group—Lloyd Wadkins of Miami, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., and Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa.

There were 10 players in the 68 bracket and 12 tied at 69, including Tommy Wright of Kingsport, Tenn., Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., and Otto Greiner of Baltimore.

Cost of World War 1 to the U. S. is figured at $25.8 billion.

Writers Honor Walcott, Eagan

Neil Plaque Goes To Heavy Champ

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jersey Joe Walcott and Edward Eagan, former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, today were voted the Boxing Writers Association's two top awards.

Jersey Joe, who won his title at the age of 37 and in his fifth try for boxing's most precious crown will be awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque for having done the most for boxing during the year.

Eagan, a one-time Olympic boxing champion who recently resigned his commission post after 6½ years service, was chosen for the James J. Walker Memorial Award "for long and meritorious service" to boxing.

They will receive their trophies at the Writers annual dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, Jan. 17.

Walcott joins a select company of ring standouts in being singled out for the Neil Award, perhaps the most coveted award in boxing. The plaque is named in honor of Neil, the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed in 1937 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain.

Middleweight champion Ray Robinson received the Neil Plaque last year and the year before it was given to Ezzard Charles, the man Walcott knocked out in Pittsburgh last July to win the heavyweight crown.

New Classification Sought For Pacific Coast League

Minors Give Approval, Debate School Ruling

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6 (INS)—The minor leagues cleared the way today for the Pacific Coast League to become a major circuit within five years.

At their business session the minors approved by unanimous voice vote the establishment of a new "open" classification mid-way between the majors and Class AAA. The amendment to the major-minor agreement still must have approval by the big leaguers at their meetings in New York next week.

Pacific Coast League President Clarence Rowland indicated his loop will apply immediately for the new classification if the majors agree.

Vote On Schoolboy Rule

The minors put over until tomorrow morning two of their most controversial questions—a change in the high school rule to permit school boy recruiting and a resolution asking major league clubs to split their radio and television receipts with minors damaged by nation-wide broadcasts.

The executives voted to abolish the 24-hour recall provision for players optioned to lower leagues. The majors are not expected to go along in this action.

Although the minors will continue their deliberations tomorrow, most of the major league onlookers present planned to depart after tonight's annual banquet. That virtually precluded the possibility of any important trades at Columbus.

A primary roadblock in American League negotiations has been the New York Yankees' uncertainty about the future of Joe DiMaggio. The Yankees will talk to Joe in New York next Tuesday or Wednesday and have indicated interest in the Boston Red Sox' Ted Williams if Joe retires.

The open classification's complete lack of opposition encouraged coast leaguers to believe majors' consent will be forthcoming.

Rickey Leads Crusade

The high school rule was a different matter, with Branch Rickey, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, leading a crusade against the "hypocrisy" of the present ban on talking with high school players.

Many executives swung behind a rule that would permit contacting and signing high school players but would bar them from playing professionally or accepting any payment until their class graduates.

Sen. Edwin Johnson, president of the Western League, introduced the novel resolution for apportionment of radio-television receipts, saying he believed an outright ban on broadcasting would be contrary to the anti-trust laws.

Previously, the membership had come within three votes of the three-fourths majority needed to pass a proposal asking complete restriction of major league broadcasts in minor league territory. The vote was 33 to 14 with 36 favorable ballots needed.

Also defeated were attempts to re-establish a bonus rule and to abolish the player draft.

Victor Will Face Dick Savitt Today

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 8 (AP) — Dick Savitt, who has all but clinched a singles berth on the United States Davis Cup team through his impressive performances in the Victorian tennis championships, will meet Australia's leading player, Frank Sedgman, in the finals tomorrow.

Both this match and the doubles final which pits America's Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert against Adrian Quist and Geoff Brown are expected to give some clear indications of what is likely to happen in the Davis Cup challenge round, starting Dec. 26 at Sydney.

Savitt, feeling that he needed a good win to clinch his place on the team, came up with one of his finest performances in the semi-finals today, routing Ken McGregor, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Sedgman, possibly the fastest big man who ever played tennis, had to go all out to conquer slender, determined Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 5-7, 6-2, 11-9, 7-5, in a match that kept 6,000 spectators on edge for more than two hours.

Since these four likely will play the Davis Cup singles, the semi-final results supported the Americans' contention that they can regain the trophy if they can beat Sedgman and McGregor in the doubles.

Although they reached the finals after the great experiment of splitting up the No. 1 Australian team fizzled, Quist and Brown were not named to the seven-man cup squad. Instead, the selectors tonight added four youngsters—Ian Ayre, Don Candy, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewell — to the training camp list. Previously Sedgman, McGregor and Merwyn Rose had been named.

The Americans are not expected to have much difficulty in beating Sweden in the inter-zone final next week. It was learned reliably today that Lennart Bergelin, Swedish ace, still is troubled by a shoulder injury and is unlikely to be in condition to play.

Pineapple Bowl Teams Chosen

HONOLULU, Dec. 6—(AP)—The University of Hawaii today approved San Diego State College's undefeated football team for the Pineapple Bowl game here New Year's Day.

New Classification Sought For Pacific Coast League

Minors Give Approval, Debate School Ruling

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6 (INS)—The minor leagues cleared the way today for the Pacific Coast League to become a major circuit within five years.

At their business session the minors approved by unanimous voice vote the establishment of a new "open" classification mid-way between the majors and Class AAA. The amendment to the major-minor agreement still must have approval by the big leaguers at their meetings in New York next week.

Pacific Coast League President Clarence Rowland indicated his loop will apply immediately for the new classification if the majors agree.

Vote On Schoolboy Rule

The minors put over until tomorrow morning two of their most controversial questions—a change in the high school rule to permit school boy recruiting and a resolution asking major league clubs to split their radio and television receipts with minors damaged by nation-wide broadcasts.

The executives voted to abolish the 24-hour recall provision for players optioned to lower leagues. The majors are not expected to go along in this action.

Although the minors will continue their deliberations tomorrow, most of the major league onlookers present planned to depart after tonight's annual banquet. That virtually precluded the possibility of any important trades at Columbus.

A primary roadblock in American League negotiations has been the New York Yankees' uncertainty about the future of Joe DiMaggio. The Yankees will talk to Joe in New York next Tuesday or Wednesday and have indicated interest in the Boston Red Sox' Ted Williams if Joe retires.

The open classification's complete lack of opposition encouraged coast leaguers to believe majors' consent will be forthcoming.

Rickey Leads Crusade

The high school rule was a different matter, with Branch Rickey, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, leading a crusade against the "hypocrisy" of the present ban on talking with high school players.

Many executives swung behind a rule that would permit contacting and signing high school players but would bar them from playing professionally or accepting any payment until their class graduates.

Sen. Edwin Johnson, president of the Western League, introduced the novel resolution for apportionment of radio-television receipts, saying he believed an outright ban on broadcasting would be contrary to the anti-trust laws.

Previously, the membership had come within three votes of the three-fourths majority needed to pass a proposal asking complete restriction of major league broadcasts in minor league territory. The vote was 33 to 14 with 36 favorable ballots needed.

Also defeated were attempts to re-establish a bonus rule and to abolish the player draft.

St. Michael's Wins Fourth

Tops St. Patrick's By Score Of 44-18

St. Michael's of Frostburg kept its record unblemished in the K. of C. Youth Basketball League by walloping St. Patrick's last night on SS. Peter and Paul court by the score of 44-18.

The victory was the fourth in a row for Coach Father Regis Larkin's cagers. Halftime score was 28-11.

Victor Will Face Dick Savitt Today

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 8 (AP) — Dick Savitt, who has all but clinched a singles berth on the United States Davis Cup team through his impressive performances in the Victorian tennis championships, will meet Australia's leading player, Frank Sedgman, in the finals tomorrow.

Both this match and the doubles final which pits America's Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert against Adrian Quist and Geoff Brown are expected to give some clear indications of what is likely to happen in the Davis Cup challenge round, starting Dec. 26 at Sydney.

Savitt, feeling that he needed a good win to clinch his place on the team, came up with one of his finest performances in the semi-finals today, routing Ken McGregor, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Sedgman, possibly the fastest big man who ever played tennis, had to go all out to conquer slender, determined Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 5-7, 6-2, 11-9, 7-5, in a match that kept 6,000 spectators on edge for more than two hours.

Since these four likely will play the Davis Cup singles, the semi-final results supported the Americans' contention that they can regain the trophy if they can beat Sedgman and McGregor in the doubles.

Although they reached the finals after the great experiment of splitting up the No. 1 Australian team fizzled, Quist and Brown were not named to the seven-man cup squad. Instead, the selectors tonight added four youngsters—Ian Ayre, Don Candy, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewell — to the training camp list. Previously Sedgman, McGregor and Merwyn Rose had been named.

The Americans are not expected to have much difficulty in beating Sweden in the inter-zone final next week. It was learned reliably today that Lennart Bergelin, Swedish ace, still is troubled by a shoulder injury and is unlikely to be in condition to play.

Pineapple Bowl Teams Chosen

HONOLULU, Dec. 6—(AP)—The University of Hawaii today approved San Diego State College's undefeated football team for the Pineapple Bowl game here New Year's Day.

Archie Kodros, university coach, said the board of athletic control unanimously approved the choice this morning. An official invitation will be dispatched later today.

Kodros said he had a wire from San Diego State last night indicating the Aztecs' willingness to play.

Snead And Bolt Post 64s To Set Pace In Florida

Hold 2-Stroke Edge In Miami 1st Round

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP)—Setting a torrid pace for a big company of par butchers, defending champion Sammy Snead and Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., fired 64s today to snatch the first round lead in the $10,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament.

Snead, a Miami winter resident, and Bolt knifed six strikes off par for the smooth and farily easy Miami Springs course to go into a tie for first place by a two-stroke margin in the first major golf event of the Florida winter season.

Grouped in third place with 66s after the opening 18-hole journey were Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., Tony Penna of Cincinnati and Al Besselink of Mt. Clemens, Mich., and back of them was a long list of players who made par for the 6,510 yard course look simple.

Out of a starting field of 162 pros and amateurs, 31 came in a stroke or better under the par figure of 35-35—70.

Snead, who won the tournament for the fourth time last year with a 13 under par 267, toured the first nine in 33 and warmed up with a 31 on the back stretch as he joined bolt at the top of the list in the campaign for the $2,000 first prize.

The Rangy Bolt, who sped over the first nine in 31, was shooting at the tournament record of 62 when he ran into trouble for the first time at the 18th, which he called "the easiest hole on the course."

After aiming deadly approach shots and dropping putts up to 20 feet on the first 17 holes, he faltered for the first time at the 18th, making a poor stab at the green with his third shot and flubbing a short putt.

A 67 was just good enough for a sixth place deadlock and there were four in this group—Lloyd Wadkins of Miami, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., and Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa.

There were 10 players in the 68 bracket and 12 tied at 69, including Tommy Wright of Kingsport, Tenn., Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., and Otto Greiner of Baltimore.

Cost of World War 1 to the U. S. is figured at $25.8 billion.

Moorefield End Earns Class "B" All-State Berth

James Hardy Honored, Awards Dinner Jan. 8

James Hardy, Moorefield High School wingman, is the only high school player from the eastern section of the state to earn a berth on the 1951 All West Virginia Class "B" football team.

Hardy is 5 feet, 10 inches tall, tips the beam at 165, is a senior and is 17 years old.

Vinson of Huntington, Class "B" champions, dominated the fourth annual selections by capturing three berths in the first team. They were: Dan Hastings, end; Robert Stone, guard, and Dale Boyd, back.

Other players named were: Kenneth Rardin, tackle, Ravenswood; Robert Huff, tackle, Farmington; Donald Dawson, guard, Pennsboro; George Chadwick, center, Buffalo (Kenova); Delmar Dixon, back, Sissonville; Robert Brown, back Pennsboro; Derris Partain, back, Rainelle.

Hughes, Charles Town back, made the second team, and two Rowlesburg players—Peaslee, tackle, and Powell, back, were placed on the third team.

TACKLES—Hefner, Moorefield;

GUARDS — Sites, Petersburg; Crites, Franklin; Magruder, Ridgeley.

CENTERS — Whetzel, Ridgeley; Landis, Romney, Shahan, Rowlesburg; Kite, Kingwood.

BACKS—Payne, Romney; Laraway, Kingwood; Ramey, Charles Town; Wilson, Moorefield; Gainer, Tunnelton; Daniels, Musselman; Luzier, Arthurdale.

Friendsville Quint Takes Opener, 38-29

FRIENDSVILLE, Dec. 6—Friendsville High School opened its basketball season tonight with a 38-29 victory over the Friendsville Independents.

G. Wright, high school forward, led the scorers with 17 points, including seven field goals. J. Humberson paced the losers with 14 tallies.

Neil Plaque Goes To Heavy Champ

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jersey Joe Walcott and Edward Eagan, former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, today were voted the Boxing Writers Association's two top awards.

Jersey Joe, who won his title at the age of 37 and in his fifth try for boxing's most precious crown will be awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque for having done the most for boxing during the year.

Eagan, a one-time Olympic boxing champion who recently resigned his commission post after 6½ years service, was chosen for the James J. Walker Memorial Award "for long and meritorious service" to boxing.

They will receive their trophies at the Writers annual dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, Jan. 17.

Walcott joins a select company of ring standouts in being singled out for the Neil Award, perhaps the most coveted award in boxing. The plaque is named in honor of Neil, the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed in 1937 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain.

Middleweight champion Ray Robinson received the Neil Plaque last year and the year before it was given to Ezzard Charles, the man Walcott knocked out in Pittsburgh last July to win the heavyweight crown.

Fort Meade Wins

FT. MEADE, Md., Dec. 6 (AP)—Player-coach Dick Schnittker banged in 19 points to lead Ft. Meade to a 78-52 victory over Lincoln U. here tonight.

Penn Offers $11,500 To Frank Sinkwich

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP) — Frank Sinkwich, head football coach at the University of Tampa, has been offered a post as backfield assistant to Coach George Munger at the University of Pennsylvania, it was reported here today.

Sinkwich was out of town and not available for comment.

Dr. E. C. Nance, president of the University of Tampa, said he understood Pennsylvania offered the former Georgia All-American half back $11,500 a year. Sinkwich's salary here is $5,000.

Rams Sign Danowski

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Ed Danowski, head football coach at Fordham University since 1946, signed a three-year contract to continue in that post today. Danowski completed a two-year contract this year. Fordham won five, lost four this season.

Penn Offers $11,500 To Frank Sinkwich

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP) — Frank Sinkwich, head football coach at the University of Tampa, has been offered a post as backfield assistant to Coach George Munger at the University of Pennsylvania, it was reported here today.

Sinkwich was out of town and not available for comment.

Dr. E. C. Nance, president of the University of Tampa, said he understood Pennsylvania offered the former Georgia All-American half back $11,500 a year. Sinkwich's salary here is $5,000.

Rams Sign Danowski

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Ed Danowski, head football coach at Fordham University since 1946, signed a three-year contract to continue in that post today. Danowski completed a two-year contract this year. Fordham won five, lost four this season.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6 (INS)—Everything points to Linda Christian getting the femme lead in "European Edition" at Columbia. Who will take the role which the late Bob Walker was to have played hasn't been determined. Linda will have a test before she goes to New York with Tyrone Power, and as Jerry Bressler, the producer, is very sold on her, it's more than dollars to doughnuts she'll get the part.

I don't know why they're talking about Mario Lanza reducing any more. He's much thinner than he was when he made "The Great Caruso," and certainly no one thought about his poundage then.

At any rate, when Mario starts "Because You're Mine," December 10 one of his leading ladies will be Paula Corday who has just fin- "Too Young To Kiss" with Van Johnson at MGM.

Incidentally, there is no truth in the report that Paula and her husband, Harold Nebenzahl, are having matrimonial trouble. She's the girl who was discovered by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Bobby Driscoll (good heavens, is he old enough to play a juvenile just becoming interested in sex?) gets the second most important role to Charles Boyer in "The Happy Time." If you saw it on the stage, it's the part of the youth who goes around mouthing that everything "is just a matter of glands."

Master Driscoll, discovered originally by Walt Disney, won himself a special Oscar two years ago as the outstanding child performer of the year.

"The Happy Time" is a Stanley Kramer picture and if it does as well as a movie as it did for Rodgers and Hammerstein on Broadway it will clean up. Brought in second top money to "South Pacific."

When the Madrid matador, Marlo Cabre, was in love with Ava Gardner he sent her poems. He's sending Yvonne De Carlo poodles — or a poddle, I should say.

Running all over the set of "Scarlet Angel" at U-I is the cutest little white dog getting under everybody's feet and generally raising you-know-what. When they're actually shooting a scene, he's locked up in Yvonne's soundproof portable dressing room so his yelps won't register.

Cabre, himself, is due here soon after stopping off first to attend the premiere of "Pandora And The Flying Dutchman" in New York.

Farley Granger and Hildegarde Neff at Jack's at the beach doesn't surprise me. Farl told me he had fallen for her.

Peter Howard writes from Venice, Italy, that he is not engaged to an Egyptian film actress, and that he has never been engaged to anyone but Betsy Von Furstenberg.

Are John Payne and Lina Romay getting to be an item? They were holding hands again at John Walsh's Deauville.

Ward Bond telephoned that he is home from the hospital and feeling fine and the doctors say he'll be able to work right away. "The report of my serious illness," says Ward, "is worse than Mark Twain's death."

Catherine McLeod better resort to the old onion routine to induce tears. She used a liquid for the sake of her crying art in "Sword Of Venus" and was sent home until the infection in her eyes clears.

Kirk Douglas out of the hospital and in Palm Springs was well enough to have dinner there with Barbara Whiting.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Undergoes Operation

LONACONING — Mrs. Eileen Hershberger Robertson, wife of George Robertson, underwent an operation on Tuesday in Memorial hospital, Cumberland.

Petersburg Briefs And Personals

The annual Christmas pageant, sponsored by the Luther League of Grace Lutheran Church and directed by the pastor, Rev. Richard A. Gast, will be presented on Christmas eve at 11:30 o'clock. Mrs. Jessie Riggleman will be soloist and other music will be presented by the Senior and Junior Choirs and the Borror family. The Sunday School program will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Christmas Eve.

A square dance, sponsored by the Future Homemakers and Future Farmers Association of Petersburg High School, will be held in the Grade School gymnasium this evening. Miss Mernie Judy, Burlington, will teach new figures and call figures for the dancers.

W. S. Harman, 85, Pansy, fell and broke his leg Wednesday afternoon. He was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. He is president of the Grant County Bank.

Mrs. Walter Strawderman, who has been quite ill at her home in South Petersburg, is improving.

Vauda Cosner, 12, who has been at Easton Nursing Home, Morgantown, being treated for polio, has returned to her home at Mt. Storm.

Missionary Society Names Committees

PETERSBURG, W. Va.—Grace Lutheran Missionary Society met at the church Tuesday evening, when Mrs. Arthur Judy, president, named the following committee chairmen:

Kitchen, Mrs. D. L. Getz; program; Mrs. Henry Sites; membership, Mrs. Myrtle Judy; Thank Offering, Mrs. Mary Leach; sick, Mrs. George Mallow; dining room, Mrs. Jessie Shaffer; planning, Mrs. Noah Sites.

The Society decided to make individual gifts at its Christmas program for the Christ child's birthday rather than exchange gifts between themselves.

The lesson and devotions, in keeping with the work of the American Bible Society, were presented by Mrs. Judy.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6 (INS)—Everything points to Linda Christian getting the femme lead in "European Edition" at Columbia. Who will take the role which the late Bob Walker was to have played hasn't been determined. Linda will have a test before she goes to New York with Tyrone Power, and as Jerry Bressler, the producer, is very sold on her, it's more than dollars to doughnuts she'll get the part.

Linda will do some TV shows in New York, and Ty will do radio shows while in the big town. They'll get back, of course, for Christmas, to be with their daughter on her first Christmas.

• — • — •

I don't know why they're talking about Mario Lanza reducing any more. He's much thinner than he was when he made "The Great Caruso," and certainly no one thought about his poundage then.

At any rate, when Mario starts "Because You're Mine," December 10 one of his leading ladies will be Paula Corday who has just fin- "Too Young To Kiss" with Van Johnson at MGM.

Incidentally, there is no truth in the report that Paula and her husband, Harold Nebenzahl, are having matrimonial trouble. She's the girl who was discovered by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

• — • — •

Bobby Driscoll (good heavens, is he old enough to play a juvenile just becoming interested in sex?) gets the second most important role to Charles Boyer in "The Happy Time." If you saw it on the stage, it's the part of the youth who goes around mouthing that everything "is just a matter of glands."

Master Driscoll, discovered originally by Walt Disney, won himself a special Oscar two years ago as the outstanding child performer of the year.

"The Happy Time" is a Stanley Kramer picture and if it does as well as a movie as it did for Rodgers and Hammerstein on Broadway it will clean up. Brought in second top money to "South Pacific."

• — • — •

When the Madrid matador, Mario Cabre, was in love with Ava Gardner he sent her poems. He's sending Yvonne De Carlo poodles — or a poddle, I should say.

Running all over the set of "Scarlet Angel" at U-I is the cutest little white dog getting under everybody's feet and generally raising you-know-what. When they're actually shooting a scene, he's locked up in Yvonne's soundproof portable dressing room so his yelps won't register.

Cabre, himself, is due here soon after stopping off first to attend the premiere of "Pandora And The Flying Dutchman" in New York.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Donald O'Connor is as happy as if he'd been handed an Oscar. He just sold the first song he ever wrote, "I Waited A Little Too Long," and the Andrews Sisters will record it.

Farley Granger and Hildegarde Neff at Jack's at the beach doesn't surprise me. Farl told me he had fallen for her.

Peter Howard writes from Venice, Italy, that he is not engaged to an Egyptian film actress, and that he has never been engaged to anyone but Betsy Von Furstenberg.

Are John Payne and Lina Romay getting to be an item? They were holding hands again at John Walsh's Deauville.

Ward Bond telephoned that he is home from the hospital and feeling fine and the doctors say he'll be able to work right away. "The report of my serious illness," says Ward, "is worse than Mark Twain's death."

Catherine McLeod better resort to the old onion routine to induce tears. She used a liquid for the sake of her crying art in "Sword Of Venus" and was sent home until the infection in her eyes clears.

They can't live with or without each other department: Francesca De Scaffe and her divorced husband, Bruce Cabot, at Ciro's with the Errol Flynns.

Kirk Douglas out of the hospital and in Palm Springs was well enough to have dinner there with Barbara Whiting.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Zanies From Boston

John Crosby

The special essence of Bob and Ray, whose last names (Elliott and Goulding, respectively) were apparently left up in Boston, is pretty hard to explain. From their radio program, for example, will occasionally spurt such cryptic messages as "Portions of this program were on microfilm."

On their opening television program, they appeared as a couple of disembodied heads floating over a candle. "Will the man or very large lady who has been making that ring of right-footed tracks in the snow, kindly call the Museum of Natural History?" said one of them. Probably scared the hell out of the children and certainly baffled a great many of the adult members of the television audience who had not received prior training on Bob and Ray on the radio.

• — • — •

They take you unawares, this pair of deadpan New Englanders, and they take some getting used to, especially on television. Come right down to it, Bob and Ray will have to get a little used to television which doesn't afford the flexibility of radio and which slows them down a little.

You find them sitting at a desk, exchanging non-sequiturs at which they're past masters, when a news ticker starts to tick away. Bob leaps up, grabs the tap, and exclaims: "Will the mother who left the little boy in a blue suit in the laundromat, please take him out? The colors are running and ruining the other tenants' clothes."

From there they go immediately into a commercial for Sturdley's anchovies "the only anchovies which smell like anchovies, feel like anchovies and, I understand, taste like anchovies." Or they'll conduct one of their impartial surveys on subjects which are no dizzier than those the ad people conduct their impartial surveys on. One of the recent impartial surveys was concerned with whether one barrel of monkeys was having more fun than another barrel of monkeys. I forget who won.

From there they plunge into a sort of continuing soap opera, "The Lives and Loves of Linda Lovely," which contains my favorite television actress, an empty-faced young lady who for no reason at all bursts into song or the Charleston but never, never utters a word of dialogue. Bob and Ray play all the parts in this soap opera—an explorer who has just returned from eight years in Africa where he was searching for a Dr. Murchison (He didn't find him), kindly old Dr. John who has been just a little too kindly to the explorer's wife, an idiot cousin who incessantly makes peanut butter sandwiches and currently owns a collection of 375 of them. The dialogue: "Sit down, John Wingate, private eye and good friend."

And, so it goes, at a dizzy pace, with Ray finally signing off with some such words as: "Friends, have I that distinguished gray look? If I have will you write Distinguished Gray Look, care of NBC." The format has not ripened altogether for television and, as I say, you better look at them four or five times before making up your mind.

Since Boston released them into the protective custody of NBC only a few months ago, this zany pair has come along awfully fast. They're now on air—radio or television—a total of 15 hours and 45 minutes a week. Heaven knows where it will all end, conceivably in the total collapse of Bob and Ray.

Or possibly the collapse of radio and television whose pomposities are their special target. They've spoofed about everything in the industry. Arthur Sturdley and his No Talent Scouts, for example. Bob plays Arthur who has 20 Hawaiian shirts and a change of ukelele for each one and Ray plays the No Talent, including basso profundos and bird imitators. Or Uncle Eugene who answers all questions whether you ask any or not. Or Mary McGoon (Ray again) who passes along wonderfully useless tips on home-making. Or Bosco, the sports announcer who has all the details but the score.

• — • — •

They have apparently absorbed all the cliches of radio and advertising and twist them out of shape just enough to make exquisite parodies of them. It's a very adult, unusual and Charles Addams-like style about them and ordinarily I'd predict that they would go far—except that they already have.

Radio And Television

Zanies From Boston

John Crosby

The special essence of Bob and Ray, whose last names (Elliott and Goulding, respectively) were apparently left up in Boston, is pretty hard to explain. From their radio program, for example, will occasionally spurt such cryptic messages as "Portions of this program were on microfilm."

On their opening television program, they appeared as a couple of disembodied heads floating over a candle. "Will the man or very large lady who has been making that ring of right-footed tracks in the snow, kindly call the Museum of Natural History?" said one of them. Probably scared the hell out of the children and certainly baffled a great many of the adult members of the television audience who had not received prior training on Bob and Ray on the radio.

They take you unawares, this pair of deadpan New Englanders, and they take some getting used to, especially on television. Come right down to it, Bob and Ray will have to get a little used to television which doesn't afford the flexibility of radio and which slows them down a little.

You find them sitting at a desk, exchanging non-sequiturs at which they're past masters, when a news ticker starts to tick away. Bob leaps up, grabs the tap, and exclaims: "Will the mother who left the little boy in a blue suit in the laundromat, please take him out? The colors are running and ruining the other tenants' clothes."

From there they go immediately into a commercial for Sturdley's anchovies "the only anchovies which smell like anchovies, feel like anchovies and, I understand, taste like anchovies." Or they'll conduct one of their impartial surveys on subjects which are no dizzier than those the ad people conduct their impartial surveys on. One of the recent impartial surveys was concerned with whether one barrel of monkeys was having more fun than another barrel of monkeys. I forget who won.

From there they plunge into a sort of continuing soap opera, "The Lives and Loves of Linda Lovely," which contains my favorite television actress, an empty-faced young lady who for no reason at all bursts into song or the Charleston but never, never utters a word of dialogue. Bob and Ray play all the parts in this soap opera—an explorer who has just returned from eight years in Africa where he was searching for a Dr. Murchison (He didn't find him), kindly old Dr. John who has been just a little too kindly to the explorer's wife, an idiot cousin who incessantly makes peanut butter sandwiches and currently owns a collection of 375 of them. The dialogue: "Sit down, John Wingate, private eye and good friend."

And, so it goes, at a dizzy pace, with Ray finally signing off with some such words as: "Friends, have I that distinguished gray look? If I have will you write Distinguished Gray Look, care of NBC." The format has not ripened altogether for television and, as I say, you better look at them four or five times before making up your mind.

Since Boston released them into the protective custody of NBC only a few months ago, this zany pair has come along awfully fast. They're now on air—radio or television—a total of 15 hours and 45 minutes a week. Heaven knows where it will all end, conceivably in the total collapse of Bob and Ray.

Or possibly the collapse of radio and television whose pomposities are their special target. They've spoofed about everything in the industry. Arthur Sturdley and his No Talent Scouts, for example. Bob plays Arthur who has 20 Hawaiian shirts and a change of ukelele for each one and Ray plays the No Talent, including basso profundos and bird imitators. Or Uncle Eugene who answers all questions whether you ask any or not. Or Mary McGoon (Ray again) who passes along wonderfully useless tips on homemaking. Or Bosco, the sports announcer who has all the details but the score.

They have apparently absorbed all the cliches of radio and advertising and twist them out of shape just enough to make exquisite parodies of them. It's a very adult, unusual and Charles Addams-like style about them and ordinarily I'd predict that they would go far—except that they already have.

Radio And Television

Zanies From Boston

John Crosby

The special essence of Bob and Ray, whose last names (Elliott and Goulding, respectively) were apparently left up in Boston, is pretty hard to explain. From their radio program, for example, will occasionally spurt such cryptic messages as "Portions of this program were on microfilm."

On their opening television program, they appeared as a couple of disembodied heads floating over a candle. "Will the man or very large lady who has been making that ring of right-footed tracks in the snow, kindly call the Museum of Natural History?" said one of them. Probably scared the hell out of the children and certainly baffled a great many of the adult members of the television audience who had not received prior training on Bob and Ray on the radio.

• — • — •

They take you unawares, this pair of deadpan New Englanders, and they take some getting used to, especially on television. Come right down to it, Bob and Ray will have to get a little used to television which doesn't afford the flexibility of radio and which slows them down a little.

You find them sitting at a desk, exchanging non-sequiturs at which they're past masters, when a news ticker starts to tick away. Bob leaps up, grabs the tap, and exclaims: "Will the mother who left the little boy in a blue suit in the laundromat, please take him out? The colors are running and ruining the other tenants' clothes."

From there they go immediately into a commercial for Sturdley's anchovies "the only anchovies which smell like anchovies, feel like anchovies and, I understand, taste like anchovies." Or they'll conduct one of their impartial surveys on subjects which are no dizzier than those the ad people conduct their impartial surveys on. One of the recent impartial surveys was concerned with whether one barrel of monkeys was having more fun than another barrel of monkeys. I forget who won.

From there they plunge into a sort of continuing soap opera, "The Lives and Loves of Linda Lovely," which contains my favorite television actress, an empty-faced young lady who for no reason at all bursts into song or the Charleston but never, never utters a word of dialogue. Bob and Ray play all the parts in this soap opera—an explorer who has just returned from eight years in Africa where he was searching for a Dr. Murchison (He didn't find him), kindly old Dr. John who has been just a little too kindly to the explorer's wife, an idiot cousin who incessantly makes peanut butter sandwiches and currently owns a collection of 375 of them. The dialogue: "Sit down, John Wingate, private eye and good friend."

And, so it goes, at a dizzy pace, with Ray finally signing off with some such words as: "Friends, have I that distinguished gray look? If I have will you write Distinguished Gray Look, care of NBC." The format has not ripened altogether for television and, as I say, you better look at them four or five times before making up your mind.

Since Boston released them into the protective custody of NBC only a few months ago, this zany pair has come along awfully fast. They're now on air—radio or television—a total of 15 hours and 45 minutes a week. Heaven knows where it will all end, conceivably in the total collapse of Bob and Ray.

Or possibly the collapse of radio and television whose pomposities are their special target. They've spoofed about everything in the industry. Arthur Sturdley and his No Talent Scouts, for example. Bob plays Arthur who has 20 Hawaiian shirts and a change of ukelele for each one and Ray plays the No Talent, including basso profundos and bird imitators. Or Uncle Eugene who answers all questions whether you ask any or not. Or Mary McGoon (Ray again) who passes along wonderfully useless tips on homemaking. Or Bosco, the sports announcer who has all the details but the score.

• — • — •

They have apparently absorbed all the cliches of radio and advertising and twist them out of shape just enough to make exquisite parodies of them. It's a very adult, unusual and Charles Addams-like style about them and ordinarily I'd predict that they would go far—except that they already have.

Yesterday's Answer

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

In Memoriam

In memory of my Mother, Mrs. Louise L. Sidaway, who departed this life nine years ago today, December 7, 1942.

I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were mine to give
I would give it, yes and more,
To see the face of my Dear One
Come smiling through the door.

Daughter, Geraldine

In Memoriam

In memory of my Mother, Mrs. Louise L. Sidaway, who departed this life nine years ago today, December 7, 1942.

I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were mine to give
I would give it, yes and more,
To see the face of my Dear One
Come smiling through the door.

Market Surge Is Strongest In More Than Four Months

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP) — In its strongest showing in more than four months, the stock market today surged ahead with the railroads in the lead.

After the market closed, the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington announced it would consider giving another freight rate increase to the railroads.

Canadian Pacific Railroad, which has big oil holdings, was the day's most active issue up 3½ at 35½. Northern Pacific was the second most active issue up 1⅝-5 69⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained $1.10 at $98.40. The industrial component of the average was up $1.20, rails $1.30, and utilities 10 cents.

Of the 15 most active issues, every one of which advanced, there were seven railroads. Following the two leaders were Pan American World Airways up ⅜ at 12¼, the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway 1¼ at 26¾, American Airlines ⅜ at 16½, and Montana-Dakota Utilities ¾ at 26.

Among other gainers were Santa Fe up 3 at 77½, Shell Oil 1½ at 68½, American Telephone ⅜ at 158, Phelps Dodge 1⅛ at 76⅜, American Cyanamid 2⅞ at 114½, International Paper 1¼ at 49, Bethlehem Steel 1⅛ at 51¼, General Motors ½ at 51⅜, U. S. Rubber 1½ at 72¼ and Radio Corp. ¼ at 24⅛.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Can your wife remain your sweetheart?

Answer: That depends on several factors, but one of the largest of them is your basic feeling about "moral obligations." For the difference between a wife and a sweetheart is that you are apt to feel it is your duty to love your wife while a sweetheart is someone whom you love because you want to. In so far as duty is associated in your mind with pleasurable feelings like security and the approval of your parents, you will be able to love your wife without mental reservations. But the more you grew up feeling that duty and pleasure are opposites, the more difficult it will be for you to feel romantic toward a person whom it is your duty to live.

Is modesty ever instinctive?

Answer: Quite the contrary. Natural instinct impels every child to admire himself unreservedly and to do all he can to induce others to admire him. It is not "lack of self-consciousness" that makes a small child love to parade himself undressed—it is "vanity" and the desire to attract attention. And as he grows older, he is no less eager to "show off" achievements such as walking, talking or building a block-tower. This natural exhibitionism must be gradually controlled, but be careful that in teaching your child to do this, you don't give him the impression that he "ought to be ashamed of himself," mentally or physically.

Can psychiatry be preventive?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Theodore A. Watters, Louisiana State University psychiatrist. Psychiatry is moving increasingly from the narrow, though important field of treating mental illness to that of promoting mental health by the improvement of conditions, especially in the home, that cause neurosis or psychosis, and of working to harmonize the medical treatment of the body with what is known of the mind's needs. With its understanding of the motives behind man's behavior, psychiatry can throw light on all human relations, from the way a baby should be weaned to the unconscious reasons which make people accept a dictator.

Market Surge Is Strongest In More Than Four Months

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP) — In its strongest showing in more than four months, the stock market today surged ahead with the railroads in the lead.

After the market closed, the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington announced it would consider giving another freight rate increase to the railroads.

Canadian Pacific Railroad, which has big oil holdings, was the day's most active issue up 3½ at 35½. Northern Pacific was the second most active issue up 1⅝-5 69⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained $1.10 at $98.40. The industrial component of the average was up $1.20, rails $1.30, and utilities 10 cents.

Of the 15 most active issues, every one of which advanced, there were seven railroads. Following the two leaders were Pan American World Airways up ⅜ at 12¼, the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway 1¼ at 26¾, American Airlines ⅜ at 16½, and Montana-Dakota Utilities ¾ at 26.

Among other gainers were Santa Fe up 3 at 77½, Shell Oil 1½ at 68½, American Telephone ⅝ at 158, Phelps Dodge 1⅛ at 76⅜, American Cyanamid 2⅞ at 114½, International Paper 1¼ at 49, Bethlehem Steel 1⅛ at 51¼, General Motors ½ at 51⅝, U. S. Rubber 1½ at 72¼ and Radio Corp. ¼ at 24⅛.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Can your wife remain your sweetheart?

Answer: That depends on several factors, but one of the largest of them is your basic feeling about "moral obligations." For the difference between a wife and a sweetheart is that you are apt to feel it is your duty to love your wife while a sweetheart is someone whom you love because you want to. In so far as duty is associated in your mind with pleasurable feelings like security and the approval of your parents, you will be able to love your wife without mental reservations. But the more you grew up feeling that duty and pleasure are opposites, the more difficult it will be for you to feel romantic toward a person whom it is your duty to live.

Is modesty ever instinctive?

Answer: Quite the contrary. Natural instinct impels every child to admire himself unreservedly and to do all he can to induce others to admire him. It is not "lack of self-consciousness" that makes a small child love to parade himself undressed—it is "vanity" and the desire to attract attention. And as he grows older, he is no less eager to "show off" achievements such as walking, talking or building a block-tower. This natural exhibitionism must be gradually controlled, but be careful that in teaching your child to do this, you don't give him the impression that he "ought to be ashamed of himself," mentally or physically.

Can psychiatry be preventive?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Theodore A. Watters, Louisiana State University psychiatrist. Psychiatry is moving increasingly from the narrow, though important field of treating mental illness to that of promoting mental health by the improvement of conditions, especially in the home, that cause neurosis or psychosis, and of working to harmonize the medical treatment of the body with what is known of the mind's needs. With its understanding of the motives behind man's behavior, psychiatry can throw light on all human relations, from the way a baby should be weaned to the unconscious reasons which make people accept a dictator.

Market Surge Is Strongest In More Than Four Months

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP) — In its strongest showing in more than four months, the stock market today surged ahead with the railroads in the lead.

After the market closed, the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington announced it would consider giving another freight rate increase to the railroads.

Canadian Pacific Railroad, which has big oil holdings, was the day's most active issue up 3½ at 35½. Northern Pacific was the second most active issue up 1⅝-5 69⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained $1.10 at $98.40. The industrial component of the average was up $1.20, rails $1.30, and utilities 10 cents.

Of the 15 most active issues, every one of which advanced, there were seven railroads. Following the two leaders were Pan American World Airways up ¾ at 12¼, the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway 1¼ at 26¾, American Airlines ⅜ at 16½, and Montana-Dakota Utilities ¾ at 26.

Among other gainers were Santa Fe up 3 at 77½, Shell Oil 1½ at 68½, American Telephone ⅜ at 158, Phelps Dodge 1⅛ at 76⅜, American Cyanamid 2⅞ at 114½, International Paper 1¼ at 49, Bethlehem Steel 1⅛ at 51¼, General Motors ½ at 51⅜, U. S. Rubber 1½ at 72¼ and Radio Corp. ¼ at 24⅛.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Can your wife remain your sweetheart?

Answer: That depends on several factors, but one of the largest of them is your basic feeling about "moral obligations." For the difference between a wife and a sweetheart is that you are apt to feel it is your duty to love your wife while a sweetheart is someone whom you love because you want to. In so far as duty is associated in your mind with pleasurable feelings like security and the approval of your parents, you will be able to love your wife without mental reservations. But the more you grew up feeling that duty and pleasure are opposites, the more difficult it will be for you to feel romantic toward a person whom it is your duty to live.

Is modesty ever instinctive?

Answer: Quite the contrary. Natural instinct impels every child to admire himself unreservedly and to do all he can to induce others to admire him. It is not "lack of self-consciousness" that makes a small child love to parade himself undressed—it is "vanity" and the desire to attract attention. And as he grows older, he is no less eager to "show off" achievements such as walking, talking or building a block-tower. This natural exhibitionism must be gradually controlled, but be careful that in teaching your child to do this, you don't give him the impression that he "ought to be ashamed of himself," mentally or physically.

Can psychiatry be preventive?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Theodore A. Watters, Louisiana State University psychiatrist. Psychiatry is moving increasingly from the narrow, though important field of treating mental illness to that of promoting mental health by the improvement of conditions, especially in the home, that cause neurosis or psychosis, and of working to harmonize the medical treatment of the body with what is known of the mind's needs. With its understanding of the motives behind man's behavior, psychiatry can throw light on all human relations, from the way a baby should be weaned to the unconscious reasons which make people accept a dictator.

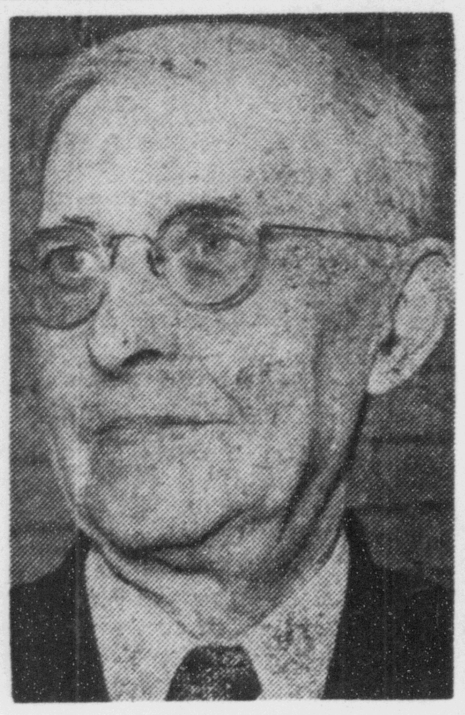
Area Residents Recall Pearl Harbor Attack Ten Years Ago Today

MRS. MADELYN E. BURNS

Mrs. Madelyn E. Burns, RNA, of 407 Valley Street and 623 Yale Avenue, Baltimore, vividly remembers December 7, 1941, ten years ago. At the time, she was on duty as chief nurse anesthetist in the Tripler Hospital, Honolulu, Oahu, just a few blocks from the famous Pearl Harbor bombing. Most of the casualties were taken to Tripler Hospital where nurses and doctors worked night and day for many days.

Mrs. Burns is now private anesthetist for a dental surgeon at the Dr. John Stang Dental Clinic in Baltimore. She was employed in Cumberland for several years as anesthetist to Dr. W. A. Gracie and later became Chief Nurse Anesthetist at the Memorial Hospital here for several years.

During her Army career she was stationed in numerous general hospitals including Washington, Philadelphia, Pa., Hot Springs, Ark., San Francisco, Cal., and three and a half years over seas.



LUTHER L. HUTTER

"We all got very excited when we heard about the attack on Pearl Harbor, but frankly I don't remember exactly what I did when I first heard about it."

These were the recollections of Luther L. Hutter, who has been operating a grocery store at Holland Street and Columbia Avenue for 30 years.

Before long, he remembered, three of his four sons were in service and all three served in Europe. One was wounded by shrapnel at the Rhone River. Another had been helping him run the store. Hutter and his wife managed to operate the business during the war years despite scarcities.

"Those who got steak one week had to be satisfied with roast the next," Hutter said about those war years." Whenever we got some scarce items we just put them in bags and divided them up among our regular customers," he added.

JOHN ROY BLACKWELL

John Roy Blackwell, son of Mrs. Flora Blackwell, Braddock Road, remembers the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was there. At least he was right next door to the harbor, being on duty at Hickam Field during the sneak attack.

The young man remembers that for three days after the attack, all he had to wear was a pair of shorts, since all his personal possessions had been destroyed when his and other barracks were demolished and burned.

He was one of the first six persons shipped back to the U. S. from Pearl Harbor. On the vessel enroute to the U. S., Blackwell was commended for saving the life of a sailor who became entangled with the anchor chain and was being pulled overboard.

Blackwell recently returned to the U. S. from Korea where he commanded a battalion which received the presidential citation. Blackwell is now stationed at LaCarne, Ohio, as a major and chief of the Erie Ordnance there.

MRS. RAY DEREMER

"It seems odd, but what we all thought about most was whether the men in the family would be drafted. It didn't seem that the war would be a long one. We didn't know Pearl Harbor meant a full-scale World War."

That's how Mrs. Anna Deremer, an interviewer in the U. S. Employment Service office, felt when she heard the news of the Japanese attack on the Pearl Harbor naval base on December 7, 1941.

"We'd just come back from church. We were stunned when we heard the news on the radio. I wasn't married then, so my biggest concern was whether my brothers would be drafted. One was, and so was my boy friend (now her husband), but they both came back safely."

"It took a little longer for the bigger implications of the attack to sink in."

Mrs. Deremer and her husband, a Liberty Trust Company employe, live at 443 Bond Street.

LT. W. E. O'HARA

State Police Lt. W. E. O'Hara, who commands LaVale Barracks here, said he remembers the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor very well. "I was in a lunch room in Ridgeville, Md., where I had been sent on a special assignment as a state trooper. The news came over the radio and I almost choked on my coffee."

After calling his home at Frederick, where his folks had also received the report, O'Hara said headquarters notified him by radio with special orders to tell all servicemen to report to their stations at once.

For several hours State Police alerted servicemen and then settled down to helping round out civilian defense programs and tightening internal security controls. Many of the younger men entered military service, he recalled and the state police force had a shortage of men for sometime.

Lt. O'Hara has been in Cumberland five years. He lives in LaVale with his wife, two daughters and one son.

MRS KENNETH MEISE

"I can never forget the day. My husband and I were at our home in Johnstown, Pa., listening to the radio," Mrs. Kenneth Meise, 452 Goethe Street, stenographer for Local 453 Teamsters Union (AFL) recalled. "The news of the Pearl Harbor attack came about 2 p. m. I thought it was a fake, a "Man from Mars' broadcast.

"The more I thought about it the more scared I became. After a few minutes I ran downstairs and told one of our neighbors that the Japs had attacked Pearl Harbor.

"It was about 10 minutes before I was able to accept the report as a fact and not an Orson Wells broadcast.

"The thing that stuck in my mind was, that we had been selling scrap iron to Japan and that they would soon be shooting it back to us in shells.

"Ken said, "They'll lick Japan in three weeks", but it didn't work out that way."

M/SGT. VIRGIL P. BURNS

Local recruiter for the United States Army, M/Sgt. Virgil P. Burns has good reason to remember the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, 10 years ago today. He was in Manila, Philippine Islands, when the Japs hit Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Sgt. Burns recalls that he was on an assignment in another part of Luzon and did not learn of the attack until the next day. It cost him a drink, because one of his buddies greeted him, upon his return, with, I'll bet you a drink the United States is at war." That evening, after buying his friend a drink, the Japs hit the Philippines. Jap bombers swarmed over the area.

The following weeks were a nightmare and Sgt. Burns was taken prisoner with the fall of Corregidor May 6, 1942. He was led through the infamous "march of death" and survived the "cattle boat" trip from the Philippines when a Navy plane mistakenly attacked the ship and it had to be abandoned. Sgt. Burns was liberated September 7, 1945.

PATRICK J. CARROLL

"I was shocked, but not exactly surprised," said Patrick J. Carroll, special representative of the U. S. Employment Service here. "We heard the news on the radio at about dinnertime. 'Hell's broken loose', I told my wife. 'There'll be plenty of work for the old men now.'"

Carroll, then head of the local office of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, saw his words borne out in the next few weeks.

All WPA and similar jobs—including the Savage River Dam—were brought to an abrupt halt. The federal government took over his department, and Carroll began looking around for unemployed men eligible for war work.

"But for some reason," he says, "I never did think it'd be a six-month war. The thing that worried me most then—as now—was that Russia would beat the Nazis and that we'd have to fight both of them."

New Industry Will Locate In Lonaconing; Production Slated To Start In February

Business Men's Group, Baltimore Firm Close Deal

50 Or More People Will Be Employed

BY F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT

Lonaconing is getting a new industry.

The Lonaconing Business Men's Association last night closed a deal to have a new industry opened in their town.

The Tach-Fast Manufacturing Company of Baltimore, owned by Samuel Sipe of that city, has acquired the old cutting plant building of the Lonaconing Glass Works, and expects to begin moving presses and machinery into the place about January 15. Production will start about February 15.

A meeting was held last night in the Lonaconing Veterans of Foreign Wars post home with an industrial location committee of the Lonaconing Business Men and John Wichert, of the Tach-Fast Company.

Six Key Men Coming

Wichert, production manager of the company, said new machinery will be delivered here and six key men from the company's organization will arrive shortly to set up and start production.

He assured the local group that at least 20 Lonaconing residents will be employed as soon as production can start and in a few months the number will increase to 50 or more.

The committee which visited the Baltimore plant and carried on negotiations for Lonaconing includes Ervin Lewis, manager of the Potomac Edison Company office; Dr. Paul Frey, physician; John Eichhorn, funeral director; Edward McPartland, postmaster; Arthur G. Phillips, florist; and Thomas Connor, hardware merchant.

Representatives at the meeting included business people and residents from Barton, Midland and Lonaconing, and officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Potomac Edison Company and Western Maryland Railway.

Just The Beginning

A spokesman for the group said the town agreed to make tax concessions to the company and to offer such other cooperation as necessary. The company did not ask for financial help and Wichert and Sipe told the group that there are many small industries in Baltimore and other cities which, if properly encouraged and invited, would move to smaller communities, especially where there is a surplus of good, loyal and efficient labor.

The group, encouraged with the success of this effort, said, "this is just the beginning."

The plant to be occupied is a brick and frame structure providing 8,400 square feet of floor space. There is room for future expansion. The building was used for a time by the NYA and more recently for truck and other storage. It is owned by Benjamin Evans.

Makes Acoustical Supplies

The location of this new plant in Lonaconing will help to provide employment for some of the many idle residents there. With the shut down

Hi-Y Meeting Opens Today At Baltimore

Local Students Plan To Attend Sessions

More than 15 members of the Fort Hill and Allegany Hi-Y Clubs plan to attend the annual Hi-Y Conference at Johns Hopkins University this weekend.

The delegates will travel by bus and the conference, being held today, tomorrow and Sunday will convene at Lavering Hall, the YMCA Building of the campus.

"Giving My Best" has been selected as the theme for the 1951 event. The subjects for group discussion include: Giving My Best "To My Church;" "To Living With Others," "To Facing the Crisis in Morals," and "To Christian Living". Discussion groups will be led by guest leaders, assisted by boy delegates to the conference.

Cumberland boys have been appointed to the conference organization during the past week. It was recently announced that Bruce Price will serve on the Conference Council, James Mulligan will work with the Evaluation Committee and Al Wilson wil be a member of the news committee. Raph L. Lewis, local 'Y' Program Secretary will serve as advisor to the news committee who will issue the annual conference newspaper and report.

Also included on the program for the Saturday evening entertainment will be a production of the "Hopkins Parade of Stars" featuring Miss Maryland 1951. Conference speakers will include W. Norris Weis of the Baltimore 'Y' Staff who will speak at the opening session today and Rev. Norman Ford of the Wilmington 'Y' Staff who will direct the Sunday Devotional services. George Campbell well known 'Y' Song Leader of Cincinnati, Ohio will direct the conference music.

The conference, held on the campus of American University last year, will close with a devotional service on Sunday morning.

Unit Rifle Team Coach Is Named

Lt. William E. Shuck has been named coach of C Company, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard, rifle team in the Governors Trophy matches for 1951 and 1952, according to Forst Lt. John R. Jackle, commanding officer of C Company.

The C Company unit rifle team has scheduled its first shooting match with Hagerstown's B. Company and will be held at the State Armory here December 8.

Making up the local firers for C Company are Pfc. Bernard L. McCarty, Pvt. William J. Harbaugh, Pfc. Robert M. Edwards, Pfc. Clarence Jones, Sfc. Norris B. Jones and Pfc. Frank C. Cantone, Jr.

Lt. Shuck said that his team is interested in competing with other NRA clubs in the Tri-State area. Anyone interested in small bore marksmanship may contact him at the Armory on Wednesday or Thursday nights or at home by telephoning 2838-W, he said

Work On City Registration On Last Lap

Only 166 New Voters Are Placed On Books

Since September 24, when the new system was placed in operation, only 166 persons have registered and some of them represent voters whose names were stricken off the books for failure to vote in the past five years.

Since the primary election will be held on March 4 and the general city election on March 18, books will be closed from February 13 to March 26.

But most of 6,791 voters whose names were stricken off the books for failure to vote are still not accounted for.

The registration staff, headed by Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, last week began work on placing the last group of voters in the permanent record system.

Since Ward 6, biggest precinct in the city, has 3,427 voters on record, the task will not be completed for several weeks.

Ullery said the system should be completed by January 15 at the latest, just about the time when the registration rush will begin.

A number of mistakes in the old system are being discovered, Ullery said, including voters who are registered in more than one ward. Immediate steps are taken to correct such errors.

"Now, if I can just collect all the money Mrs. MacTight owes me for their papers, I can show you a good time tonight."

Suit Argument Today To End October Term

Frostburg Man Seeks Damages

The last Allegany County Circuit Court jury for the 10-week long October term will listen to final arguments and receive instructions today in a $20,000 civil suit which ends the docket.

Ralph E. Hutzell, Mt. Savage, defendant in the action, took the stand late yesterday afternoon, the last of 12 witnesses heard during the first day of the trial. Both sides rested their cases with his testimony.

The Mt. Savage man is being sued by Paul Slingloff of Frostburg, who contends he sustained a fractured right leg and other injuries when struck by Htuzell's car in Mt. Savage last January.

Driveway Blocked

Hutzell, in recalling events that occurred on that January night, denied any knowledge that his car had struck Slingloff or anyone else. He did recall having turned his car around after finding a driveway blocked at a service station in the lower end of Mt. Savage. He said that as he backed the car, four men jumped out of the other vehicle and came back toward him, two on each side.

"Clement Walsh, who was in the car with me, and I , figured that they wanted to start trouble. We rolled up the windows and I backed the car against a retaining wall in hurrying to get away. One of the men smashed the window on my side of the car but we didn't stop. I had never seen any of the men before," Hutzell concluded. Walsh, who preceded Hutzell to the stand, gave a similar account.

Associate Judge George Henderson is presiding at the trial. Paul M. Fletcher is attorney for Slingloff and William A. Gunter represents Hutzell. Anthony J. Dressman is foreman of the jury, which will reconvene at 9:15 a. m. today.

Others Settled

Two other suits, one docketed for yesterday and the other for today, were settled out of court.

The case of Mrs. Lucinda Thompson, RFD 5, McMullen Highway, who asked $10,000 damages from Donald McGill ,of Vicke Drive, was settled out of court.

Edward J. Ryan was attorney for Mrs. Thompson. The plaintiff contended that her husband contracted with McGill to repair their house on McMullen Highway. She broke her right ankle in a fall from

Pigeons Become Nuisance Here

The City Health Department reported yesterday that complaints that pigeons are becoming a serious nuisance have been coming in from all sections of the city.

Just how many stray pigeons there are can only be estimated, but officials said the number must exceed several thousand.

Walter E. "Pat" Kline, city sanitarian, warned that persons who raise pigeons and allow them at large violate a city ordinance and will be prosecuted.

Kline said efforts will be made to trap the strays, a method which has proved to be the most practical way to control the excess pigeon population.

DR. M. E. B. OWENS

Dr. M.E.B. Owens Dies In Richmond; Ill Three Years

Was Well Known Family Physician

Dr. Maurice Eubanks Broadas Owens, family physician to many South End families, died yesterday at the home of a son, Dr. M. E. B. Owens, Jr., in Richmond, Va. He was 67.

A native of Cross Hill, S. C., he was graduated in 1912 from the University of Maryland College of Medicine. Upon graduation, he took the University Medical Prize, a gold medal.

After practicing for some time in Baltimore and Washington, Dr. Owens came to Cumberland to launch a medical career which was to last for more than three decades.

During that time, he became well known throughout the Tri-State area for his charitable efforts to help needy families. He delivered many of the first babies of each New Year.

On May 12, 1949 he announced his retirement, ending 32 years of practice in Cumberland. For much of the time since his retirement, his illness confined him to his home at 133 Virginia Avenue.

He was a member of the Allegany County Medical Society and was a past officer of Laurens Lodge 260, A. F. and A. M., in Laurens, S. C.

He is survived, besides his son, by a daughter, Dr. Maysville Owens Page, Richmond; two other sons, Charles F. and Paul C. Owens, both at home; two brothers, Frank, Landrun, S. C., and Reed, Cross Hill, S. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Boyce, Cross Hill, and Mrs. Rhidona Johnson, Orangeburg, S. C., and five grandchildren.

The body probably will be brought to Cumberland today. The family has requested that flowers be omitted.

4600 Employes Of Celanese To Share In Distribution Of $136,000 Back Wages

Company Hopes To Issue Checks Next Monday

Checks for back pay totaling $136,000 will be distributed on Monday to the hourly-paid employes of the Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation of America, it was announced by H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager.

On August 8, 1951, as a result of contract negotiations with Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, the company granted a wage increase of ten cents per hour. Regulations of the Wage Stabilization Board permitted the payment of an immediate increase of four cents per hour, with the remaining six cents subject to approval by the board.

Official notice of approval to increase wages six cents per hour retroactive to August 8 was received by the Company yesterday.

The Company said it is making every effort to prepare the back-pay checks in order that they can be distributed with the regular pay checks on Monday. Arrangements are being made to mail checks to the homes of employes who are on furlough.

State Jaycee Meeting Set

Four members of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce expect to attend a meeting of the State Jaycee's at Frederick tomorrow and Sunday.

They are: Henry A. Mackey, president of the local chapter, Arthur C. Morgan, state director, Richard Sell and Arthur C. Crum.

Members of the nine local chapters of the state are expected to attend the two-day session, Joseph D. Baker, II, of Frederick will preside.

Highlighting the meeting will be a banquet tomorrow at 6 p. m. at the Francis Scott Key Hotel. A prominent speaker will address the group. Business sessions will be held tomorrow afternoon and Sunday morning. The executive and policy committees will meet tomorrow morning before general sessions begin.

Weather

Weather news in recent weeks has become just about as confusing as news on the international scene. The calendar says December, but it seemed yesterday that April was here. The official thermometer zoomed as high as 68 degrees, but failed to set a record, since it's been as high as 73 on December 6. Topcoats were being carried rather than worn by many shoppers yesterday. and two large toy balloons in a store window burst when the warm rays of the sun caused the air inside them to expand too rapidly. The low was 41, humidity was 53 per cent.

Area Industrial Progress Will Be Discussed

Chemical Society To Install Officers

Richard Sitzler, technical superintendent of the Amcelle plant, will discuss, "Industrial Progress In Western Maryland Section, American Chemical Society, tonight.

The speech, to be presented at a meeting in Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 8 p. m., will mark the final event in the Diamond Jubilee celebration of the Western Maryland society.

Service clubs of this area have been invited to attend.

Clarence Heiserman, chairman, will be in charge of the meeting.

Newly elected officers will also be installed tonight. They are: Walter Edwards, LaVale, assistant group leader at the Celanese plant, chairman; Gilbert E. Moos, chairman elect; Dr. Rudolph Steinberger, Cresaptown, ABL chemist, secretary; Howard Irwin, LaVale, chemical engineer at the Celanese plant, treasurer, and Chester Abramson, LaVale, group leader at Celanese, local section councilor.

Appeals Court Upholds Award

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 6 (AP) — The Court of Appeals today upheld a $30,000 award to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie M. Wright from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and Howard Tasker, granted in Washington County Circuit Court as the result of an accident at Oakland on October 23, 1948.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury and Judge William L. Henderson dissented in the 3-2 Appeals Court decision. They said the jury should have been told the train's speed was was not the primary cause of the accident.

New Guard Rooms Near Completion

Carpenters are now adding finishing touches to the new day room and offices in the National Guard Armory in Frostburg, according to Captain Gerald E. Reeves, commanding officer of Heavy Weapons Company, First Battalion.

The unit will move all equipment into the new rooms over the week-end. Tuesday's drill will be held in the new quarters, but Reeves said the formal opening will not take place until early 1952.

Captain Reeves also announced the enlistment of Robert O. Nelson of Eckhart. There are still openings for youths under 18½ in the unit's machine gun and recoilless rifle sections.

Probe Begins In Slugging Of Grocer

Charles Bohn Remains In Serious Condition

The State's Attorney of Garrett County, Dwight Stover, has started an investigation into the mysterious robbery and slugging of a Frederick groceryman which allegedly occured in Oakland early Monday morning.

The victim was identified yesterday by attaches of University Hospital, Baltimore, as Charles Bohn, 33, who is in a serious condition there suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. He was in Garrett County with his brother, Donald Bohn, and a companion, Meredith Blank, on a deer hunting trip when the incident occurred.

Stover said the first report he had heard of the incident was last night when contacted by the Cumberland News. Sheriff Paul Fisher said he had no report of the matter and was not notified by attaches of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where Bohn was reported to have been taken following the incident.

State Police Probe

Lt. William E. O'Hara of the Maryland State Police said last night the first report of the incident he had heard was yesterday morning when Donald Bohn came to Cumberland from Frederick to learn if any more had been learned by police. Sam Conrad and Trooper Jack Browning have been assigned to the investigation.

According to Donald Bohn, his brother went into Oakland early Monday morning to a restaurant. Blank said the owner of the restaurant found Bohn in the street shortly after he had left the place. Bohn's companions said he had between $40 and $50 when he left the cabin at Deep Creek Lake where the trio were staying but had no money when found on the street.

Bohn's companion's also quoted him as saying someone hit him, but that he couldn't remember anything else about the incident. Bohn reportedly received treatment at Garrett Memorial Hospital in Oakland Monday, but later went to Baltimore for af urther examination on the advice of a physician there.

Is Conscious

Bohn is conscious but he has not been able to give doctors a coherent story of exactly where or how he was injured.

A spokesman at Garrett County Memorial Hospital said Bohn first

Lawyers Make New Trial Move

Attorneys for the Western Maryland Railway yesterday filed motions for a new trial and judgment for the railway as an aftermath of the trial which ended Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Hollis Lee Howe, Tri-Towns taxicab owner, Wednesday was awarded a $1,018 verdict by a jury which deliberated the case about an hour and a half.

Howe, through Attorney Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., sued the railway for $2,500 after one of the man's cabs was wrecked when struck by a Western Maryland locomotive at the Tooseytown Crossing at Beryl, W. Va. last January 10.

The motions were filed by Walter C. Capper, this city, and Gene J. Gunning, Baltimore, who represented Western Maryland Railway in the trial.

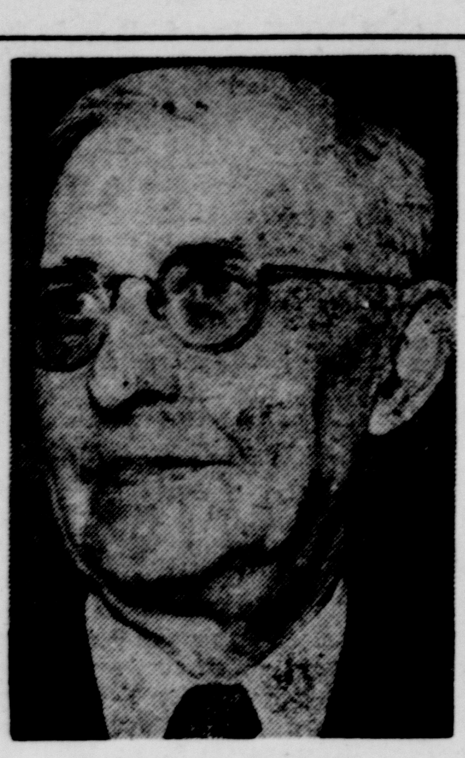
Area Residents Recall Pearl Harbor Attack Ten Years Ago Today

MRS. MADELYN E. BURNS

Mrs. Madelyn E. Burns, RNA, of 407 Valley Street and 623 Yale Avenue, Baltimore, vividly remembers December 7, 1941, ten years ago. At the time, she was on duty as chief nurse anesthetist in the Tripler Hospital, Honolulu, Oahu, just a few blocks from the famous Pearl Harbor bombing. Most of the casualties were taken to Tripler Hospital where nurses and doctors worked night and day for many days.

Mrs. Burns is now private anesthetist for a dental surgeon at the Dr. John Stang Dental Clinic in Baltimore. She was employed in Cumberland for several years as anesthetist to Dr. W. A. Gracie and later became Chief Nurse Anesthetist at the Memorial Hospital here for several years.

During her Army career she was stationed in numerous general hospitals including Washington, Philadelphia, Pa., Hot Springs, Ark., San Francisco, Cal., and three and a half years over seas.



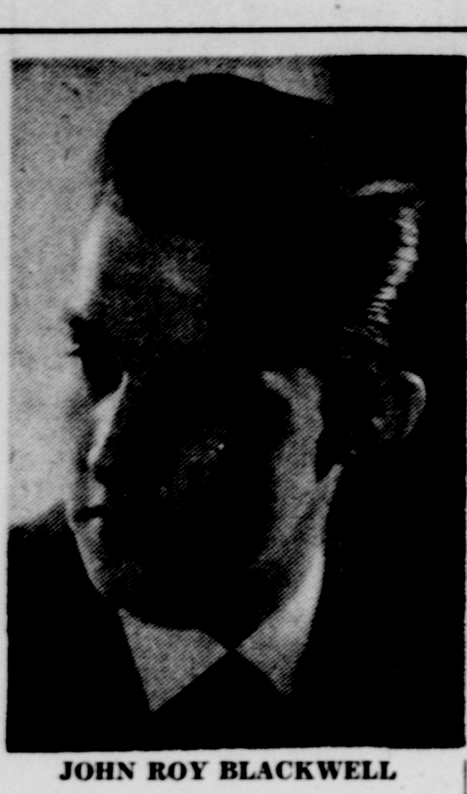
LUTHER L. HUTTER

"We all got very excited when we heard about the attack on Pearl Harbor, but frankly I don't remember exactly what I did when I first heard about it."

These were the recollections of Luther L. Hutter, who has been operating a grocery store at Holland Street and Columbia Avenue for 30 years.

Before long, he remembered, three of his four sons were in service and all three served in Europe. One was wounded by shrapnel at the Rhone River. Another had been helping him run the store. Hutter and his wife managed to operate the business during the war years despite scarcities.

"Those who got steak one week had to be satisfied with roast the next," Hutter said about those war years." Whenever we got some scarce items we just put them in bags and divided them up among our regular customers," he added.



JOHN ROY BLACKWELL

John Roy Blackwell, son of Mrs. Flora Blackwell, Braddock Road, remembers the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was there. At least he was right next door to the harbor, being on duty at Hickam Field during the sneak attack.

The young man remembers that for three days after the attack, all he had to wear was a pair of shorts, since all his personal possessions had been destroyed when his and other barracks were demolished and burned.

He was one of the first six persons shipped back to the U. S. from Pearl Harbor. On the vessel enroute to the U. S., Blackwell was commended for saving the life of a sailor who became entangled with the anchor chain and was being pulled overboard.

Blackwell recently returned to the U. S. from Korea where he commanded a battalion which received the presidential citation. Blackwell is now stationed at LaCarne, Ohio, as a major and chief of the Erie Ordnance there.

MRS. RAY DEREMER

"It seems odd, but what we all thought about most was whether the men in the family would be drafted. It didn't seem that the war would be a long one. We didn't know Pearl Harbor meant a full-scale World War."

That's how Mrs. Anna Deremer, an interviewer in the U. S. Employment Service office, felt when she heard the news of the Japanese attack on the Pearl Harbor naval base on December 7, 1941.

"We'd just come back from church. We were stunned when we heard the news on the radio. I wasn't married then, so my biggest concern was whether my brothers would be drafted. One was, and so was my boy friend (now her husband), but they both came back safely."

"It took a little longer for the bigger implications of the attack to sink in."

Mrs. Deremer and her husband, a Liberty Trust Company employe, live at 443 Bond Street.

LT. W. E. O'HARA

State Police Lt. W. E. O'Hara, who commands LaVale Barracks here, said he remembers the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor very well. "I was in a lunch room in Ridgeville, Md., where I had been sent on a special assignment as a state trooper. The news came over the radio and I almost choked on my coffee."

After calling his home at Frederick, where his folks had also received the report, O'Hara said headquarters notified him by radio with special orders to tell all servicemen to report to their stations at once.

For several hours State Police alerted servicemen and then settled down to helping round out civilian defense programs and tightening internal security controls. Many of the younger men entered military service, he recalled and the state police force had a shortage of men for sometime.

Lt. O'Hara has been in Cumberland five years. He lives in LaVale with his wife, two daughters and one son.

MRS KENNETH MEISE

"I can never forget the day. My husband and I were at our home in Johnstown, Pa., listening to the radio," Mrs. Kenneth Meise, 452 Goethe Street, stenographer for Local 453 Teamsters Union (AFL) recalled. "The news of the Pearl Harbor attack came about 2 p. m. I thought it was a fake, a "Man from Mars' broadcast.

"The more I thought about it the more scared I became. After a few minutes I ran downstairs and told one of our neighbors that the Japs had attacked Pearl Harbor.

"The thing that stuck in my mind was that we had been selling scrap iron to Japan and that they would soon be shooting it back to us in shells.

"Ken said, "They'll lick Japan in three weeks", but it didn't work out that way."

M/SGT. VIRGIL P. BURNS

Local recruiter for the United States Army, M/Sgt. Virgil P. Burns has good reason to remember the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, 10 years ago today. He was in Manila, Philippine Islands, when the Japs hit Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Sgt. Burns recalls that he was on an assignment in another part of Luzon and did not learn of the attack until the next day. It cost him a drink, because one of his buddies greeted him, upon his return, with, I'll bet you a drink the United States is at war." That evening, after buying his friend a drink, the Japs hit the Philippines. Jap bombers swarmed over the area.

The following weeks were a nightmare and Sgt. Burns was taken prisoner with the fall of Corregidor May 6, 1942. He was led through the infamous "march of death" and survived the "cattle boat" trip from the Philippines when a Navy plane mistakenly attacked the ship and it had to be abandoned. Sgt. Burns was liberated September 7, 1945.

"I was shocked, but not exactly surprised," said Patrick J. Carroll, special representative of the U. S. Employment Service here. "We heard the news on the radio at about dinnertime. 'Hell's broken loose', I told my wife. 'There'll be plenty of work for the old men now.'"

Carroll, then head of the local office of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, saw his words borne out in the next few weeks.

All WPA and similar jobs—including the Savage River Dam—were brought to an abrupt halt. The federal government took over his department, and Carroll began looking around for unemployed men eligible for war work.

"But for some reason," he says, "I never did think it'd be a six-month war. The thing that worried me most then—as now—was that Russia would beat the Nazis and that we'd have to fight both of them."

Lonaconing is getting a new industry.

The Lonaconing Business Men's Association last night closed a deal to have a new industry opened in their town.

Hi-Y Meeting Opens Today At Baltimore

Local Students Plan To Attend Sessions

More than 15 members of the Fort Hill and Allegany Hi-Y Clubs plan to attend the annual Hi-Y Conference at Johns Hopkins University this weekend.

The delegates will travel by bus and the conference, being held today, tomorrow and Sunday will convene at Lavering Hall, the YMCA Building of the campus.

"Giving My Best" has been selected as the theme for the 1951 event. The subjects for group discussion include: Giving My Best "To My Church;" "To Living With Others," "To Facing the Crisis in Morals," and "To Christian Living". Discussion groups will be led by guest leaders, assisted by boy delegates to the conference.

Cumberland boys have been appointed to the conference organization during the past week. It was recently announced that Bruce Price will serve on the Conference Council, James Mulligan will work with the Evaluation Committee and Al Wilson wil be a member of the news committee. Raph L. Lewis, local 'Y' Program Secretary will serve as advisor to the news committee who will issue the annual conference newspaper and report.

Also included on the program for the Saturday evening entertainment will be a production of the "Hopkins Parade of Stars" featuring Miss Maryland 1951. Conference speakers will include W. Norris Weis of the Baltimore 'Y' Staff who will speak at the opening session today and Rev. Norman Ford of the Wilmington 'Y' Staff who will direct the Sunday Devotional services. George Campbell well known 'Y' Song Leader of Cincinnati, Ohio will direct the conference music.

The conference, held on the campus of American University last year, will close with a devotional service on Sunday morning.

Unit Rifle Team Coach Is Named

Lt. William E. Shuck has been named coach of C Company, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard, rifle team in the Governors Trophy matches for 1951 and 1952, according to Forst Lt. John R. Jackle, commanding officer of C Company.

The C Company unit rifle team has scheduled its first shooting match with Hagerstown's B. Company and will be held at the State Armory here December 8.

Making up the local firers for C Company are Pfc. Bernard L. McCarty, Pvt. William J. Harbaugh, Pfc. Robert M. Edwards, Pfc. Clarence Jones, Sfc. Norris B. Jones and Pfc. Frank C. Cantone, Jr.

Lt. Shuck said that his team is interested in competing with other NRA clubs in the Tri-State area. Anyone interested in small bore marksmanship may contact him at the Armory on Wednesday or Thursday nights or at home by telephoning 2838-W, he said

Work On City Registration On Last Lap

Only 166 New Voters Are Placed On Books

Registration of voters is still lagging as work on Cumberland's continuous registration is on its last lap.

Since September 24, when the new system was placed in operation, only 166 persons have registered and some of them represent voters whose names were stricken off the books for failure to vote in the past five years.

Since the primary election will be held on March 4 and the general city election on March 18, books will be closed from February 13 to March 26.

The addition of the 166 new names to the books brings the number registered to the 14,788 mark early this week.

But most of 6,791 voters whose names were stricken off the books for failure to vote are still not accounted for.

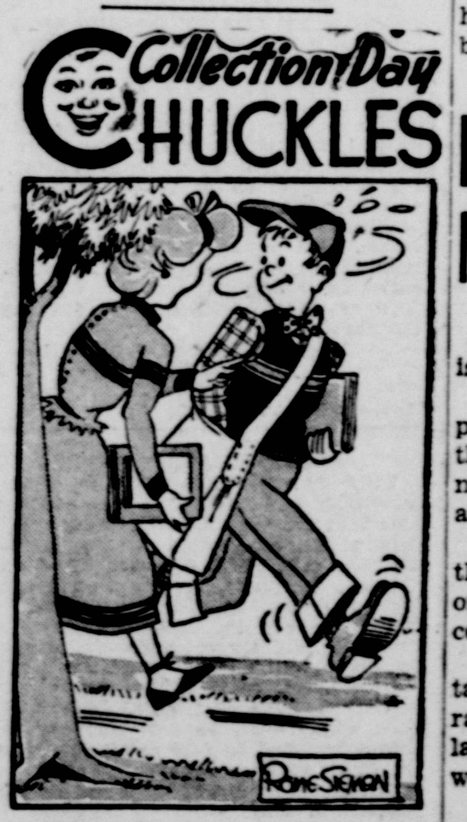
The registration staff, headed by Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, last week began work on placing the last group of voters in the permanent record system.

Since Ward 6, biggest precinct in the city, has 3,427 voters on record, the task will not be completed for several weeks.

Ullery said the system should be completed by January 15 at the latest, just about the time when the registration rush will begin.

A number of mistakes in the old system are being discovered, Ullery said, including voters who are registered in more than one ward. Immediate steps are taken to correct such errors.

Voters may register at the Cumberland Registration Office in the basement of City Hall Monday through Fridays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., including the lunch hour.



"Now, if I can just collect all the money Mrs. MacTight owes me for their papers, I can show you a good time tonight."

Suit Argument Today To End October Term

Frostburg Man Seeks Damages

The last Allegany County Circuit Court jury for the 10-week long October term will listen to final arguments and receive instructions today in a $20,000 civil suit which ends the docket.

Ralph E. Hutzell, Mt. Savage, defendant in the action, took the stand late yesterday afternoon, the last of 12 witnesses heard during the first day of the trial. Both sides rested their cases with his testimony.

The Mt. Savage man is being sued by Paul Slingloff of Frostburg, who contends he sustained a fractured right leg and other injuries when struck by Htuzell's car in Mt. Savage last January.

Driveway Blocked

Hutzell, in recalling events that occurred on that January night, denied any knowledge that his car had struck Slingloff or anyone else. He did recall having turned his car around after finding a driveway blocked at a service station in the lower end of Mt. Savage. He said that as he backed the car, four men jumped out of the other vehicle and came back toward him, two on each side.

"Clement Walsh, who was in the car with me, and I, figured that they wanted to start trouble. We rolled up the windows and I backed the car against a retaining wall in hurrying to get away. One of the men smashed the window on my side of the car but we didn't stop. I had never seen any of the men before," Hutzell concluded. Walsh, who preceded Hutzell to the stand, gave a similar account.

Associate Judge George Henderson is presiding at the trial. Paul M. Fletcher is attorney for Slingloff and William A. Gunter represents Hutzell. Anthony J. Dressman is foreman of the jury, which will reconvene at 9:15 a. m. today.

Others Settled

Two other suits, one docketed for yesterday and the other for today, were settled out of court.

The case of Mrs. Lucinda Thompson, RFD 5, McMullen Highway, who asked $10,000 damages from Donald McGill, of Vicke Drive, was settled out of court.

Pigeons Become Nuisance Here

Cumberland's pigeon population is getting out of hand.

The City Health Department reported yesterday that complaints that pigeons are becoming a serious nuisance have been coming in from all sections of the city.

Just how many stray pigeons there are can only be estimated, but officials said the number must exceed several thousand.

Walter E. "Pat" Kline, city sanitarian, warned that persons who raise pigeons and allow them at large violate a city ordinance and will be prosecuted.

Kline said efforts will be made to trap the strays, a method which has proved to be the most practical way to control the excess pigeon population.

DR. M. E. B. OWENS

Dr. M.E.B. Owens Dies In Richmond; Ill Three Years

Was Well Known Family Physician

Dr. Maurice Eubanks Broadas Owens, family physician to many South End families, died yesterday at the home of a son, Dr. M. E. B. Owens, Jr., in Richmond, Va. He was 67.

His death followed a lingering illness which lasted three years.

A native of Cross Hill, S. C., he was graduated in 1912 from the University of Maryland College of Medicine. Upon graduation, he took the University Medical Prize, a gold medal.

After practicing for some time in Baltimore and Washington, Dr. Owens came to Cumberland to launch a medical career which was to last for more than three decades.

During that time, he became well known throughout the Tri-State area for his charitable efforts to help needy families. He delivered many of the first babies of each New Year.

On May 12, 1949 he announced his retirement, ending 32 years of practice in Cumberland. For much of the time since his retirement, his illness confined him to his home at 133 Virginia Avenue.

He was a member of the Allegany County Medical Society and was a past officer of Laurens Lodge 260, A. F. and A. M., in Laurens, S. C.

He is survived, besides his son, by a daughter, Dr. Maysville Owens Page, Richmond; two other sons, Charles F. and Paul C. Owens, both at home; two brothers, Frank, Landrun, S. C., and Reed, Cross Hill, S. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Boyce, Cross Hill, and Mrs. Rhidona Johnson, Orangeburg, S. C., and five grandchildren.

The body probably will be brought to Cumberland today. The family has requested that flowers be omitted.

Company Hopes To Issue Checks Next Monday

Checks for back pay totaling $136,000 will be distributed on Monday to the hourly-paid employes of the Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation of America, it was announced by H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager.

On August 8, 1951, as a result of contract negotiations with Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, the company granted a wage increase of ten cents per hour. Regulations of the Wage Stabilization Board permitted the payment of an immediate increase of four cents per hour, with the remaining six cents subject to approval by the board.

Official notice of approval to increase wages six cents per hour retroactive to August 8 was received by the Company yesterday.

The Company said it is making every effort to prepare the back-pay checks in order that they can be distributed with the regular pay checks on Monday. Arrangements are being made to mail checks to the homes of employes who are on furlough.

The decision also approves the payment of additional holiday benefits agreed upon during the last contract negotiations.

State Jaycee Meeting Set

They are: Henry A. Mackey, president of the local chapter, Arthur C. Morgan, state director, Richard Sell and Arthur C. Crum.

Members of the nine local chapters of the state are expected to attend the two-day session, Joseph D. Baker, II, of Frederick will preside.

Highlighting the meeting will be a banquet tomorrow at 6 p. m. at the Francis Scott Key Hotel. A prominent speaker will address the group. Business sessions will be held tomorrow afternoon and Sunday morning. The executive and policy committees will meet tomorrow morning before general sessions begin.

Weather

Weather news in recent weeks has become just about as confusing as news on the international scene. The calendar says December, but it seemed yesterday that April was here. The official thermometer zoomed as high as 68 degrees, but failed to set a record, since it's been as high as 73 on December 6. Topcoats were being carried rather than worn by many shoppers yesterday, and two large toy balloons in a store window burst when the warm rays of the sun caused the air inside them to expand too rapidly. The low was 41, humidity was 53 per cent.

Area Industrial Progress Will Be Discussed

Chemical Society To Install Officers

Richard Sitzler, technical superintendent of the Amcelle plant, will discuss, "Industrial Progress In Western Maryland Section, American Chemical Society, tonight.

The speech, to be presented at a meeting in Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 8 p. m., will mark the final event in the Diamond Jubilee celebration of the Western Maryland society.

Service clubs of this area have been invited to attend.

Clarence Heiserman, chairman, will be in charge of the meeting.

Newly elected officers will also be installed tonight. They are:

Walter Edwards, LaVale, assistant group leader at the Celanese plant, chairman; Gilbert E. Moos, chairman elect; Dr. Rudolph Steinberger, Cresaptown, ABL chemist, secretary; Howard Irwin, LaVale, chemical engineer at the Celanese plant, treasurer, and Chester Abramson, LaVale, group leader at Celanese, local section councilor.

Appeals Court Upholds Award

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 6 (AP) — The Court of Appeals today upheld a $30,000 award to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie M. Wright from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and Howard Tasker, granted in Washington County Circuit Court as the result of an accident at Oakland on October 23, 1948.

The verdict allowed her $20,000 and her husband $10,000 for medical expenses and damages.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury and Judge William L. Henderson dissented in the 3-2 Appeals Court decision. They said the jury should have been told the train's speed was was not the primary cause of the accident.

New Guard Rooms Near Completion

Carpenters are now adding finishing touches to the new day room and offices in the National Guard Armory in Frostburg, according to Captain Gerald E. Reeves, commanding officer of Heavy Weapons Company, First Battalion.

The unit will move all equipment into the new rooms over the weekend. Tuesday's drill will be held in the new quarters, but Reeves said the formal opening will not take place until early 1952.

Captain Reeves also announced the enlistment of Robert O. Nelson of Eckhart. There are still openings for youths under 18½ in the unit's machine gun and recoilless rifle sections.

Probe Begins In Slugging Of Grocer

Charles Bohn Remains In Serious Condition

The State's Attorney of Garrett County, Dwight Stover, has started an investigation into the mysterious robbery and slugging of a Frederick groceryman which allegedly occured in Oakland early Monday morning.

The victim was identified yesterday by attaches of University Hospital, Baltimore, as Charles Bohn, 33, who is in a serious condition there suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. He was in Garrett County with his brother, Donald Bohn, and a companion, Meredith Blank, on a deer hunting trip when the incident occurred.

Stover said the first report he had heard of the incident was last night when contacted by the Cumberland News. Sheriff Paul Fisher said he had no report of the matter and was not notified by attaches of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where Bohn was reported to have been taken following the incident.

State Police Probe

Lt. William E. O'Hara of the Maryland State Police said last night the first report of the incident he had heard was yesterday morning when Donald Bohn came to Cumberland from Frederick to learn if any more had been learned by police. Sam Conrad and Trooper Jack Browning have been assigned to the investigation.

According to Donald Bohn, his brother went into Oakland early Monday morning to a restaurant. Blank said the owner of the restaurant found Bohn in the street shortly after he had left the place. Bohn's companions said he had between $40 and $50 when he left the cabin at Deep Creek Lake where the trio were staying but had no money when found on the street.

Bohn's companion's also quoted him as saying someone hit him, but that he couldn't remember anything else about the incident. Bohn reportedly received treatment at Garrett Memorial Hospital in Oakland Monday, but later went to Baltimore for af urther examination on the advice of a physician there.

Is Conscious

Bohn is conscious but he has not been able to give doctors a coherent story of exactly where or how he was injured.

Lawyers Make New Trial Move

Attorneys for the Western Maryland Railway yesterday filed motions for a new trial and judgment for the railway as an aftermath of the trial which ended Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Hollis Lee Howe, Tri-Towns taxicab owner, Wednesday was awarded a $1,018 verdict by a jury which deliberated the case about an hour and a half.

Howe, through Attorney Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., sued the railway for $2,500 after one of the man's cabs was wrecked when struck by a Western Maryland locomotive at the Tooseytown Crossing at Beryl, W. Va. last January 10.

The motions were filed by Walter C. Capper, this city, and Gene J. Gunning, Baltimore, who represented Western Maryland Railway in the trial.

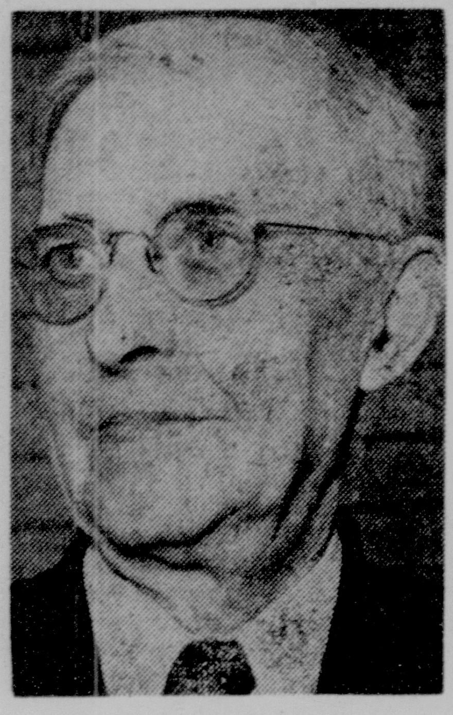
Area Residents Recall Pearl Harbor Attack Ten Years Ago Today

MRS. MADELYN E. BURNS

Mrs. Madelyn E. Burns, RNA, of 407 Valley Street and 623 Yale Avenue, Baltimore, vividly remembers December 7, 1941, ten years ago. At the time, she was on duty as chief nurse anesthetist in the Tripler Hospital, Honolulu, Oahu, just a few blocks from the famous Pearl Harbor bombing. Most of the casualties were taken to Tripler Hospital where nurses and doctors worked night and day for many days.

Mrs. Burns is now private anesthetist for a dental surgeon at the Dr. John Stang Dental Clinic in Baltimore. She was employed in Cumberland for several years as anesthetist to Dr. W. A. Gracie and later became Chief Nurse Anesthetist at the Memorial Hospital here for several years.

During her Army career she was stationed in numerous general hospitals including Washington, Philadelphia, Pa., Hot Springs, Ark., San Francisco, Cal., and three and a half years over seas.



LUTHER L. HUTTER

"We all got very excited when we heard about the attack on Pearl Harbor, but frankly I don't remember exactly what I did when I first heard about it."

These were the recollections of Luther L. Hutter, who has been operating a grocery store at Holland Street and Columbia Avenue for 30 years.

Before long, he remembered, three of his four sons were in service and all three served in Europe. One was wounded by shrapnel at the Rhone River. Another had been helping him run the store. Hutter and his wife managed to operate the business during the war years despite scarcities.

"Those who got steak one week had to be satisfied with roast the next," Hutter said about those war years." Whenever we got some scarce items we just put them in bags and divided them up among our regular customers," he added.

JOHN ROY BLACKWELL

John Roy Blackwell, son of Mrs. Flora Blackwell, Braddock Road, remembers the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was there. At least he was right next door to the harbor, being on duty at Hickam Field during the sneak attack.

The young man remembers that for three days after the attack, all he had to wear was a pair of shorts, since all his personal possessions had been destroyed when his and other barracks were demolished and burned.

He was one of the first six persons shipped back to the U. S. from Pearl Harbor. On the vessel enroute to the U. S., Blackwell was commended for saving the life of a sailor who became entangled with the anchor chain and was being pulled overboard.

Blackwell recently returned to the U. S. from Korea where he commanded a battalion which received the presidential citation. Blackwell is now stationed at LaCarne, Ohio, as a major and chief of the Erie Ordnance there.

MRS. RAY DEREMER

"It seems odd, but what we all thought about most was whether the men in the family would be drafted. It didn't seem that the war would be a long one. We didn't know Pearl Harbor meant a full-scale World War."

That's how Mrs. Anna Deremer, an interviewer in the U. S. Employment Service office, felt when she heard the news of the Japanese attack on the Pearl Harbor naval base on December 7, 1941.

"We'd just come back from church. We were stunned when we heard the news on the radio. I wasn't married then, so my biggest concern was whether my brothers would be drafted. One was, and so was my boy friend (now her husband), but they both came back safely."

"It took a little longer for the bigger implications of the attack to sink in."

Mrs. Deremer and her husband, a Liberty Trust Company employe, live at 443 Bond Street.

LT. W. E. O'HARA

State Police Lt. W. E. O'Hara, who commands LaVale Barracks here, said he remembers the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor very well. "I was in a lunch room in Ridgeville, Md., where I had been sent on a special assignment as a state trooper. The news came over the radio and I almost choked on my coffee."

After calling his home at Frederick, where his folks had also received the report, O'Hara said headquarters notified him by radio with special orders to tell all servicemen to report to their stations at once.

For several hours State Police alerted servicemen and then settled down to helping round out civilian defense programs and tightening internal security controls. Many of the younger men entered military service, he recalled and the state police force had a shortage of men for sometime.

Lt. O'Hara has been in Cumberland five years. He lives in LaVale with his wife, two daughters and one son.

MRS KENNETH MEISE

"I can never forget the day. My husband and I were at our home in Johnstown, Pa., listening to the radio," Mrs. Kenneth Meise, 452 Goethe Street, stenographer for Local 453 Teamsters Union (AFL) recalled. "The news of the Pearl Harbor attack came about 2 p. m. I thought it was a fake, a "Man from Mars' broadcast.

"The more I thought about it the more scared I became. After a few minutes I ran downstairs and told one of our neighbors that the Japs had attacked Pearl Harbor.

"It was about 10 minutes before I was able to accept the report as a fact and not an Orson Wells broadcast.

"The thing that stuck in my mind was that we had been selling scrap iron to Japan and that they would soon be shooting it back to us in shells.

"Ken said, "They'll lick Japan in three weeks", but it didn't work out that way."

M/SGT. VIRGIL P. BURNS

Local recruiter for the United States Army, M/Sgt. Virgil P. Burns has good reason to remember the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, 10 years ago today. He was in Manila, Philippine Islands, when the Japs hit Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Sgt. Burns recalls that he was on an assignment in another part of Luzon and did not learn of the attack until the next day. It cost him a drink, because one of his buddies greeted him, upon his return, with, I'll bet you a drink the United States is at war." That evening, after buying his friend a drink, the Japs hit the Philippines. Jap bombers swarmed over the area.

The following weeks were a nightmare and Sgt. Burns was taken prisoner with the fall of Corregidor May 6, 1942. He was led through the infamous "march of death" and survived the "cattle boat" trip from the Philippines when a Navy plane mistakenly attacked the ship and it had to be abandoned. Sgt. Burns was liberated September 7, 1945.

PATRICK J. CARROLL

"I was shocked, but not exactly surprised," said Patrick J. Carroll, special representative of the U. S. Employment Service here. "We heard the news on the radio at about dinnertime. 'Hell's broken loose', I told my wife. 'There'll be plenty of work for the old men now.'"

Carroll, then head of the local office of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, saw his words borne out in the next few weeks.

All WPA and similar jobs—including the Savage River Dam—were brought to an abrupt halt. The federal government took over his department, and Carroll began looking around for unemployed men eligible for war work.

"But for some reason," he says, "I never did think it'd be a six-month war. The thing that worried me most then—as now—was that Russia would beat the Nazis and that we'd have to fight both of them."

New Industry Will Locate In Lonaconing; Production Slated To Start In February

Business Men's Group, Baltimore Firm Close Deal

50 Or More People Will Be Employed

BY F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT

Lonaconing is getting a new industry.

The Lonaconing Business Men's Association last night closed a deal to have a new industry opened in their town.

The Tach-Fast Manufacturing Company of Baltimore, owned by Samuel Sipe of that city, has acquired the old cutting plant building of the Lonaconing Glass Works, and expects to begin moving presses and machinery into the place about January 15. Production will start about February 15.

A meeting was held last night in the Lonaconing Veterans of Foreign Wars post home with an industrial location committee of the Lonaconing Business Men and John Wichert, of the Tach-Fast Company.

Six Key Men Coming

Wichert, production manager of the company, said new machinery will be delivered here and six key men from the company's organization will arrive shortly to set up and start production.

He assured the local group that at least 20 Lonaconing residents will be employed as soon as production can start and in a few months the number will increase to 50 or more.

The committee which visited the Baltimore plant and carried on negotiations for Lonaconing includes Ervin Lewis, manager of the Potomac Edison Company office; Dr. Paul Frey, physician; John Eichhorn, funeral director; Edward McPartland, postmaster; Arthur G. Phillips, florist; and Thomas Connor, hardware merchant.

Representatives at the meeting included business people and residents from Barton, Midland and Lonaconing, and officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Potomac Edison Company and Western Maryland Railway.

Just The Beginning

A spokesman for the group said the town agreed to make tax concessions to the company and to offer such other cooperation as necessary. The company did not ask for financial help and Wichert and Sipe told the group that there are many small industries in Baltimore and other cities which, if properly encouraged and invited, would move to smaller communities, especially where there is a surplus of good, loyal and efficient labor.

The group, encouraged with the success of this effort, said, "this is just the beginning."

The plant to be occupied is a brick and frame structure providing 8,400 square feet of floor space. There is room for future expansion. The building was used for a time by the NYA, and more recently for truck and other storage. It is owned by Benjamin Evans.

Makes Acoustical Supplies

The location of this new plant in Lonaconing will help to provide employment for some of the many idle residents there. With the shut down

Hi-Y Meeting Opens Today At Baltimore

Local Students Plan To Attend Sessions

More than 15 members of the Fort Hill and Allegany Hi-Y Clubs plan to attend the annual Hi-Y Conference at Johns Hopkins University this weekend.

The delegates will travel by bus and the conference, being held today, tomorrow and Sunday will convene at Lavering Hall, the YMCA Building of the campus.

"Giving My Best" has been selected as the theme for the 1951 event. The subjects for group discussion include: Giving My Best "To My Church;" "To Living With Others," "To Facing the Crisis in Morals," and "To Christian Living". Discussion groups will be led by guest leaders, assisted by boy delegates to the conference.

Cumberland boys have been appointed to the conference organization during the past week. It was recently announced that Bruce Price will serve on the Conference Council, James Mulligan will work with the Evaluation Committee and Al Wilson wil be a member of the news committee. Raph L. Lewis, local 'Y' Program Secretary will serve as advisor to the news committee who will issue the annual conference newspaper and report.

Also included on the program for the Saturday evening entertainment will be a production of the "Hopkins Parade of Stars" featuring Miss Maryland 1951. Conference speakers will include W. Norris Weis of the Baltimore 'Y' Staff who will speak at the opening session today and Rev. Norman Ford of the Wilmington 'Y' Staff who will direct the Sunday Devotional services. George Campbell well known 'Y' Song Leader of Cincinnati, Ohio will direct the conference music.

The conference, held on the campus of American University last year, will close with a devotional service on Sunday morning.

Unit Rifle Team Coach Is Named

Lt. William E. Shuck has been named coach of C Company, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard, rifle team in the Governors Trophy matches for 1951 and 1952, according to Forst Lt. John R. Jackle, commanding officer of C Company.

The C Company unit rifle team has scheduled its first shooting match with Hagerstown's B. Company and will be held at the State Armory here December 8.

Making up the local firers for C Company are Pfc. Bernard L. McCarty, Pvt. William J. Harbaugh, Pfc. Robert M. Edwards, Pfc. Clarence Jones, Sfc. Norris B. Jones and Pfc. Frank C. Cantone, Jr.

Lt. Shuck said that his team is interested in competing with other NRA clubs in the Tri-State area. Anyone interested in small bore marksmanship may contact him at the Armory on Wednesday or Thursday nights or at home by telephoning 2838-W, he said

Suit Argument Today To End October Term

Frostburg Man Seeks Damages

The last Allegany County Circuit Court jury for the 10-week long October term will listen to final arguments and receive instructions today in a $20,000 civil suit which ends the docket.

Ralph E. Hutzell, Mt. Savage, defendant in the action, took the stand late yesterday afternoon, the last of 12 witnesses heard during the first day of the trial. Both sides rested their cases with his testimony.

The Mt. Savage man is being sued by Paul Slingloff of Frostburg, who contends he sustained a fractured right leg and other injuries when struck by Htuzell's car in Mt. Savage last January.

Driveway Blocked

Hutzell, in recalling events that occurred on that January night, denied any knowledge that his car had struck Slingloff or anyone else. He did recall having turned his car around after finding a driveway blocked at a service station in the lower end of Mt. Savage. ## Pigeons Become Nuisance Here

Cumberland's pigeon population is getting out of hand.

The City Health Department reported yesterday that complaints that pigeons are becoming a serious nuisance have been coming in from all sections of the city.

Just how many stray pigeons there are can only be estimated, but officials said the number must exceed several thousand.

Walter E. "Pat" Kline, city sanitarian, warned that persons who raise pigeons and allow them at large violate a city ordinance and will be prosecuted.

Kline said efforts will be made to trap the strays, a method which has proved to be the most practical way to control the excess pigeon population.

Dr. M.E.B. Owens Dies In Richmond; Ill Three Years

Was Well Known Family Physician

Dr. Maurice Eubanks Broadas Owens, family physician to many South End families, died yesterday at the home of a son, Dr. M. E. B. Owens, Jr., in Richmond, Va. He was 67.

His death followed a lingering illness which lasted three years.

A native of Cross Hill, S. C., he was graduated in 1912 from the University of Maryland College of Medicine. Upon graduation, he took the University Medical Prize, a gold medal.

After practicing for some time in Baltimore and Washington, Dr. Owens came to Cumberland to launch a medical career which was to last for more than three decades.

During that time, he became well known throughout the Tri-State area for his charitable efforts to help needy families. He delivered many of the first babies of each New Year.

On May 12, 1949 he announced his retirement, ending 32 years of practice in Cumberland. For much of the time since his retirement, his illness confined him to his home at 133 Virginia Avenue.

He was a member of the Allegany County Medical Society and was a past officer of Laurens Lodge 260, A. F. and A. M., in Laurens, S. C.

He is survived, besides his son, by a daughter, Dr. Maysville Owens Page, Richmond; two other sons, Charles F. and Paul C. Owens, both at home; two brothers, Frank, Landrun, S. C., and Reed, Cross Hill, S. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Boyce, Cross Hill, and Mrs. Rhidona Johnson, Orangeburg, S. C., and five grandchildren.

The body probably will be brought to Cumberland today. The family has requested that flowers be omitted.

Company Hopes To Issue Checks Next Monday

Checks for back pay totaling $136,000 will be distributed on Monday to the hourly-paid employes of the Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation of America, it was announced by H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager.

On August 8, 1951, as a result of contract negotiations with Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, the company granted a wage increase of ten cents per hour. Regulations of the Wage Stabilization Board permitted the payment of an immediate increase of four cents per hour, with the remaining six cents subject to approval by the board.

Official notice of approval to increase wages six cents per hour retroactive to August 8 was received by the Company yesterday.

The Company said it is making every effort to prepare the back-pay checks in order that they can be distributed with the regular pay checks on Monday. Arrangements are being made to mail checks to the homes of employes who are on furlough.

The decision also approves the payment of additional holiday benefits agreed upon during the last contract negotiations.

Approximately 4,600 employes will share in the distribution of back-pay checks.

Business sessions will be held tomorrow afternoon and Sunday morning. The executive and policy committees will meet tomorrow morning before general sessions begin.

Weather

Weather news in recent weeks has become just about as confusing as news on the international scene. The calendar says December, but it seemed yesterday that April was here. The official thermometer zoomed as high as 68 degrees, but failed to set a record, since it's been as high as 73 on December 6. Topcoats were being carried rather than worn by many shoppers yesterday, and two large toy balloons in a store window burst when the warm rays of the sun caused the air inside them to expand too rapidly. The low was 41, humidity was 53 per cent.

Appeals Court Upholds Award

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 6 (AP) — The Court of Appeals today upheld a $30,000 award to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie M. Wright from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and Howard Tasker, granted in Washington County Circuit Court as the result of an accident at Oakland on October 23, 1948.

The verdict allowed her $20,000 and her husband $10,000 for medical expenses and damages.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury and Judge William L. Henderson dissented in the 3-2 Appeals Court decision. They said the jury should have been told the train's speed was was not the primary cause of the accident.

New Guard Rooms Near Completion

Carpenters are now adding finishing touches to the new day room and offices in the National Guard Armory in Frostburg, according to Captain Gerald E. Reeves, commanding officer of Heavy Weapons Company, First Battalion.

The unit will move all equipment into the new rooms over the weekend. Tuesday's drill will be held in the new quarters, but Reeves said the formal opening will not take place until early 1952.

Captain Reeves also announced the enlistment of Robert O. Nelson of Eckhart. There are still openings for youths under 18½ in the unit's machine gun and recoilless rifle sections.

Probe Begins In Slugging Of Grocer

Charles Bohn Remains In Serious Condition

The State's Attorney of Garrett County, Dwight Stover, has started an investigation into the mysterious robbery and slugging of a Frederick groceryman which allegedly occured in Oakland early Monday morning.

The victim was identified yesterday by attaches of University Hospital, Baltimore, as Charles Bohn, 33, who is in a serious condition there suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. He was in Garrett County with his brother, Donald Bohn, and a companion, Meredith Blank, on a deer hunting trip when the incident occurred.

Stover said the first report he had heard of the incident was last night when contacted by the Cumberland News. Sheriff Paul Fisher said he had no report of the matter and was not notified by attaches of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where Bohn was reported to have been taken following the incident.

State Police Probe

Lt. William E. O'Hara of the Maryland State Police said last night the first report of the incident he had heard was yesterday morning when Donald Bohn came to Cumberland from Frederick to learn if any more had been learned by police. Sam Conrad and Trooper Jack Browning have been assigned to the investigation.

According to Donald Bohn, his brother went into Oakland early Monday morning to a restaurant. Blank said the owner of the restaurant found Bohn in the street shortly after he had left the place. Bohn's companions said he had between $40 and $50 when he left the cabin at Deep Creek Lake where the trio were staying but had no money when found on the street.

Bohn's companion's also quoted him as saying someone hit him, but that he couldn't remember anything else about the incident. Bohn reportedly received treatment at Garrett Memorial Hospital in Oakland Monday, but later went to Baltimore for af urther examination on the advice of a physician there.

Is Conscious

Bohn is conscious but he has not been able to give doctors a coherent story of exactly where or how he was injured.

Lawyers Make New Trial Move

Attorneys for the Western Maryland Railway yesterday filed motions for a new trial and judgment for the railway as an aftermath of the trial which ended Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Hollis Lee Howe, Tri-Towns taxicab owner, Wednesday was awarded a $1,018 verdict by a jury which deliberated the case about an hour and a half.

Howe, through Attorney Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., sued the railway for $2,500 after one of the man's cabs was wrecked when struck by a Western Maryland locomotive at the Tooseytown Crossing at Beryl, W. Va. last January 10.

The motions were filed by Walter C. Capper, this city, and Gene J. Gunning, Baltimore, who represented Western Maryland Railway in the trial.
